JUST ANOTHER — ?

Just another day of sunshine,
With a gentle whispering wind;
Just another night of pleasure, Like some you've had—don't you mind?

Just another loving embrace, Gliding through a dreamy waltz;
Just another loving whisper:
"Darling, I will ne'er be false."

Just another joyful meeting,
With some friends of long ago;
Just another smile of welcome,
Like your mother could bestow;

Just another grip in silence,
From the hand of your old dad,
Just another lingering kiss,
From a sweetheart who was glad;

Just another choice Havana,
And a sip of sparkling wine;
Just another feast of goodies, Like you've had Thanksgiving time.

Just another chance to make good,
On the world's great stage, that's all;

Just another prayer of thanks,
To God and man before the call.
—ED MEADE,
The Central Avenue Post.

SMILE-A-WHILE

SKINNY'S FINISH

Being a little short of material this week we asked the devil to write us a short article against the use of slang. He did. Here it is:

If there is anything that gets our Nanny, it is the use of slang. Some guys spill so much of that kind of dope that it is hard to get wise to their spiel. Kids should be put next by their parents that slang is on the Fritz and should ought to be cut out. If I had a kid that couldn't put over the straight stuff I would wallop the lining out of the lobster.
Shirts are shines, proper, when it comes to slang. They think that mercy, and I should say not, are real tough. The Boss is a dish of prunes when it comes to slang. He bawls me out to a fare-ye-well and I am in Dutch from the time I come on the job till haying time in the evening. This is the first thing I have ever wrote, and if it don't show up in the rag I will know it is a flivver proper—Skinny.

CONVALESCENT

A poem found in the room occupied by L. L. Thomas at Mersey Hospital after he had returned to Central Avenue.

I've played solitaire till I dream of the cards,
I've read till I'm weary of print.
I'm ready to curse both the doctor and nurse, Whose hearts are constructed of flint,
They won't let me up and they won't let me out,
They make me keep quiet in bed;
They say I'll be well if I'm patient a spell
But I'm bored till I'm pretty near dead.

I'm weary of jellies and watery broth,
I'm crazy for sausage or steak,
But they won't let me feed as I feel that I need And my heart is beginning to break.
I'm sick of the flowers my friends have sent in,
With lying in bed I am sore,
And my longing to smoke is much more than a joke
But it seems to be useless to roar.

It wasn't so bad when I truly was sick,
For I was too batty to care;
But now I am mending, the day seems mending
I toss and I fret and I swear, My temper is nasty and snappy and harsh,
I just want to holler and shriek,
For if I am bad I may get 'em all mad,
And they'll make me get out in a week.

National Biscuit Company's Demonstration Makes A Record

The demonstration of the National Biscuit Company's Pure Food Products at the Pure Food Grocery of Ollivant & Weaver on Thursday of this week by Messrs. Mack and Leebriek, the company's representatives scored a high water mark of over 1,000 packages sold during the day.
This is the record one day's business for the demonstrators in the Pacific Northwest and they are elated at the business done by the local grocery.
Ollivant & Weaver carry a full line of National Biscuit Company products and they are most gratified at the response of their patrons to the announcements of Thursday's sale which appeared in The Times exclusively.

BE A BOOSTER

Buy a bale of cotton, Bill;
Buy a heavy ham,
Buy a bar'l of apple sass,
Buy a jar of jam,
Buy a box of oranges,
Buy a bag of oats,
Buy yourself a suit of clot-es,
Buy some rubber coats.

Buy yourself a bale of hay,
Buy a load of bricks,
Buy a pair of rubber boots,
Buy a flock of chicks,
Buy yourself some chewing gum,
Buy it by the box,
Buy yourself an auto,
Buy a dozen sox.

Buy a year's subscription,
Pay it in advance,
Then your friend, yo Editor,
Can buy a pair of pants.

ALWAYS FRESH.

"Pardon me, but are these eggs fresh laid?" a lady asked at Ollivant & Weaver's yesterday.

"Absolutely, Madam," Fred Weaver replied, "the Coos River rancher we purchased them from won't allow his hens to lay them any other way."

We knew him as old Ten Per Cent; the more he had the less he spent;
the more he got, the more he lent.
He's dead, we don't know where he went but if his soul to Heaven was sent, he'll own the harp and charge them rent.

HENS WITH LAYING AVERAGE OF 144 EGGS PER YEAR

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside appears an interesting account of three American egg-laying contests. In the following extract appears a statement of some of the results:

"The unusually severe winter in Connecticut with frequent periods when the mercury was far below zero gave the contesting hens a serious setback in their winter production. Many excellent records were made, but the aggregate of eggs laid was considerably less than otherwise would have been the case.
The average production for the 820 hens (10 hens to the pen) was 144 eggs."

A SNAKE OF A MAN.

Somebody poisoned my dog today
Though he never did anyone ill
And so he is through with canine play,
And his waggley tail is still.

No more shall I walk in the street with him,
Along at his side to jog
And—I don't care if my eyes are dim—Somebody poisoned my dog!

He was homely, I know, as a dog could be,
And only a mongrel, too, But I loved the dear fellow, and he loved me,
As people and dogs may do,

Nothing on earth could disturb his trust,
Or his love and his faith befog.
And now he lies here at my feet in the dust—
Somebody poisoned my dog!

He crawled to my side and licked my hand,
And then with a gasp he died;
And—though some people can't understand—
I patted his head—and cried!

For it isn't funny to lose a friend From off this earthy cog,
And he was loyal unto the end—
Somebody poisoned my dog!

I wonder how anyone could have done
This poor little fellow harm;
But here he lies—his race is run—Though his body's still soft and warm.

My life is lived on a peaceful plan,
My pace is a quiet jog;
But—I wish I could find the snake of a man Who poisoned my little dog!

QUALITY FISRT

Mr. James B. Finnegan, secretary of one of Portland's largest business concerns, in a lecture before the University of Oregon, recently said:

"Select a good print shop and stick to it. When you get a printer who does satisfactory work, don't change because another man has underbid a dollar or two.
The kind of work turned out is as important as the price."

We are in better shape to do first-class printing than ever before, having recently added to our equipment, in addition to a Boston Wire Sticher, a Portland Multiple Punch and Miller Saw Trimmer, a brand new layout of type, consisting of some of the Latest Type Faces.
