COOS RIVER SCHOOL NEWS

Our High School

(The Winning Song)

We are a happy high school
 With colors green and white
 We come to school to fill our brains
 And we'll do it right.

The "Millie" brings us from the north,
 She's first and stands the test,
 The Rainbow brings us from the south,
 And the Hope brings all the rest.

Chorus

Coos River High School
 High school, tra-la-la la.
 Coos River High School
 Tra-la-la-la la la la la
 And when you want to go to school
 Instead of going to town
 Just hustle up and pack your books
 And then just come right down

Our high school is the most modern
 Of any out of town
 Our rooms are all steam heated
 From garret to the ground
 Our water isn't carried
 In tin pails any more
 For now we drink from fountains
 That rise up from the floor.

In this wonderful high school
 Our teachers number four,
 But they are so divided
 That we don't need any more.
 Hurrah for the Coos River's green and white

The school we all love the best
 We'll cheer for it with all our might
 And the teachers do the rest.

The song contest between the pupils on the three different boats was won last Tuesday morning by the Millicoma. The prize was a pennant in the school colors, green and white. That afternoon it travelled proudly up the North Fork on the Millicoma's flagstaff.

The physical geography class of the high school has been plotting

PENS FOR WOMEN

GERTRUDE ATHERTON, the novelist, declares that writing is a woman's job. "Men," she declared, "ought to do things, not write about them. When a man does nothing but write his hands get soft and his character, too. He might as well be crocheting." Robert Louis Stevenson used to wish he had the strength to do the adventurous things he made his fiction heroes do, but it certainly never occurred to him that in writing "Treasure Island" and "Kidnapped," he was doing a woman's work.

Is it really true that it's more manly to do big deeds than to create characters who do them? If so, a hero in real life is greater than the Creator himself.

Heroes in real life, anyhow, usually owe most of their heroism to writers. Does any modern man or woman doubt that Homer was bigger and braver than all his Trojan heroes put together? Aeneas was "some hero," according to the Roman legend. But if ever there was an Aeneas in real life he did far less for Rome and the world than the mild and scholarly Virgil who sang about him.

"What is a 'deed,' anyhow? Isn't a man who writes a great novel or poem 'doing something' just as much as the man who builds a bridge or digs a canal or captures a fortress?—Exchange.

the rate of the rise and fall of the tides of Coos River and the rate of the current.

The high school students have ordered rings in the school colors with the high school initials on them.

A basket ball team has been chosen from the boys from North Coos River and those from the South Fork. There have been two games played. The first was won by the North Fork boys and the second by the South Fork.

A number of the boys and girls enjoyed a special recess Wednesday morning as a reward for working hard in cleaning the school grounds of paper and other scraps. They claim they had more fun than at ordinary recesses.

Through the kindness of its management the Coos Bay Times is received every day at the school and kept on file in the high school department.

Be Ready for Opportunities

The small savings of a wage-earner sometimes mean hard work and self denial, and should never be endangered by taking speculative chances. Save, until an opportunity for safe investments presents itself, as, in time, it surely will. It's easy to distinguish between investment and speculation. With a little sum saved, opportunities will not be wanting.

"The Shoe Tax"

Father's income knows what it is and to mother it is also a very real thing.

It means the high cost of keeping a growing boy or girl properly shod.

When father and mother figure out all the new shoes they have to buy they are apt to conclude shoes are made out of paper rather than leather.

Care in purchasing will cut down this tax—care in choosing the right shoes and care in buying at the most favorable time.

And the first step in the right direction is a study of the advertising in THE TIMES that gives the helpful information.
