NORTH DAKOTA BANKS UNABLE TO FIND BORROWERS

Indicates Unusual Prosperity—Makoti Banker Writes to Geo. Gilbertson.

Showing that the financial flurry and stringency which the United States suffered on the outbreak of the European war is rapidly passing away, a banker in North Dakota has written his old friend, George Gilbertson, of the Ekblad Hardware store, that conditions were never more prosperous in that section. As has been generally the case, the stringency was first felt in the East and gradually worked westward. C. V. Olson, who is assistant cashier of the First State Bank of Makoti, N. D., and who has some property here, writes in part as follows:

ERA OF PROSPERITY

DR. A. L. HOUSEWORTH FOUND FEELING OF OPTIMISM Returns From Trip to Oklahoma and Brings Message of Better Times Ahead.

Dr. A. L. Houseworth arrived home today noon from a several weeks' trip to his old home in Oklahoma. Mrs. Houseworth, who accompanied him East proceeded to Illinois, where she will visit for awhile.

Dr. Houseworth says that in the Middle West and East there is a more cheerful feeling over the business outlook and while the material improvement is not so evident there is a general belief that the country is on the verge of a marked era of prosperity. In Oklahoma, they had a fine wheat crop and have been getting high prices for their grain and in consequence they are enjoying unusual prosperity.

En route home the doctor stopped at San Francisco. He was greatly pleased with the Exposition, but regretted that the attendance was not larger. He said the Oregon building was very fine and they are now finishing up the exhibits so that the interior is much more attractive than it was.
