MITCHELL-COACH CASE PROMISES STARTLING EXPOSE

Lawyers Declare Bars Are Down and Open Season on—Prepare For Legal Battle

(Special to The Times.) COQUILLE, Ore., May 13.—"Open wide the door and let the light in" is the slogan of the Mitchell-Coach case set for tomorrow, according to the attorneys for both sides. Each promises to expose the other with facts and figures most startling with "the sky the limit."

W. J. Mitchell, who in his suit against Joe Coach asks for costs, $2500 and $4000 detective fees, accompanied by a partner, L. G. Carpenter, of the Coast Detective Agency in Portland, arrived here yesterday. It is claimed that Mr. Carpenter was present at the time Mitchell entered into his contract with Joe Coach early last September.

In the suit filed Mitchell claims that he was in the employ of Coach for six months. He refused an offer of $1000 as a compromise on the grounds that there was an agreement for more than that amount and also that he has spent his expenses on the case more than $1000.

"Coach wanted to lick us both yesterday," said Mitchell, referring to himself and Carpenter, but the fistie encounter was avoided.

Charges and counter charges between Coach and Treadgold, City Attorney of Bandon, have so far resulted in no convictions, and nothing other than the uncovering of "spicy" evidence, with very little proved. The attorneys for both sides are now claiming there will be produced in court affidavits and testimony that will air the entire tangle and out of which serious charges may be made.

The court has fixed the next eight cases on the docket. They are expected to come in this order: Mitchell vs. Coach.

Barrow vs. Urquhart. Sibell vs. School District No. 13. Machado vs. Prosper Mill Co. Roebing & Sons vs. Moore Lumber Co. Dye vs. Van Zile. Milton vs. Coos Bay Manufacturing Co. Howell vs. Coos County.

ROY FARNAM WILL BE TRIED FOR MURDER

Now Serving Term in Penitentiary and Will Likely be Brought Back to Roseburg Soon.

(Special to The Times.) ROSEBURG, Or., May 13.—Roy Farnam will probably be brought back from the penitentiary to answer a charge of murdering Edna Morgan. The case attracted much attention at the time Farnam was indicted on two charges, one of murder and the other on a statutory crime concerning the Morgan girl. On the latter charge he was convicted and sent to the penitentiary and the murder indictment still stands against him. There was some talk that this was to be dropped, but according to District Attorney George Neuner, the case will be brought up. Before Farnam was convicted he was tried three times. Farnam is now at Salem serving his sentence. In the event the prosecuting officers decide to try Farnam on the murder charge during the May term of court, he will be returned here within the next two weeks.

New Evidence. It is understood that the Sheriff has considerable evidence in his possession which will be introduced in the event Farnam is tried on a murder charge. This evidence, it is alleged, was withheld by the officers at the time Farnam was tried on a charge of rape. The character of the evidence upon which the prosecuting officers hope to convict Farnam on a charge of murder is being withheld and will not be made public until the time of the trial. Neither Sheriff George Neuner nor his deputies would comment on the possibility of convicting Farnam, other than to admit that they had secured much important evidence which tended to indicate that the defendant was in the vicinity of the Morgan home on the night that Edna Morgan was lured to the barn of H. H. Beamer and murdered.

Buried in Barn. The charred remains of Edna Morgan were found in the ruins of the barn of H. H. Beamer, located some distance from the Morgan home, following the fire which destroyed the barn. As soon as the body was discovered the officers were summoned and an investigation was instituted. Inquiry about the neighborhood revealed the fact that Edna Morgan and Roy Farnam had been close friends for more than a year, and were frequently seen in each other's company. This information, together with the statement of physicians that Edna Morgan was soon to become a mother brought about the arrest of Roy Farnam. Further evidence of the young man consulting a physician and purchasing certain drugs is said to be of an incriminating nature.

Expect to Convict. The officers are now of the opinion that they have sufficient evidence to bring about his conviction on a charge of murder.

In the event the prosecuting officers insist upon bringing Farnam to trial on a charge of murder during the next term of court, the state will be represented by District Attorney George Neuner, Attorney W. W. Cardwell will have charge of the defense.

CLAIMS INSULTED LAY FIRST STEEL

LITTLE FELLOW APPEARS AS PROTECTOR OF SICK MOTHER

Says Doctor Made Improper Advances, "What Can We Do About It, Judge?" He Asks in Court

A bright little chap in knee trousers and with cap on tumbled head, walked up to the desk in the justice court this morning, and tip-toeing to peer over the top, manfully queried: "Judge, what can we do with a man that wilfully insults a woman sick in bed?"

Judge Pennock leaned forward, interested and surprised. "Who are you?" was all he could say. "I live with my mama in Bunker Hill. I have a brother and sister, littler than I am. Mama is sick in bed, just wore down from hard work, I guess."

He was asked about the father. Haven't seen him for a month. The last time he came around he didn't have any money and mama shoeed him away with a stick of stove wood.

It was a pitiful tale unfolded by the little fellow who should have been playing with his marbles, that appeared now as the head and protector of a family.

Sick in bed from washing and scrubbing to earn a meagre living, the mother had taken to her bed, said the boy. He claims a doctor was summoned, an out-of-town doctor, who came and offered his services, thereafter forcing his attention on the sick woman. Repeatedly he had appeared, said the boy, and that his advances were improper. As the protector of his mother he came to ask that something be done, and he shook his fist to emphasize the remarks.

"He's going away tomorrow, too," he said, "and, Judge, something has got to be done."

Constable Cox left with the little fellow for Bunker Hill to make a complete investigation of the case and to see what action should be taken.

BB BLOCK RUMORED

$30,000 STRUCTURE FOR BANDON A POSSIBILITY

Contractors Are Active and Investors Look Over Ground—To Open Conservatory Bids

Building of the proposed $30,000 B. B. Block in Bandon within the near future is being rumored again and judging from the activity shown by various contractors it is believed work will be started this summer on the big structure. Plans for this were completed last fall by Ben Ostlund. This would in a great measure take the place of many buildings destroyed in the Bandon fire.

It is known that the principals interested are out of town residents, some of them from Washington. Lately it is said they have been here looking over the ground again.

On Saturday the bids for the Henrik Glerdrum conservatory will be opened and the building is expected to commence soon after. It will be situated near the corner of Eighth and Central Avenue.

L. L. THOMAS BUYS BUSINESS OF W. R. HAINES IN MARSHFIELD

Progressive Marshfield Music Dealer Enlarges Business of Wiley B. Allen Company Here

L. L. Thomas, head of the Wiley B. Allen Company's Coos Bay business, has purchased the musical stock and interest of W. R. Haines and is today taking possession of it. The deal has been under negotiation for some time.

The absorption of the Haines business, gives Mr. Thomas a clear field in the musical business in southwest Oregon and will enable him to enlarge and extend his business. He carries all of the best lines of instruments, will have most of them in stock and will have a musical store that will hardly be excelled even in the larger cities.

Since entering the Coos Bay field a few years ago, Mr. Thomas by progressive methods, upright dealing and hard work has won an enviable standing in local business circles. He has rapidly built up a fine business and by giving the needs and wants of the public careful consideration has laid the foundation for an assured success for the greater business which he is now launching.

He plans to close out most of the Haines stock at once and if a suitable lease can be arranged, he may occupy the former Haines quarters with his new store as it gives additional floor space for the enlarged lines that he will carry.

Mr. Haines has not announced his future plans.

WANAMAKER'S ADVICE TO RETAIL MERCHANTS

John Wanamaker says: "Good advertising is necessary to keep up a healthy growth in business. Of course good merchandise is a first necessity. But if you have just what thousands of people want and only a few people know it, your care and energy are wasted." The Coos Bay Times will solve the problem here.

ENGINEER BROUGHTON STARTS BUILDING TRACK NORTH

Believed Will Continue to Umpqua Where Big Bridge May be Connecting Link of North-South

Coos Bay's first effort to lay a steel track north to join one already building from that direction and thus open her communication by rail with the outside world has commenced. A track squad under Engineer Broughton, of the Southern Pacific, is making track from the big bridge out toward Lakeside.

This arm, it is expected, will ultimately continue north to the Umpqua there to await the coming of the rails from the Siuslaw. The Umpqua Bridge will be the last of the Willamette Pacific to be completed, according to William Hood, chief engineer of the Southern Pacific, who was here but three weeks ago.

Present construction will continue, according to V. C. Hindmarsh, resident engineer at North Inlet, until the present supply of rails is exhausted. More are expected in within a short time.

Were it not for the ballasting of the road and the extra work that must be done the laying of the rails through to Lakeside would be a matter of but ten days or so, said Mr. Hindmarsh. No special track laying machine will be used.

Trestle building on North and Ten Mile lake is to commence at once, according to Kenneth Hauser of the Hauser and Hauser company, who has just returned from Portland.

This is taken to mean that the rails are to be extended through to the Umpqua bridge after Lakeside has been reached and not to halt at that place as has heretofore been stated.

The trestle work will take most of the summer months, it is said, and in some cases piling 115 feet in length must be driven in the lake bed where the bed rock is difficult to find. This work is to be done by the Hauser and Hauser company while the Willamette Pacific will lay its own steel.

TO PLAY BALL WITH MUSIC

Coos Bay Concert Band to Furnish Aids When Central Avenue and Front Street Collide

"Everybody's Doin' It" and "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" will furnish the inspiration Sunday for the heralded clash between the Central Avenue Boosters and the Front Street Superbas, the cigar wrapper boys. That is the prediction, weather permitting.

Several nights the members of both teams have repaired to portions of the Mill slough fill there to throw the pill and swing the willow in anticipation of the heavy clouts of Sunday.

A special rate fare of 25 cents for the roundtrip to the North Bend ball grounds has been arranged. Captain Mike Burke, of the Superbas, promises surprises; Captain Frank Catterlin, of the Boosters, says they are nothing to what he has on hand and up his sleeve. A big share of the proceeds go to the band.

GUNNERY INSTALLS FREE AIR SYSTEM

It is a new feature of The Gunnery Service Department. They are providing every convenience for their patrons and the public. The new convenience in connection with their supply department will mean the elimination of lost time for autoists and wheel owners.

NO BODIES FOUND Belief at Bandon Randolph Victims Will Not Come Ashore

Regarding the victims of the Randolph wreck, the Bandon Western World says: "Past experience prompts the belief that none of the Randolph's victims will wash ashore near this port. It is thought by the Coast Guard crew that if they are found at all, it will be along the coast south of here. The idea is based on the fact that several years ago a man who had drowned in Coos Bay washed up near the local Lookout station, and before that a Columbus River fisherman's body was found here. Also the leg of a man drowned off the local bar washed up on the beach at Crescent City, Calif. It was identified by the mother of the lost sailor or who recognized her own handiwork upon the woolen sock encasing the foot. It seems the bodies invariably show up a considerable distance to the south of where they are drowned."

WRITES ABOUT WAR

FRANK MILLER OF MARSHFIELD HEARS FROM BROTHER

Lives Near Vienna and Says Times Are Prosperous There and Food is Plentiful

Frank Miller, of the O. K. Barber Shop yesterday received a letter from his brother, who resides about forty-five miles from Vienna, Austria, which gave some interesting details of life in the warring nations. Mr. Miller lives in a German settlement in Austria. He writes that he was discharged from the army last January on account of sickness, but that he is about well again and will soon return to the front. He says that times are very prosperous there, that food is plentiful at normal prices with the exception of meat which is growing scarce and the price advancing. He writes that the garrisons around Vienna show no signs of being depleted by sending troops to the front, in fact there are more men in the home garrisons now than usual.
