HUM OF MACHINERY HEARD IN COURTESY MILL

George A. Houck and E. O. Samuels, Owners, Propose 60-Foot Addition—Open on Full Time

Built seven years ago, for the first time the hum of machinery has been heard in what is known as the Courtesy mill at Millington. George A. Houck and E. O. Samuels, owners of the property, have a force of about eight men at work. Lumber is being sawed now with which to build a 60-foot addition to the mill. With this completed, it is intended to operate with a full force of between 25 and 30 men.

"Tuning up" is the way the owners express their present operation. During the idleness of the mill it is said that much of the machinery became run down. For several weeks men have been at work making repairs, putting in new pulleys and belts, getting all in readiness for the final opening.

The addition to the mill will be on the west end away from the dock and will be used as a sorting shed. The logs being sawed for this purpose are from Perham Park and have been rafted up Isthmus Inlet.

When the mill is ready to open on full time the owners expect they will have plenty of logs on hand. Preparations have already been made for the shipment of the lumber to San Francisco and its sale there, though this fact has not yet been made public. It is understood the lumber will be delivered here at the mill to its purchasers. The mill will cut about 75,000 feet of lumber.

The new firm name under which the plant will operate is the Coos Bay Mill Company.

And in the meantime the bulk of the barkentine Northwest rests at the bottom of the inlet alongside the mill dock.

FORMER EASTSIDE TREASURER PASSES AWAY IN EAST

Old Man Long in Ill Health Falls To Regain It in Old Home—Had Many Friends Here

S. S. Ackles, well known here and for a time Treasurer of Eastside, is dead in the East, according to word that has been received by friends. He died at the home of his daughter in Neosho, Missouri, where he went about ten months ago with his wife.

The deceased was about 70 years of age. For a long time he had been in bad health and it was partially on account of this that he left here and returned to his old home.

About six or seven years ago Mr. Ackles first came here from near Missoula, Montana, where he had just married for a second time. He was very well liked here and made many friends. A home belonging to him is still owned in Eastside by his wife. There are no relatives of the deceased in the West, and he has been buried at his old home by his children who live there.

PHONE BOOK KICKS

MANY COMPLAINTS ABOUT LATEST ADVERTISING STUNTS

Protests About Extra Charge for Kind of Type Patron's Name is Printed In.

Many complaints are being heard over the "get-the-money" book which the telephone company is trying to issue under the guise of a telephone directory.

In addition to trying to make the pseudo-telephone directory by crowding it with advertising out a Chinese laundry bill to shame as an emblem for the average person they are now trying to squeeze patrons for an "extra twenty-five cents per month" in order to get their names in black type. If patrons haven't anything that they can be forced into advertising their names are to be put in a less conspicuous type unless they pay the twenty-five cents per month.

What May Happen

If the present policy of the company meets with any success, it seems likely that there may be some trying experiences. For instance, after you have waded in vain through the maze of advertising, etc., in the phony directory to find the telephone number you desire, you will call for information. She might respond something like this: "You will find the name and number you want between the ads of O. U. Graft and Easy Mark" or whatever the names might be. Of course, if you are in a hurry, you can walk a block or a mile and find the party and talk directly to him without bothering with the telephone.

Run Phone Business

"If the telephone company would keep in its own field and furnish adequate service, it probably would have its hands full without trying to squeeze extra dollars out of the community by worthless advertising."

"If it keeps crowding the advertising, etc., the same fate that befell its Myrtle Point exchange may strike others. There the company's exchange was crowded out by the Farmers' Telephone line and finally had to be turned over to the rural company."

Another Charge

Complaint was also made this week by another man because they wanted to charge him fifty cents per month extra for putting his name and number in the telephone directory. He ordered an extension phone to his room, agreeing to pay the regular charge for it, but when this was completed, they wanted the additional fifty cents per month for listing his name and number in the directory.

By a slight extension of the same policy of extra charges for advertising, an extra charge might be expected for every operator who listens on the line during a conversation as the parties concerned would be getting additional advertising circulation.

Effort to be Made to Rescind the Recent Advance Between Coos Bay and Valley Points

It is stated that an appeal will soon be made to the Oregon Railroad Commission for rehearing on the recent advance in freight rates by the Coos Bay, Roseburg and Eastern, between Coos Bay and Coquille Valley points.

P. M. Hall-Lewis, County Roadmaster, who was here today, said that the County Commissioners would lay the matter before the Commission, pointing out that the doubling of the rate on crushed rock made its use prohibitive.

Some of the coal shippers are also taking the matter up. The Coos Bay Business Men's Association also ordered Secretary Powell to take the matter up with the Commission.

RABIES THREATEN

DREAD DISEASE TRAVELS TO THIS SECTION, IS REPORT

Brought to State by Infected Coyote Four Years Ago—Has Seven Symptoms

In the fall of 1910 a coyote carried the rabies across the border line of this state. The fatal disease has spread rapidly since that time. It has made itself manifest in dogs, cats, cows and horses. It is spreading from Eastern Oregon into this section of the state. This is the announcement that Dr. Taggart has just received from the Oregon State Board of Health.

There are seven symptoms of rabies in a dog. He becomes sullen, becomes restless, wanders away from home and evidences a strong desire to run. There is developed a tendency to snap or bite moving objects, often in a fury. The animal will refuse food and water, but may attempt to eat such things as rocks or leather. The voice changes, becomes a hoarse, high-pitched sort of a half bark, half growl. There commences the gradual paralysis of the limbs.

The reports corrects several mistaken theories about rabies. One is "a rabid dog does not froth at the mouth and does not always have fits," and another, that a mad dog will not always "throw a fit" if water is placed before him.

Seven Types of Rabies

There are seven types of rabies. Some animals become furious. In dumb rabies the lower jaw is paralyzed and early drops down. The animals acts then as if it had a bone in its mouth.

The average life of an animal suffering from the rabies is from 48 hours to eight or nine days. The incubation period of this disease, though may extend from seven days to seven months.

Once the poison of the rabies is introduced into a system it becomes more venomous than that of a rattlesnake, mortality in these cases being 100 per cent.

Innoculation is from the saliva of the stricken animal. It is necessary for this to get beneath the skin. Infection may be caused by a dog licking his master's hand, should there be a cut on it. A bite through clothes is not as serious as on the bare skin.

Once bitten the subject should have the wound at once cauterized with nitric acid and hurried at once to place where Pasteur treatments can be given.
