TALK CLEAN MILK SPEECH IS MADE BY ROOSEVELT

DAIRYMEN HEAR INTERESTING ADDRESSES TODAY M. S. Shrook and G. H. Fullenwider Well Received—Give Practical Points in Their Talks

Cows in their original wild state were not high producers of butter fat. Man, by science and his skill, has gradually brought the amount up and it is still growing. Continual care must be exercised on the animals will slip back into their old ways, declared M. S. Shrook of the state food commission. In his address this morning at the Chamber of Commerce...

Should Cooperate He advocated the buying of good sires on a cooperative plan, that is, for several dairymen of a neighborhood to each put in a small share toward securing a good sire. "It's the best investment you or any other dairymen could make," he said. Tillamook has poorer herds than Coos but gets better results because of the cooperation of her dairymen, said Mr. Shrook. He pointed out the fact they now have 18 cheese factories there under one head. Efforts are continually made to find labor saving devices. The problems are studied out and by this method it is figured that $25,000 is saved annually with another $5,000 added from the better use of the milk.

Japan's Strength "China offers an even more perfect parallel to the condition to us. Fifty years ago Japan and China occupied substantially the same positions as regards the world at large. Japan now stands abreast of the leading civilized nations of the world her progress having been on the whole more remarkable than that of any other nation known to history. This is not merely due to her development of fighting efficiency, for the history of Turkey has shown that mere fighting efficiency by itself will not save a nation from ruin. But it is no less true that without fighting efficiency, all other national efficiency amounts to a house built on the sand. Japan's progress would have been absolutely impossible if it had not included progress in fighting efficiency exactly as in industrial and social efficiency.

China's Position "China on the other hand, had for generations been trained to regard peace as the most desirable of all aims and to look down upon war and soldiers with the most intense and serious disfavor. She has acted on the theory that the worst peace was better than the best war, and therefore she has suffered all the evils of the worst war and the worst peace. The average Chinaman took the view that China was too proud to fight and in practice made evident his hearty approval of the sentiments of that abject pacifist song 'I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier,' a song which should have as a companion piece one entitled 'I Didn't Raise My Girl to Be a Mother,' approval of which of course deprives all men or women of all right of kinship with the soldiers and with the mothers and wives of the soldiers, whose valor and sacrifices we commemorate on the Fourth of July and on Decoration Day; a song, the singing of which seems incredible to every man and woman capable of being stirred to lofty and generous enthusiasm by the tremendous surge of Julia Ward Howe's Battle Hymn of the Republic; China has steadily refused to prepare for war. Accordingly China has had province after province lopped off her, until one-half of her territory is now under Japanese, Russian, English and French control.

Has Sunk Low "The professional pacifists, the peace-at-any-price, non-resistance, universal-arbitration people are now seeking to Chinify this country. While the best people in China are painfully endeavoring to raise the new China to a position of international respect, well-meaning people here are doing their best to reduce this country to the level of impotence to which the old China has sunk—because for generations the moral fibre of the Chinese people has been closely eaten into by the doctrines of the professional pacifists, so that she has shown herself incapable during the last 30 years of preparing herself against war and for self-defense.

ARE COWS HEALTHY? SEEMINGLY WELL ANIMALS OFTEN FOUND TUBERCULAR J. L. Smith Says Veterinarian Will Send Men Here to Make Tests. Free This Summer

Are any Coos and Curry County cows infected with tuberculosis? And if so, what per cent? How general is it? What means should be used to stamp it out? All these are questions brought before the dairymen for the first time principally because of the visit here of M. S. Shrook and G. H. Fullenwider, representatives of the state food commission. The subject of the tuberculosis test was brought up on the suggestion of J. L. Smith, county agriculturalist. State Veterinarian W. H. Lytle constantly has a squad of inspectors in the field. They travel to all parts of Oregon. They examine herds free of charge. Not only that, but should any animal be condemned, these men see that the owner is well recompensed by the state for the loss.

Bring Inspector Here Mr. Smith expects to have a tuberculin tester come here. He already has sent several letters touching on the subject. "But our cows are free of this disease," exclaimed one dairymen today, quite astonished to think even of having tuberculosis in his herd. "Are you sure?" was the quick rejoinder. "Some of the healthiest-looking herds have been found contaminated. The time to keep your herd free is to watch for a start." And so that is true. A man in here now to apply the tuberculin test could pick out what animals are infected and get them hurriedly away from the other cows of the herd before they, too, become tubercular. There is work here for one man during the rest of the summer, said Mr. Smith. The test takes of least 16 hours, though a large herd can be tested at one time.

BRINGS UP AQUARIUM Thirty-five varieties of fish on one line were found recently off Newport when the 2,000 foot stout cord was hauled back aboard the gasoline boat Ollie S. Ten sharks were found sporting about on the end of sharp-pointed hooks. The line was brought in and exhibited at Newport. Fishermen aboard the boat had gone out seeking halibut. Two thousand feet of line was dropped in 250 feet of water, with a hook every six feet on the cord. When hauled aboard the following are some of the varieties of fish found: Shark, halibut, wolf-fish, rattfish, dogfish, cod, ling, red snapper, salmon, octopus and starfish.

TIMBER SALE BIG COOS BAY IN LEAD

LARGE TRACT REPORTED TRANSFERRED BY C. A. SMITH SHIPS MUCH LUMBER TO CALIFORNIA PORT

Amount Said to Have Been Paid for Land is $750,000, Reports State. More Went From This Place Than From Any Other Harbor On the Coast

That the sale of $750,000 worth of timber belonging to C. A. Smith has been consummated appears now to be a certainty. The timber in Linn County which is reported to have been sold is said to be the tract at Alsea Bay. Referring to the deal a Portland paper says: "E. J. Young of Madison, Wis., left for the east Friday night after arranging for the purchase of approximately 12,000 acres of timber land in Linn County from the trustees of the creditors of the C. A. Smith Lumber company, of Minneapolis and Coos Bay. The transfer of ownership is said to involve a consideration of about $750,000, part of which is said to have been advanced, it is understood.

NEW ROAD TAPS BIG TRACT OF TIMBER Prediction Made That Siuslaw River Country Will Show a Rapid Development

(Special to The Times.) EUGENE, Ore., July 21.—The construction of the north and south jetties at the mouth of the Siuslaw, will open the gateway to an Oregon community which within 10 years will have a population of 50,000 people, according to E. J. Adams, of the Harbor Sound Improvement company. The engineers in charge estimate that the jetties will be extended far enough into deep water to insure a depth of 24 to 28 feet at average tide. With this improvement, which will be made jointly by the Government and the Port of Siuslaw district spending dollar for dollar, ocean shipping will be restored on an extensive scale and vessels capable of carrying upwards of 3,000,000 feet of lumber can sail from tidewater to all parts of the world.

Big Timber Stand. The Siuslaw, Mr. Adams predicts, is destined to become the Grays Harbor of Oregon, offering even greater inducements to the investor. Tributary to this port there are 34,000,000,000 feet of standing timber, the greater portion still owned by individuals. Three large timber producing plants are promised on the restoration of normal conditions.

Commissioners Order Quarry Near Myrtle Point Opened—New Bridge on the Middle Fork John Dotson to Take Charge—Quashes Suit and Long Complaint Filed Last Week

It has been decided to eliminate the land grant lands altogether from the assessed valuation on which the proposed good roads bond issue in Coos County is to be based. This will leave the maximum issue $375,000 and it is understood that the petitions will be for this amount. P. M. Hall-Lewis, county roadmaster who was here from Coquille today estimated that $250,000 would surface the road from Marshfield to Coquille.

Treat Bridge Timbers Mr. Hall-Lewis has also decided that all bridge timbers henceforth shall be treated with preservatives to increase the life of the material. The first to be treated will be on the new bridge to be put on the middle fork of the Coquille.
