ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

O. E. SULLEY, DELICATESSEN PROPRIETOR, SERIOUS

Swallow's Contents of Bottle of Carbolic Acid About Noon — Doctor Uses Stomach Pump

O. E. Sulley, until recently interested in the delicatessen store on Broadway between Central and Commercial avenues, attempted suicide shortly after noon today by swallowing most of the contents of a two ounce bottle of carbolic acid. He was found near Flanagan and Seventh streets by George Capps.

The man was removed to the police station and Dr. Houseworth used the stomach pump and at four o'clock the man was still alive though little hopes are expressed for his recovery.

Wife Was Injured

Mrs. Sulley was not first informed of the trouble but came rushing to the station at 2:30 p. m. She was injured and lamed in an accident in June and recently the store was forced to close, it is said on this account. It is estimated there were financial trouble and Mr. Sulley became discouraged.

YOUNG BOY IS LOST

EUGENE GILLENWATER COMING HERE WITH FOLKS

Two Lads Were in First Boat, Which Capsized — Came From Seattle and Anacortes

Eugene Gillenwater, the seven-year old boy who was among the victims of the Santa Clara, was en route here with his father and mother and six-year old brother, Hugh, to make his home on the Bay. They came from Seattle where they have lived for several years but formerly lived at Anacortes, Washington, where Mr. Gillenwater's folks reside.

Mr. Gillenwater has been employed as an engineer several years by the Barber Asphalt company and was recently with Warren Construction Company. He is an engineer and had heard that Coos Bay was a good place and decided to locate here. The family had no friends or relatives here.

Mr. Gillenwater said that the Santa Clara was badly damaged the first time she struck. Soon after the bump, he and his wife noticed debris coming up from underneath. These were probably parts of the rudder.

Criticizes Capt. Lofstedt Mr. Gillenwater is inclined to criticize Capt. Lofstedt for attempting to come at the low stage of the tide.

He said that Mrs. Gillenwater and the two boys went below when the notice of "women and children first" was given. In some manner, the two boys got into the first boat but Mrs. Gillenwater could not. She got into the second boat and Mr. Gillenwater was put in the same boat. He saw the first boat containing their two boys overturn.

When he got ashore, he found the youngest boy floating on his back and further search revealed Eugene floating face downward. He worked for hours but was unable to resuscitate him.

A few months ago, Mrs. Gillenwater took out insurance policies on the boys lives in the Prudential Insurance Company. He thinks that it was for $175. Mr. Gillenwater is a member of the Moose lodge. They are being cared for at The Chandler hotel.

Lodge Aids Them

Robert Dillard of the local Moose Lodge is today extending every possible aid to the A. S. Gillenwater family and said they might take charge of the funeral. Mr. Gillenwater is a member of the Moose.

NOTES OF THE WRECK

When the S. O. S. call was sent out from the Santa Clara Operator Williamson at the local station was first to respond. Vessels which were reached and answered were the Adeline Smith, the steamer Williamette and the steamship Rose City.

Pat Murphy was among those who was hurt. He was a passenger and sustained painful injuries to his back.

The story that a baby had been found in the water and placed on the shore this morning when investigated proved to be untrue.

Fred M. Stewart, night watchman on the Santa Clara was among those spilled out when the officers' boat tipped over. He swam ashore. He feels sure that the first mate and fireman and the mess boy, Jack Farrell, are lost.

When the accident occurred the bar dredge Michie went down the bay to give assistance but when near the bar it was seen that the Santa Clara was in too far for the dredge to reach her and the Michie returned after dark.

The Steamer Alert took a large number to the beach this morning and made another trip about 1:30. Scores of Coos Bay people went to the scene.

Miller on a warrant charging him with having liquor in his possession for illegal purposes. The search failed to reveal liquor of any kind, the strongest drink being pop.

The search was made as a result of numerous complaints being made to Mr. Liljeqvist about bootlegging at Powers and claims that Miller had been dispensing liquor under the guise of soft drinks.
