

Made from the right crude

The Jury of Awards at both San Francisco and San Diego Expositions found an oil made from California asphalt-base crude, Zerolene. The fact, too, that such unbiased authorities as a U. S. Naval Engineer, engineers of the Packard and Ford Motor Companies, and others, have also gone on record in favor of oils made from asphalt-base crude—in accord with the decision of the Exposition Juries—proves that Zerolene is made of the right crude, and made right.

The trouble of a tailor at a logging camp are told as follows in the Coquille Sentinel:

I. Rosenberg, a tailor of this city, made a complaint in Justice Stanley's court here against Eugene Grant, foreman at Camp 7 of the Smith-Powers Logging company, charging him with assault. The defendant claimed that Rosenberg was in the bunk house at that camp soliciting orders, contrary to the rules of the camp, forbidding soliciting and peddling which are publicly posted about the grounds; and that after telling Rosenberg to leave two or three times he emphasized the command by striking him. In this statement Grant was substantiated by A. H. Powers.

Justice Stanley reserved his decision to consult the authorities.

COOS COUNTY APPLES BRING GOOD PRICE

Gravenstein Raised in Myrtle Point Section Find Ready Market in San Francisco

Gravenstein apples, raised in the Myrtle Point Section, commanded a good price on the San Francisco market this season. About a month ago W. E. Hartley, one of the leading South Fork orchardists, shipped 150 boxes to San Francisco and received a good cash price and later several letters as to whether he could furnish the same house more apples just like the ones he had sent. About two weeks ago Mr. Hartley shipped another 150 boxes and at the same time Geo. Mullen of the North Fork shipped 120 boxes. The apples brought Messrs. Hartley and Mullen about 90 cents per box f. o. b. Myrtle Point.

The commission firm that handled the apples is making a strong bid for more of the Coos county Gravensteins in 1916.—Myrtle Point Enterprise.

NAME IS CHANGED

Rowland, on Powers Road, Will be Known as Gayland

The name of the Rowland Prairie station on the Smith-Powers Logging Company's South Fork railroad has been changed from Rowland to Gayland. This change was made because there is another station on the Oregon Division of the South-Pacific system named Rowland, and since the Southern Pacific has taken over the Smith-Powers line, two stations by the same name on the same division would create more or less confusion.—Myrtle Point Enterprise.

When the Other Fellow Snores

By F. R. KIRK, (Riley)

Have you had an invitation out From a friend to spend the night; Where his wife had done the best she could To have the thing go right? Then your friend would crack a bottle, Yes, one, or two, or three; And all of you were talking, And your hearts were light and free.

Then have your friend lie back upon A couch against the wall And pay no more attention To what you said at all. How does it make you feel? You keep right on a-talking But you can't help feeling sore; When as you talk your dear old friend Lets out an awful snore. You tell his wife he's tired, so To let him rest in peace; But still you know his snoring wheels, They need a little grease. Don't it make you feel disgusted? But you dare not show you're sore, But you're satisfied in your own mind That you'll go there no more. Now will you?

But when you go home and get some sleep, And get up feeling fine; And wash and dress and eat, and then Go strolling down the line, Then meet your friend upon the street With face as hard as flint, And bawl him out in language That don't look good in print. He tries to make apologies But it only makes you sore, And you tell your friend to please go home, That that's the place to snore. Does he go?

Then he turns the table on you, And you put up such a roar When he proves to you at your house—once You started in to snore. So you kind of get together And then you both agree, That you won't tell his troubles If he lets your troubles be; Then you both go in to drink one glass Or two or three or four, And when you visit each other's house, It's a cinch we mustn't snore. And we don't.

OPERATING MIN

GOLD PROPERTY ON SIXES BEING WORKED

Visitors There Say Large Sums Are Being Spent and Prospects Seem Good One

An interesting story of the work at the gold mine on the Sixes River is told in the Bandon Western World, which says:

"Pat Hanrahan and Chas. Walker returned the latter part of the year from a trip to the Sixes River mines. They report that the new company is making many substantial improvements and are enthusiastic over the possibilities of the enterprise.

"The new company is going ahead with its development work in a thorough and scientific manner," said Mr. Hanrahan, "and if the gold is extracted in the quantities anticipated, it will mean the opening up of Curry County on a scale almost undreamed of now."

"Manager Thomas has a crew of 45 men at work clearing and building out the right of way for four miles and 20 feet of flume will furnish the necessary supply for the hydraulic machinery. The flume is four feet wide and three feet high and extends from Edlaon creek across the mountains to the mines which are about ten miles or less up the river from the county bridge. In order to supply the lumber necessary to build the flume and for other uses at the mines, the company is constructing a 10,000 board feet capacity sawmill. The mill and flume together will cost approximately $150,000. They have two camps established one at the mines and the other along the right of way of the flume. The camp at the mines is in permanent structures, while Hanrahan states, appear to be for lasting use. The cookhouse a neat building and the crews the best of everything to eat.

Many Bandon People.

"We were surprised to see a number of Bandon people employed there, said Mr. Hanrahan. There are at least a dozen or more of them, among whom is Ote Cronkhite, one of the best restaurant cooks who ever worked in Bandon.

"While Messrs. Hanrahan and Walker were at the mines several of the members of the company arrived from San Francisco, and deal was closed whereby the company became the owners of the 16 Dival/bisa dairy and stock ranch. The beef animals will be butchered to supply meat for the crews. The dairy cows will supply milk butter.

The History of the Mines

The mines are situated near mouth of Medicine Creek, a tributary of Sixes River, on the old Biss homestead. This place purchased by the present company for the sum of $37,000. In addition, they own or have options on considerable acreage. The company is quietly going along with its work without seeking publicity or attempting to sell stock. It is financed with San Francisco money and, according to the local men, is nothing along the lines of the Lakope proposition. Considerable quantities of gold have already been taken out but as yet the gravels have been barely scratched. Indications are that the gold supply of the grave is very extensive and that hundreds of thousands of dollars will be taken out before all of the gravel have been washed.
