CENTRAL AVENUE SAVINGS

Many Picnickers.—A large number of the younger set Coos Rivered Sunday.

Out on an Outing.—A large delegation of our prominent citizens Sundayed in Bandon. A lively time was had.

Harsh Luck.—Will Chandler's old dog "Sandy" got into a fight with another dog today and not only got licked but also fetched fleas from him.

The Weather.—It looks like a shower at this writing. LATER.—It has showered since we wrote the above but the weather is fair as we go to press.

Telephone Etiquette.—Frank Coohan wants to know what to do when Central says "I am ringing them," before you tell her the number, and wants to know what it is a sign of when, after you talk to your party for five minutes or so, Central cuts in and says, "Party couldn't wait."

What is Wanted.—Jay Doyle dropped into the Booster office one day this wk. and asked us if we could take old clothes in exch. for subscriptions which we told him we wouldn't. We always have more old clothes than we can wear out in the next 10 yrs. What we need is new clothes.

Help Uncle Sam.—Hugh McLain, our accommodating P. M. asks us to request that the patrons of the P. O. Mail more mail matter at the post office than they have been doing recent or else his next quarterly report will make a terrible poor showing with the P. O. Dept. at Washington. Hugh says the sale of stamps lately has been terrible poor.

CHEER UP

Let smiling be your mission, grin, and do not be afraid! For a sunny disposition casts all trouble in the shade.

SMILE-A-WHILE

A FREAK IN TYPE.

HERE is a line of type that reads exactly the same from either end:

"Able was I ere I saw Elba." This remarkable sentence is credited to Napoleon Bonaparte, and it is said there is not another line of type in the world that reads the same from either end that equals it.

SMILE-A-WHILE

AN AWFUL AFFLICTION

"It must be an awful affliction for a singer to realize that she has lost her voice," observed John Ferguson in a philosophic mood.

"May be" remarked John Goss. "But it is a greater affliction when she has lost her voice and doesn't realize it."

CREATES CONSTERNATION

Absence of Gen. E. Cook From Moose Meeting Causes Considerable Worry—Is Explained

For the second time in the history of his membership in the Moose Lodge, our fellow citizen, Councilman Geo. E. Cook, who also holds the honor of being secretary of that organization, failed to show up at the meeting this week. Thereupon Mel Duncan reported that Brother Cook must have sustained a broken leg or something more serious and the sick committee was arranging to send flowers the next day when Our George appeared on the scene. He bashfully announced that he had gone to his store the night before to do a little book work before going to lodge and had picked up a paper and while reading it had fallen asleep. It is needless to say that it was not The Booster that he was reading, but it was possibly a sleepy contempt.

PERSONAL MENTION.

ARTHUR K. PECK took lunch with Ben Fisher the other day and they talked about the other lawyers.

DAVE STAFFORD says "I will admit I have lost a good deal of my hair, but I get some comfort out of the fact that I still have my vermillion appendix."

L. L. THOMAS who is generally on the sick list is on a sicker list than usual this week being as he had a set back as a result of his strenuous trip to Bandon the first of the wk.

GEO. R. ANDERSON has been appointed assistant advertising manager of The Booster and may be expected to ginger things up. He has adopted the slogan "Don't be a Titewad."

FRANK COHAN is expected home from Portland in a day or two and when he arrives we may expect something lively doing. Frank always brings home a lot of new ideas when he goes to the metropolis.

FRED WEAVER is already planning on his annual hunting trip to Brewster Valley. In fact with Fred it is just one doggone hunt after another. He is either hunting customers or hunting dollars on hunting for a hunt most all the time.

BEN CHANDLER while chopping down a tree on the lot where he is building his new house chopped into a nail which somebody had drove into the tree and nicked his axe to such an extent that it took three hours solid work to grind out the nick on the grindstone. Ben says if he could just get hold of the friend in human form who dray that nail into that tree he would shake 'em until their teeth rattled. Thayer Grimes says he didn't do it.

PECULIAR DISAPPEARANCE

Two Well-known and Popular Young Men Create Sensation by Leaving City Without Notice

Last Monday afternoon Jay Doyle and A. K. Peck, two of our leading young sasslety men, did everything but turn in a call for the police or fire department in their strenuous efforts to locate their pals, Midge Welsh and Claude Thompson. Whether they wanted them for a four-o'clock pink tea or for a set of tennis or croquet they did not announce. The unexplained absence caused more worry as the shuffles of eventide settled o'er the bay without any word from Midge or Claude. Thereupon the telephone was called into play and other search made, said search continuing late. About 11 a. m., the missing ones are said to have been located by the glow of a camp fire on South Coos River, where all had left the morn before.

F. D. FLETCHER threatens to bring suit for libel against our esteemed contempt, The Times, because of the picture it printed of him which was taken at Bandon. "Fletch" says his face looks as if it was made out of flour that is sold by A. T. Haines and the yeast didn't work. When Haines reads this he'll probably sue Fletcher for libel. Here's a chance for some attorneys to put their card in The Booster's professional directory and boost their business.

AUTO ROBE LOST.

The other evening while coming home from Bandon where I had been playing in the band, I had the terrible calamity to lose an auto robe out of the auto somewhere between Bandon and Marshfield, but I don't know just where. All I know is that I had that auto robe when I left Bandon and I didn't have it when I arrived in Marshfield, so it stands to reason that I lost it along the road. It was a summer auto robe and I only bought it a few days before and paid $2.99 for it. Now, I hate to lose this auto robe like everything and I will thank whoever picks it up to leave it at the Booster office, where I will call for it. I know somebody must of pickt it up because I went over the road bright and early the next morning and couldn't find it.

I wish to say that whoever finds this auto robe and returns it to me will get theirself liberally thankd. If somebody finds and keeps it, then take warning, for in that case the law must take its course.

If I would find an auto robe of yours I would return it to you at once providing I knowed to who it belonged and I would expect you to do the same by me.

Yours for the lost auto robe,
D. C. VAUGHAN, D.D.
