CULMINATES MATCH STARTED 20 YEARS AGO IN EAST

Captain Frank Wyman, of Vega, Marries Miss Anna Millay—Went to School Together

Little Dan Cupid is a crafty fellow who never forgets. Twenty years ago he began weaving his spell way back in the little school house of Bowdoinham, Maine, about two of the pupils, and Saturday the romance was culminated with the marriage of Miss Anna Millay, of Bowdoinham, to Captain Frank Wyman, of the launch Vega. The ceremony took place in Coquille and the announcement of its coming now as a complete surprise to the many friends of the groom both on the bay and at South Inlet where he lives.

But very few close friends were aware of the event which was performed by the Rev. P. L. Shinton, of the Coquille Presbyterian church. The young couple returned to South Inlet and there have taken up their abode in Captain Wyman's home, which he has already prepared.

Today he said that there has been no regular celebration of the event but that he feared his friends might get extremely busy with tin cans and sundry other din makers tonight at South Inlet.

Went to School Together

Captain Wyman is formerly from Maine where he first met his wife. They went to the same school together and have been corresponding during the last three or four years, though all this time they did not meet until two months ago when Miss Millay stopped off here for a visit. She liked it so well that she decided to remain for good.

In the three years he has had charge of the Vega, plying between South Inlet and Marshfield, Captain Wyman has made a host of friends who will wish both himself and bride every success.

NEW MEMBERS JOIN THE BAPTIST CHURCH SUNDAY

Congregation Now Has Representatives at Twelve Points in County Outside of Marshfield

Eleven new members were received at the Sunday morning services in the Baptist Church. Most of them came from Broadbent and North Bend. The additions were the result of the field work done by Rev. G. LeRoy Hall.

This church now has 70 members at 12 different points in the county outside of Marshfield including Coquille, Myrtle Point, Broadbent, Powers, Bridge, Fairview, Sumner, North Inlet, Haines Inlet, Kentuck Inlet, Eastside and North Bend.

Rev. Mr. Foskett, the field missionary, the field secretary of the Baptists of Oregon, who is at present the acting pastor of the local Baptist Church, is organizing branch mission societies on each of these fields, co-ordinating them with the home church here. He is to hold a meeting for such purpose at Broadbent tomorrow evening and at Coquille Wednesday evening.

treaty agreement with Japan that China will confer with the Japanese minister and arrange for the opening of ports, the State Department officials and Mr. Hick have been in conference almost daily for several weeks as to the ports which will be thrown open to the world in Shantung and Inner Mongolia. The list is awaiting with much interest by business men familiar with trade in China.

Jehol, in Inner Mongolia, the ancient capital of China, is another well known city which the State Department has announced will not be opened. It is now of slight commercial importance as it is off the railway, five days caravan northwest of Peking. The Chinese officials are evidently working by process of elimination and their announcements up to date disclose the names of cities which will not be opened. No intimation has been given as to the ports which will be opened.

IF

(Not by Kipling)
If we planned and, planning, labored
To help others on their way;
If we sang and, singing, lessened
Frets and worries of the day;
If we did, and doing, lifted
Just a shadow from a friend;
Would we not, and others also
Happier be when day should end?

If we knew and, knowing, followed
Rules of kindness, paths of love;
If we hoped and, hoping, trusted
In the words of him above;
If we thought and, thinking, quoted
Only good of those we knew;
Would we not, and others also,
Have a heaven here below?

MUCH TIMBER CUT FROM NATIONAL FORESTS

Pacific Coast Reserves Have Furnished Material to Quite a Large Extent in Past Year

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 4.—According to statistics just compiled by the Forest Service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915, approximately 128,952,000 feet of timber was cut on the forests of Oregon, Washington and Alaska. Beside this, 14,493,000 feet was given, under free use permit, to settlers and others living in or near the National Forests. The amount of timber given away in Oregon was 12,122,000 feet, most of which was taken by settlers in or near Minam, Umattila and Wenaha forests in eastern Oregon.

Much Used in Alaska
The statement also shows that the forests of Alaska are furnishing a large amount of timber for local consumption. More than 37,000,000 feet, according to the Forest Service, was cut under sales contracts during the fiscal year in the two Alaska Forests, and it is estimated that the quantity cut under free use permit, amounts to at least 10 per cent of the quantity cut under sales. No figures are available on the Alaska free use, however, as residents of the Territory are allowed, on account of relative sparsity of population, to take all the timber they need for personal use without going through any formalities.

Free Use Privilege
Outside of Alaska, permits are issued to those entitled to share in the free use privilege, as a means of preventing its abuse and to regulate this form of utilization along lines which will tend to improve the forest conditions. The material taken by free-use permits is restricted largely to dead, insect infested, or diseased timber, thinnings, or inferior species.

Forest officers often set aside suitable areas from which those granted free use under the terms of the law may help themselves under certain general rules; but where green timber will be cut, the trees to be used are designated just as in all timber sales. The amount of free use material allowed individuals is limited to $20 worth yearly, or about 80 cords.

ENGLISH BIRTH RATE IS LOWER

London Newspaper Regards the Conditions Shown by Figures as Being Quite Alarming

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The recent returns on the British infant birth and death rate are characterized as "distinctly alarming" by the London Lancet.

"The continued fall in the birth rate, which has now reached the lowest level heretofore recorded, may have many explanations," the journal comments editorially, "but the factor of the deliberate limitation of families, whether from provident or selfish motives, can no longer be ignored."

The Lancet says that there has never been a time in England that employment has been so easy to obtain and so much money distributed among the poor through good wages and women's superation allowances, yet these very facts may have contributed to the increased infant mortality rate since they have given idle mothers more money to spend on drink. Epidemic disease is another factor in raising the rate, owing to the death of doctors and nurses new engaged in military hospitals.

As for the deliberate limitation of births, not only the middle and upper classes but the working class in late years are held to blame. Even the reports about the great numbers of war babies seem now to have been largely baseless.

DOLLAR DAY was a Big Success in Portland

IN Portland the "Big Dollar Day" Special Sale was under the Direction of the Chamber of Commerce and after it was over the following official report of the results of the day was published in the Chamber of Commerce News:

One department store reports Dollar Day sales increased 40 per cent over the same day last year and 20 per cent over the same day the previous week. They did not notice any material difference in other days of the week and believe it would be successful if this was put into effect twice a year.

One firm handling ladies' apparel claimed to have done an increased business of 300 per cent. They had anticipated a falling off for the succeeding day, but instead, the business showed an increase.

One cafeteria said that business had doubled on Dollar Day.

One of the barber shops, which had a special price, claimed to have increased their business 50 per cent.

One of the sporting goods houses showed an increase of 40 per cent, without any material difference on other days.

One jewelry house reports that although they did not sell much high-priced goods, there was a remarkable increase in the sales of values marked for one dollar. The management was very much pleased with the results.

One shoe store reported a 50 per cent increase on Dollar Day, with normal sales for the preceding and succeeding days of the same week.

One bank claimed a slight falling off of the deposits on the 23rd, but a marked increase on the following day, and they also report a material increase in deposits for the balance of the week. The bank official giving this information said it was his belief that Dollar Day has a tendency to create a shopping interest.

Another bank showed a large increase in the deposits on the 24th, and slight increase on the 25th.

The canvass among the smaller stores where articles of special value were sold almost unanimous in endorsement of Dollar Day in its results.

The jobbers assisted materially. In many cases the grocery-men were "cleaned up" on special bargains before night.
