WOMAN IN THE CASE

What's the first thing people say when a man goes wrong? There is one conclusion they who make up the throng Always straightway come to when any man goes tumbling down— When he robs his fellow-men, when the ones who praise him frown— When his honor and his pride end in bitterness and shame. All his former friends decide that some woman was to blame. When a man his risen high, when he wins applause, Do the people reason why, do they guess the cause? Do they tell each other then that some woman made him great, That for her, with sword or pen, tolling early, striving late, He had will and strength to win, casting every doubt aside? Why blame woman for the sin if the virtue is denied? By S. E. Kiser.

FRANCIS had been born on the first of August, in a town in Maryland. His mother called him Francis because the writer of our "Star-Spangled Banner" had been born on that date, and she was proud of her country-man, and felt that she could not honor his memory more than by naming her son after him.

Francis had two celebrations every summer, one on the fourth of July, and the other on his birthday, August 1. That he loved the Star-Spangled Banner was but natural, and his little colonial suit was let out in the seams, and brushed up every year, for the great day.

Francis lived in the suburbs, and the birthday party took place in the garden near a tiny lake. Can you imagine the splendid times he and his little friends had. Usually the first of August was too warm for romping, so Francis and his mother arranged some quiet games. Here are two of the paper and pencil games they they made for the boy's eleventh birthday party.

The first was called a country game, and a dozen blank cards were ornamented with drawings of wasps and bees, and the word "sting" on one side, and numbers from 1 to 12 with these questions next to them, on the other.

1. A sting that cures fatigue.
2. A sting that cures hunger?
3. A sting that tides your room?
4. A sting that cooks your meal?
5. A sting that makes you laugh?
6. A sting that foolish people indulge in?
7. A sting that browns your bread?
8. A sting that makes you read this page through?
9. A sting that tries?
10. A sting that adapts?
11. A sting that spoils your tools?
12. A sting that shop-keepers dislike?

Answers: 1. Resting. 2. Feasting. 3. Dusting. 4. Roasting. 5. Jestin. 6. Boasting. 7. Toasting. 8. Interesting. 9. Testing. 10. Adjusting. 11. Rusting. 12. Trusting.

Francis liked the idea of this game, for he loved the country, with its insects and birds, but he thought that several of its city cousins ought to have a game to suit their tastes.

"Can't you scare up a city game?" he asked his mother.

"I think I can," she said. "Hand me another dozen cards." These she labeled "A City Game," and sketched a "Skyscraper" building on each one. On the other side she wrote the following 12 questions. The answer to each ending in "CITY" or in letters sounding like city.

1. What is the city of learning?
 2. What is the city of emmity?"
 3. What is the city of shrewdness?
 4. What is the city of truth?
 5. What is the city of doubt.
 6. What is the city of greed?
 7. What is the city of ostentation?
 8. What is the city of spring?
 9. What is the obstinate city?"
 10. What is the city of inclination?
 11. What is the animated city?
 12. What is the plain city?
- Answers: 1. Univer-sity. 2. Anti-mo-sity. 3. Saga-city. 4. Vera-city. 5. Purple-city. 6. Vora-city. 7. Pomposity. 8. Elasti-city. 9. Pertina-city. 10. Propen-sity. 11. Viva-city. 12. Simpli-city.
