EUROPEAN WAR ONE YEAR AGO TODAY

Sept. 15, 1914. The French ministry announces that the allied armies are in close contact with the Germans on the whole frontier north of the river Aisne and the west and south of Rheims, and the latter place is reoccupied by the allies.

BABY CONTEST GOOD

THE baby contest at the Myrtle Point county fair created much interest throughout the entire county. There came near being some absolutely perfect babies and it was a fine showing of youngsters that was made.

THE WAR AND LUMBER

THE present far-reaching conflict has been an incentive to the development and growth of certain American industries, stimulating them to a condition unprecedentedly above normal.

glum and with Germany, and in the month of May, 1915, lumber, wood and manufactured timber exported to the world had declined to a product worth 47 per cent of that for the same month one year before.

The statement has been made by competent authority that in normal times the export trade absorbs 19 per cent of our total timber cut. This trade is practically at a standstill, and the effect, acute abroad, is felt in various ways at home by a great industry which in the eight years past has known a period of unparalleled depression and too close competition.

Such conditions bear directly upon the future of a great resource. If normal trade conditions and equitable prices mark the culmination of the war, the effect must be to stabilize and bring about distinct improvement in our National forest policies, for the lumberman should be the forester in application.

WITH THE TOAST AND THE TEA

GOOD EVENING That which is won ill will never wear well, for there is a curse attends it which will waste it.

PROMISED LAND

The Promised Land's where Joy will stay And Love knows not the time o' day.

DAILY ADVICE

Never loaf around while other people are busy. They may not say anything while you are there, but you are going to get a good cussing as soon as you close the door behind you.

TOUGH

It is a great injustice that Man can't pay what he owes. But, while his income stands pat, His out-go grows and grows.

when he wishes his hair would quit growing and give his whiskers a chance but later on he wishes his whiskers would quit growing and give his hair a chance.

THE OLD GROUCH SAYS

"The wedding kiss is loaded with dynamite but the tin wedding kiss is loaded with cold mush."

STORY FOR THE DAY

The conversation had taken a philosophical turn when Ed Jones remarked: "There's something in this world besides money."

QUESTION FOR THE DAY

Why pray to be delivered from temptation and then go around looking for it.

Wealth's Debt to Humanity

THE will of James H. Allen, a St. Louis millionaire, which was filed for probate the other day, is a remarkable document. The will is in the nature of a sermon, setting forth Mr. Allen's views regarding Christianity and the obligations of wealth, as follows: "To whom it may concern: "This is my only and last will and testament. I have never made a will before.

the Lord, who has promised us if we love, serve and obey Him, that no temptation shall befall us, but that He will provide an escape. I have tried to set my children a proper example to be servants of the one true God and in Jesus Christ, his son. All that we have already belongs to Him and should be used for His honor and glory, even for a useful life here and a home in heaven when this life is over.

Municipal Water and Lights

(From Roseburg Review) IN a number of cities in Western Oregon the voters have voted bonds and water and light plants have been installed.

each a dividend is paid in the added health and comfort of its citizens and in each one of these towns the income from the plant pays the upkeep of the same, and interest on the bonds and some more.

Many years ago Portland was authorized to issue bonds for a water supply to be obtained near the base of Mt. Hood. The work was completed and now Bull Run water is the pride of the city and has probably done more to build up the city and induce people to locate there than any and all other inducements offered.

In the little city of Riddle the city-owned water system pays for its upkeep and the interest on the bonds issued to construct it. Every municipal water plant in the state is a good investment from a pecuniary point of view and adds to the health and comfort of the people who are served with water by the city.
