TIME'S REVENGE

I used to call you Carrots, dear,
When we were girl and boy;
I called you Ginger, too—I fear
With purpose to annoy.
I held my hands above your head
To warm my fingers cold,
And it made you cry in the days
Gone by—
But now your hair is gold!
I used to call you Sorrel, dear,
When you were small in frocks;
But now you reign without a peer,
My darling goldenlocks!
For time's revenge has come to you,
And I am all forlorn
In the silken snare of your glorious
Hair.
With its aureole of morn.
I used to call you Candy Drop
When you were just a girl,
And Mustard Seed and Sandy Top
And Dandelion Curl;
But now your head has won a light
Like fields of summer wheat;
I long to hold each lock of gold
That binds me to your feet.
I used to pull the tangled knots—
O, memory of shame!
I called aloud for water pots,
To quench the ruddy flame.
But now it is my heart that burns,
While you are coldly coy,
And my life I'd dare for the golden
Hair
That I laughed at when a boy.

THE old fashioned way of announcing an engagement was by the invitation to the wedding. An announcement appears now in the newspapers:

"Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edgar Smith announce the engagement of their daughter, Elsie, to Mr. Earl Pearce, the marriage to take place May 27."

Very often the engagement is announced at a reception, luncheon or some other form of festivity given by relatives or friends of the engaged girl, and then the announcement is given to the newspapers.

Pre-Nuptial Entertaining.
Then follows a score or more of entertainments—a last chance of doing honor to the bride before her marriage. Her maids usually give some sort of affair to her, and all her special friends give luncheons, bridge parties, etc. Luncheons are sometimes given on the day on which the wedding ceremonial takes place in the evening. This is a decided innovation, as our mothers spent the time quite differently after the fact became known. The bride to be of yore olden days was not seen at any social gathering whatsoever. The new way is much more pleasing, as this is the time of all times when one's girlhood friends would wish to entertain in honor of the happy bride-to-be.

Should a disagreement arise, or for any reason the cancellation of an engagement, or after invitations are out, the better way is simply to have announced in the columns of the daily paper: "The engagement of Miss Elsie Smith and Mr. Earl Pearce has been canceled." The reason, of course, is not given, except to one's particular friends.

Wedding invitations should be issued not later than fifteen days and not earlier than four weeks before the date set for the marriage. Circumstances should guide the sending of the invitations. As a usual thing, for a large church wedding an invitation is sent to all of the names appearing on the calling list of both, and invitations are also sent to relatives or friends of the bride and bridegroom who are in mourning or who may be traveling in foreign countries.

It is a pretty compliment to the bridesmaids and the ushers for the bride to ask them if they have any particular friends whom they wish to invite.

The Style of Cards.
The invitation itself is, of course engraved on linen paper of extra fine texture and having a smooth surface. A good size to choose for the paper is seven and one-fourth inches in width. This should be folded once to fit the envelope. Plain script is still the best form for wedding cards, but occasionally one sees the heavy block lettering or the old English characters.

The large envelope in which the invitation is encased, as well as the smaller one, on which the name of the invited guest alone is written, are furnished by the stationer who has the order to do the engraving. The first envelope is not sealed, but the large one is sealed and stamped and bears the full address of the person invited.

When sending wedding cards it is not permissible to use one invitation

PERSONAL notices of visitors in the city, or of Coos Bay people who visit in other cities, together with notices of social affairs, are gladly received in the social department. Telephone 133. Notices of club meetings will be published and secretaries are kindly requested to furnish same.

for an entire family, thus: "Mr. and Mrs. Jones and family." If the parents and unmarried sons and daughters are invited, invitations should be sent as follows: "Mr. and Mrs. Jones," another to the "The Misses Jones," and a third to "The Messrs. Jones." The three invitations may be placed in one envelope and addressed to the matron of the family: "Mrs. Edwin T. Jones."

The wording of the invitation should be as follows:
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edgar Smith request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter
Elsie
to
Mr. Earl Pearce
on Thursday afternoon, August 6,
at six o'clock,
St. Michael's Church
Charleston.

Another and better style is:
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edgar Smith request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter
Elsie
and
Mr. Earl Pearce
on Tuesday, May 27,
at half after eight o'clock
at Grace Church,
New York

If the bride is an orphan her invitations are issued in the name of her nearest surviving relative. Should she have an unmarried sister, however, unless of mature years this is not customary. In case the bride's brother issues the cards—be he married or single—the wording is as follows: "Mr. Howard Jones requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of his sister, Mary."

A married sister would issue invitations in the following form: "Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Morgan request the honor of your company at the marriage of Mrs. Morgan's sister, Miss Mary Smith." If grandparents, uncle or aunt should issue the invitations the exact degree of relationship is fully stated. When the marriage takes place at the home of a friend the form below is the correct one:

The pleasure of your company is requested at the marriage of Miss Elsie Smith
with
Mr. Earl Pearce
on Tuesday, March six at the residence of
Mr. and Mrs. John P. Hilton
Fifteen East Fifth Street
