With The Men And Women Who Make The Movies

TWO NEW MUTUAL PHOTOPLAY STARS

"Apollo" and "Nero," World-Famous Performers, Who Will Shortly Be Seen in Horsely Animal Plays, to Be Released in the Mutual Program.

"Apollo" and "Nero" are the names of these two magnificent specimens of the African jungle kings, who will shortly make their bow to Mutual audiences as full-fledged screen actors. They are members of the celebrated collection of performing animals, owned by the Bostock Jungle and Film Company, of Los Angeles, Cal., who, early in September, will release the first of many novel animal motion pictures through the Mutual Film Corporation. These films, as members of the world-famous Bostock collection of jungle animals, toured the globe several times and appeared for several seasons at Dreamland Park, Coney Island. They have been taught to perform marvelous feats by their famous trainer, M. Gay, who will appear with them in the screen plays they are to be presented in.

Fania Marinoff, Broadway Star, Who Will Shortly Make Her Bow to Mutual Audiences in a Stirring Drama Produced by the Gaumont Company.

Miss Fania Marinoff, noted Broadway star and now a member of the Gaumont Company's studios, will make her initial bow to Mutual audiences shortly in a stirring drama called "The Unsettled Isles." In this photoplay, the first to be released by the Gaumont Company through the Mutual, as the result of an agreement recently signed with President John R. Frouder, of the Mutual Film Corporation, Miss Marinoff will be seen in the role of a West Indian princess, and will be supported by an exceptionally strong cast of Gaumont players.

Miss Marinoff is a strikingly beautiful and talented young woman.

FAMOUS IN JOURNAL COMEDIES

George Ovey, Famous in America, Will Be Featured.

George Ovey, famous for his many successes in comedy roles on the legitimate stage and recognized as "the funniest man in America," will be featured in the exceptionally novel and well-timed comedies to be produced by the Century Film Company, of Manhattan, N. Y., for the Mutual program.

Ovey is a natural born comedian, in whose every action stirred audiences will find a laugh. One of Ovey's chief assets is his originality and his ability to produce the most ludicrous roles in comedy. He is able to keep an audience in a state of unrelenting laughter.

Ovey was playing an important comedy role with a large traveling company, when he was recruited upon to transfer his many talents to studio work by Milton H. Fisher, chief comedy director for Mr. Horatio.

George Ovey, America's Funniest Man, Mutual's Newest Comedian.

Ovey began his stage career with Beach & Bowers. Among his latest hits was "The Funniest Man in America." "A Knight in a Blue Coat," "Forty-Eve," "The Funniest Man in America," and "The Funniest Man in America," were his greatest successes. Through the Mutual Film Corporation, Ovey will be featured in a comedy role in each of these pictures.

The first of these comedies, in which Ovey will be featured, will be released in the Mutual program August 19, according to present plans.

GUESS AGAIN! IT'S NOT VON BERNSTORFF

Stelking Resemblance, Nevertheless, to Kaiser's Envoy.

Morgan Jones, celebrated character man of the Thalhouser (Mutual) studios of New Rochelle, N. Y., enjoys a distinct reputation as an expert in the art of make-up. In a recent part he was mistaken for Count von Bernstorff, American representative of his Imperial Majesty, the Emperor of Germany, in "The Maker of Guns," a recent Thalhouser (Mutual) release.

which in a heart-touching photoplay, dealing with an important international situation—the trafficking in ammunition and war supplies—Jones appears in the role of a Jewish diplomatic representative, visiting America for the purpose of purchasing big guns. In order to avoid a disclosure as to how he came to be in America, Jones spent many hours watching motion pictures of the Ambassador and in studying his latest portraits. Needless to say, his efforts were more of a success than even he had anticipated.

MAKING 'EM LAUGH IS SERIOUS BUSINESS

Toughest Job in the World, Says Ford Sterling.

What is the toughest job in the world?

ing roles he has created in Keystone comedies compel millions of photoplay fans to laugh till their sides ache every day in the year.

"Take it from me," said the popular humorist recently, "making a laugh is the toughest job ever created. Ask any one who has tried it, and I'll wager they will agree with me. On the speaking stage it is an easy matter to pull a laugh once in a while, but in screen work it is a serious business. Through the eye everything else, it becomes a habit after awhile."

HER 'LITTLE' PRESENT PROVED A TINY CALF

"Reliance" Was Sent to Melam Cooper by Adoring Texas Fan.

"In appreciation of your excellent work in the various photoplays I have been fortunate enough to see you in, I am sending you a little token," was the gist of a letter recently received by Melam Cooper, one of the celebrated young stars of the Reliance-Melam (Mutual) studios, at Hollywood, Cal. It had been forwarded by an ardent movie fan, residing in a Texas prairie town.

Some days later, Miss Cooper was notified that a box addressed to her was being held in the express station. Anxious to learn what the box held for her, she jumped into an auto and hurried to the station. The admiring fan's gift of appreciation to Miss Cooper was a tiny black calf, with a black and white spotted forehead, "Reliance," as Miss Cooper calls her new pet, is now temporarily at home in the large and grassy yard in the rear of the bungalow occupied by the little star and her mother.
