A BUSINESS

ITY government is gradually eapolis Journal, coming to be looked upon as a business and it is securing its experts just like any line of commercial endeavor. In launching the commission-manager plan of government it was feared that it might be many years before any American town would consent to having its best paid office go to any but home . talent, and until this provincialism . could be broken down, the protes- . sional city manager, giving his life . to the science of municipal administration and advancing from the managership of small cities to larger ones at increases in salary, would be impossible. Happily, however, this provincialism, while giving the local politicians a talking point, has proven to be largly a bugaboo. The first thing Sumter did was to advertise for applications for the office of city manager, and it hired one of the men who responded to the proclamation. Dayton began by offering the job to Goethals at Panama. Jackson was advertising recently by way of a paragraph handed to the Associated Press. Hickory put a litgineering News Still more astonishing, practically Usually very few local men are considered. In There sunset floods with gorgeous deed, it often happens that none apply. In at least one case where a well-qualified local man was available, the fact seemed to be against him. Citizens as a rule accept the idea of an important manager as a part of the spirit of the plan and criticism ceases on that point after the adoption of the charter.

The transferability of managers from city to city also is already an established fact. Springfield hired the former city manager of Staunton. Va. Civil engineers, as a rule, have knocked about the world a good deal and have been forced to learn how to get along with people, while at the same time they are trained in precision and method. The profession comes as near to filling the bill as any, although, of course, the training is not broad enough to thing better must eventually be ler in a philosophic mood. found.
