

PASTOR A CLIMBER

REV. MONTGOMERY ONE OF BEST MOUNTAINEERS IN STATE

Was Visitor Here, Leaving Yesterday —Tells of Narrow Escape on Mt. Jefferson

How he stood crouching on a narrow shelf of rock, thousands of feet in the air while an avalanche of rock hurtled down from the top of Mt. Jefferson above him and his son, and then rattled down to the valley below, was told this week end by Dr. Andrew J. Montgomery, of Portland, who visited the Presbyterian churches of Coos county last week. He is an experienced mountain climber, having scaled practically every lofty peak in Oregon.

Rev. Montgomery was on his annual vacation. With a party of eight he started out to ascend Mt. Jefferson, approaching the lofty peak from an entirely new route that he and his son, William Montgomery, a junior in the state university, had figured out together.

Caught on Narrow Shelf

Within but a short distance of the topmost pinnacle the party came to the shelf, 40 to 50 feet in length, around which they would have to edge themselves to make the ascent. Rev. Montgomery and his son went out as scouts and it was here that the avalanche happened.

Right in the middle of the distance they both heard the noise and looked up. Caught there in the middle, with sure death behind them if they fell, the men clung for dear life to the precipice and ducked low. The rocks rattled over them and plunged on. Both men were hit severe blows on the shoulders by smaller rocks but were saved from broken bones because each carried a heavy coil of rope thrown over the shoulders that were hit.

Undeterred by the rocks Rev. Montgomery and his son went on and later brought the entire party to the mountain peak. Several times Rev. Montgomery has acted as guide for the Portland Mazamas, the mountain climbing club. He left yesterday for Eugene after his first trip to Coos Bay.

ASHLAND PEOPLE CIRCULATE PETITION

Take Steps Regarding the Disposition of The O. & C. Land in That Part of State

ASHLAND, Ore., Oct. 8.—The petition being circulated in Ashland relating to the further disposition of the unsold lands of the grant made to the Oregon & California Railroad company is being signed throughout Ashland.

There are 1,815,040 acres of land in Jackson county, of which 441,000 acres are under the grant of the Oregon & California and 607,324 acres are contained in the forest reserve. Only about 90,000 acres of tillable land are now being made to produce the county, state and national revenue in this vast domain.

The railroad lands have been withdrawn from sale since January 1, 1903, which has retarded its growth and development.

There is about $90,000 of delinquent taxes standing against the grant land of the Oregon & California.

ABOUT BANDOX PEOPLE

News of the City Told in the Western World

Robert Swan and family of Looking Glass, Oregon, were visitors to the local beach for several days recently.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Trendgold, who spent the summer on their homestead in the upper Four Mile section, moved to Bandon for the winter.

Harry Wright, grandson of Frank Willett, left on the Elizabeth for San Francisco, from where he will go to Los Angeles. He will operate an automobile there.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Atterburg and Mrs. Alfred Morris left for Portland where both ladies will undergo medical treatment at one of the large hospitals.

E. E. Wells, who resides on Oregon avenue, left for Olalla, Ore., on a business and pleasure trip. Mr. Wells will visit his sister, Sadie Wells, at Roseburg, before returning to Bandon.

Allen Neich of Bandon was found insane in the probate court at Coquille last week and immediately taken to Salem by guards from the state institution, who made a special trip to the county.

Mrs. J. A. Paulda has been on the sick list the past few days but is improving now. Mrs. Paulda was recently elected delegate from Bandon to the W. C. T. U. convention at Portland and her illness will prevent her from attending.

Mrs. Chas. Pollock and son, Max, left for Malheur county, Eastern Oregon where the Pollock family has a homestead. Mr. Pollock returned for a few days to finish matters pertaining to the sale of the store, and will join them later.
