

In Society

CONTRIBUTIONS concerning social happenings, intended for publication in the society department of The Times, must be submitted to the editor not later than 6 o'clock p. m., Friday of each week. (Exceptions will be allowed only in cases where the events occurred later than the time mentioned.)

PERSONAL notices of visitors in the city, or of Coos Bay people who visit in other cities, together with notices of social affairs, are gladly received in the social department. Telephone 133. Notices of club meetings will be published and secretaries are kindly requested to furnish same.

THE FAIRIES

You wonder where the fairies dwell
To tell you what you ask
Is quite an easy task.
They live and work each fairy spell
In baby's eyes
When glad surprise
Wakes up the tenderness that sleeps
Within your heart.
They play a most important part
Where careful Mother Nature keeps
The various hues,
The pinks and blues,
To tint the flowers
For golden hours
In May and June.
They teach the birds
Songs lacking words
But rich in tune.
They chase the clouds across the sky;
Incite the breeze
To stir the trees;
Provide the clover for the bees
With ease.
Make kisses play with bread and cheese;
Create the buttercup—
With honey fill it up.
And every day
Some little fay
Will teach some happy child to play.
When joyous laughter's ringing out,
Be sure a fairy's thereabout.
And strange it is, when'er they roam
The fairies always are at home.
And that is why without a doubt
We never, never find them out!

HE was a plain-looking woman with an average education and ordinary personality. She came from a middle-class family. So you see she had no special beauty, charm or fortune to recommend. She would not have been surprised had fate marked her for a spinster.

Therefore she, even more than her friends was surprised beyond words when one of the wealthiest brokers in New York asked her to become his wife. She was so abashed that it took her six months or more to realize what had happened, and their anxious friends composed themselves in the thought that the wealthy broker would realize that he had made a mistake in taking this kind of a woman for a wife before a year had passed.

The first year of the marriage was marked by the fact that in spite of their wealth they were both happy and even more in love than when they married. They celebrated their tenth, twentieth and even twenty-fifth anniversary. He showed himself prouder of his wife and their affection than he was of his fortune and his successes.

This seemed paradoxical, for he appeared to be a materialistic type of man. His friends thought he was too greatly absorbed in stocks and money matters to value affection even in his wife.

The entire mystery of their love and happiness was cleared in this toast he drank to his wife at their anniversary celebration:

"I am a happy man because I love my home and you. You were the first and only woman who taught me what love meant and retained the love you called into being.

"This you have done by your untold devotion, by your sunny disposition and abundance of common sense. These qualities which every man looks for in the woman he weds, because he nearly always lacks one and sometimes all of them. Though I am one of those unfortunate men who had none of these qualities until you gave me the superabundance of your virtues.

"You have proved to me through twenty-five years of daily experience that love is the greatest thing in the world. Everything else is nothing compared with the love which can exist between husband and wife.

"I wish to tell our lady friends who are with us that if they want to hold their husband's affections they can do more with a charming smile and common sense than with handsome gowns and costly jewels.

"Do not forget, women, that you can look well in your husbands' eyes if you are always cheerful and make the best of conditions. We men do not always make the best of things because we have many things to try us, and some of us are naturally bad-tempered. You women by tact and poise can iron out the wrinkles and make our lives sweet and worth while. That is what my wife has done for me and what every woman can do for her husband if she makes an earnest effort. This is my toast to my wife and advice to all the ladies present."

WED IN ST. PAUL

Friends of Rev. R. N. Lewis who resigned her pastorate of the United Brethren Church of North Bend some time ago have been apprised of her marriage to Rev. Waymyre in St. Paul, Minn. They will return shortly to make their home in North Bend where they will be heartily welcomed by a host of friends. The wedding came as a surprise to the people of this community where Mrs. Waymyre had worked faithfully in her field.

SOLVE-ROSA NUTTIALS

Regarding the wedding of two Bandon young people, Miss Esther Solve and Archie H. Rosa, the following excerpt from Bandon Recorder will be of interest in Marshfield circles:

"At the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Kausrud in this city a quiet but happy wedding took place at high noon yesterday. The contracting parties were Miss Esther Solve a sister of Mrs. Kausrud and the groom, Archie H. Rosa, son of Col. R. H. Rosa and well and favorably known in Bandon.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Horsfall of the Episcopal church.

The bride was attired in white organdie with a shower bouquet of white American Beauty roses and asparagus fern. The house was decorated in green with white roses.

Only relatives on both sides were present, the single exception being Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott, of Marshfield.

Following the nuptials a dainty luncheon was spread. When this was done justice to, there was haste to catch the afternoon boat up the river to Marshfield as the final destination where the Speedwell was taken for a honeymoon in San Francisco and at the exposition.

The bride was one of the graduates last year of the Bandon High school, and has of late been employed in the Golden Rule Store.

The young couple start out with the promise of a bright future and have the best wishes of all for happiness and prosperity."

M. E. BROTHERHOOD

On Wednesday afternoon of this week the Methodist Brotherhood held their regular monthly business meeting at the church hall at which time it was decided that the brotherhood would take charge of the morning service on Sunday, June 27th. A WORD TO THE NEWLY-WEDS

Quality furnishing will give you ideal surroundings and make your new home the cozy little spot that you have pictured in the courtship days. You know how easy it is to mar the attractiveness of a room by the wrong piece of furniture or failure to carry out the symmetry of the plan.

Let us furnish the home complete. Then your dream of the home you planned will not be shattered.

Nothing adds so much to the charm and coziness of a home as pretty floor coverings. Their luxurious soft colorings enhance the warmth of the home spirit which bespeaks a cordial and ready welcome. Even though the furniture may be nice, it does not appear to best advantage without this necessary setting

We are only too glad to serve you and give you the benefit of our experience.
