THE CENTRAL AVENUE BOOSTER

Published Every Friday in the Interests of Coos Bay in General and Central Avenue in particular.

NOTICE TO NON-PAYING SUBS.

Our fighting readers this wk. might as well calm themselves right now. If you don't like our items, don't read them and besides, our fighting editor is busy just now helping Charlie Rolph and C. C. Moore run Frisco and the exposition. If you want satisfaction, you will have to take it out on Harry Kimball and really, Harry will like it, becuz he hasn't had much practice since Jupe Pluvius put him out of a job as baseball ump.

More Boosting.—Matt L. May who long, long ago qualified as a real booster by boosting Haas Brothers' bizness in these parts, ought to have his name changed. Such a persistent, cheerful chap should be Will instead of May.

'New' Editor.—The Booster has to call attention to a new literary edishun this wk. The Booster wouldn't do it only to show how Wilson Kaufman, a real booster and optimist, can be ironical and show up the knockers. He has it illustrated and it sez:

The Voice of the Knocker.
"Don't put your money in the bank—it may break.
"Don't go into business—you'll fail.
"Don't buy real estate—wait 10 yrs.
"Don't do anything at all—except look scared and wara all your friends."

Big Lumber Contract.—Central Avenue was the real center of the lumber trade this week. Paul Dimmick, the hustling sales mgr. of the N. B. mill at Frisco, contracted several days bill with Mine Host McKeown, of The Chandler when the latter wasn't looking at the books. However, our reporter got next to it and thereupon discovered the reason. Wilson Kaufman had tipped it off that Colonel Grimes might reshingle the northeast corner of the 3x9 porch roof on his Central Avenue house and Dimmick was after the order. We hope to announce the letting of the contract in our next issue.

Big Discovery.—The political ed. of The Booster this week discovered why Louie Simpson quit his job as Mayor of our rival metropolis, N. Bend. Louie has the money and the ambish to sacrifice himself at Washington, D. C., for the fellers who want jetty and dredge contracts at Chetco, Rogue, The Sixes, Coquille, C. B., X Mile, Reedsport, etc., etc., etc., and he discovered that Central Ave. was the quickest route there. Louie told his N. Bend constituents that he was going to Shore Akers, but the Booster bets he makes Central Ave. his political headquarters. Hooray for our Central Ave. M. C.

Some Deal.—Ben McMullen of M. Pt. was here this week to confer with our agricultural experts, Doc. Dix and Frank Laise. Ben and Doc have an interest in what Al Powers says might be a fine farm near Bridge if so much of it didn't stand on edge. Doc insists on trying to raise Gravensteins when he isn't trying to get the State Game Warden to move all the fish, China pheasants, quail, etc., from the balance of the country to H. However, Ben has a new idea about successful farming and that is to divide the place in town lots and sell it as a

First Add. to Powers, twenty miles away. He says they will have to hurry, though, or they won't be the 1st Addishun to Powers because Jake Stemmler or some other real estate feller is trying to annex M. Pt. to Powers now.

SMILE-A-WHILE
More Secrets.—Al Myers says his nobuddy's bizness but his own and the company's how long he's been on the payroll of the Reynolds Development Co. The reason he sed it was becuz another paper sed he'd been employed by them since he waz 18 yrs. old and sum of his friends immediately that they could figure how old he wuz if they knew how long he'd worked the Reynolds Dev. Co. One called up The Booster, figuring we knew everything and thereupon we referred it to Al to be accurate. When Al got so flucky about it we made up our minds that we wouldn't tell annie names even if Al is just crazy to find out who she iz.

SMILE-A-WHILE
Some Order.—Dave Stafford was turrible busy this week filling a mail order this week. Dave is furnishing the mail-order bizness except when it cums to him. Dave's brother-in-law Jay Montgomery, who was pioneer on Central Ave. is now a hard-working Jay near Bridge and he wrote Dave that the moles were eating all his seed spuds at night be4 they had a chanet to grow. Dave swiped all the mouse traps he could git without getting into a trap himself and sint them c. o. d. to Jay. However, what bothered Dave most was that Jay hadn't making more progress in the study of his profession as ruralite. (This ain't no pun even if Jay lives near Rural.) But as we wuz going to say, Jay wrote Dave that the vermin was bothering his chicks. Now Dave says that anyone who noes the lat rudiments of chicken books knows that it costs considerable to furnish gravel and oyster shells to make hens scratch which is good for them. Now if them vermin are the proper kind, some hotel breed, Dave says Jay's hens won't need no shells or nuthin else to make them scratch and that instid of writing to him to spend his (Dave's) good money for vermin eradicator Jay ought to be thankful to them vermin.

SMILE-A-WHILE
Central Avenue Savings
GEO. E. COOK, our esteemed pje-need and Councilman, showed his real worth this week when balked the scheme of Port Barnum boosters, probably directed by Mel Duncan, to swipe our S. P. jitney. This cold-blooded deal to prevent our citizens from looking down the avenue and seeing the substitute for the jit-motor belching out evidence of Tom Russell's pick at Beaver Hill, should be sat down on hard. And believe me, our George is there when it comes to preventing a monopoly in North Bend rides.

SMILE-A-WHILE
FRANK D. COHAN, our editor-in-chief, reports a very pleasant vjst with E. P. O'Neill, the Kodak Man. Frank has been in close consultation with the weather man and reports everything favorable for a kodak season.

SMILE-A-WHILE
DOC. TOYE, our genial toothologist, is taking in the San Francisco exposition and we hereby warn Pres. Moore that he had better look out or he will be out the better part of his show if Doc gets his pull to working.

PERSONAL MENTION.

DOC. VAUGHN has bot the old Buick that Doc Douseworth discarded. The tooth bizness must be gettin' good again from the way our D. D.'s are sporting around.

SMILE-A-WHILE
AL KOHLER, of the "Hub," still withstands the blandishments of the Booster's advertising man to purchase space on this page.

SMILE-A-WHILE
Talk about a real boosting spirit whose ardor can't be dampened! Our leading citizen Frank Cohan appeared at The Owl this morning all wreathed in smiles while others were bemoaning the two weeks steady rain. "Fine! Just what I wanted to get the grass started in the lawn around my new home at Eleventh and Central," remarked Frank. Some optimist, hey?

SMILE-A-WHILE
HARRY NASBURG's aspirant's to be geographically, as well as in spirit a Central avenue booster, was thwarted again this week by the insistence of Judge Coke that he deal out justice again at Coquille. Harry had hardly moved into his Central avenue store when he was called to the front at $2 per.

SMILE-A-WHILE
DAVE STAFFORD's falling to keep a list of the Coca-Cola brigade, the Booster reporter takes the responsibility for the following: "General" W. Kaufman; "Major" R. Lawhorne; "Lieutenant" B. Chandler; "Sergeant" H. Barclay; Recruits, Fred Smith, W. R. Haines and Harry McKeown. Absent at roll call, Thayer Grimes.

SMILE-A-WHILE
JIMMY MONTGOMERY, our telephone manager's assist., made the trip north and is expected back alone this week. He made the trip to find some real small type in which to print the names of non-advertising subscribers in the company's new get-the-money book issued under the guise of a directory.

SMILE-A-WHILE
RAY OLLIVANT has joined the suburbanites and moved way out on South Eleventh street. However he refuses to become a jitneyite as long as the firm maintains a bicycle, and Fred Weaver pays one-half of the upkeep of said bike. But Fred don't care since he acquired a ranch.

SMILE-A-WHILE
JACK HARRIGAN, who has been in Los Angeles recovering from the nervous strain of listening to Henry Sengstacken's arguments in behalf of the Kaiser, writes that he will soon be in our midst. Henry has reduced his sleeping hours in order to rehearse all the mean things that he has thot about the Allies and unless Jack has fully recuperated, he will hardly be able to stand the shock. It is believed that Allie Neff's advance rumor that Harrigan was bringing back a lot of money to invest in real estate was inspired by Jack to divert Henry from the war. Clever boy, Jack.
