

COURSE A GOOD ONE

U. OF O. TO PUT IN LINOTYPE MACHINE FOR STUDENTS

May Print Tri-Weekly Paper On Campus—Doing of Coos Students At Eugene

(Special to the Times) EUGENE, Ore., Nov. 16.—The Department of Journalism has received a part of the new equipment for its printing laboratory, to supplement that donated to the department by H. R. Kinkaid, editor of Oregon State Journalism, when that paper ceased publication last year.

A. J. DeLay, of the Department, expresses the hope that by next year they will have added a linotype and a cylinder press and will be in a position to do the mechanical work connected with the publication of the Oregon Emerald, the tri-weekly organ of the student body. The primary aim, however, is to furnish practical printing laboratory work for those enrolled in the courses in journalism.

Coos Students There Miss Pearl Craigm, of Bandon, and Miss Louise Clausen, of Coquille, both are attending the University this year for the first time, have joined the Mu Phi Epsilon sorority. Mrs. R. H. Mast Jr., of Coquille, who has been visiting her husband, a freshman here, for three weeks, has returned to her home. A year ago Mr. and Mrs. Mast eloped from their homes in Coquille and were married in Eureka, Mrs. Mast is staying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Phillips while her husband completes his education.

Roy M. Avery, of Coquille, who is taking a course in journalism here, is employed during spare time in the mechanical department of the Morning Register.

BIG IRRIGATION SCHEME

Application for Project at Grants Pass is Approved

(Special to the Times.) SALEM, Ore., Nov. 16.—Application for a million-dollar irrigation project on Graves Creek near Grants Pass, made in the name of Wesley H. Sherman of the latter city, has been approved by the State Engineering Department. It is proposed to irrigate 20,000 acres and develop 3000 horsepower, and in addition to use water for both mining and domestic purposes.

ROAD MATTERS UP

NEW SUPERINTENDENTS ARE NAMED BY COUNTY COURT

Supervisors of the Districts Which Are Absorbed in New Plan Resign Their Places

Under the new road plan the superintendents of several of the new districts have been named. Details of the road business transacted by the county court a few days ago are given as follows in the Coquille Sentinel:

"In District No. 4, including the territory east from Coquille to Douglas county line, F. A. Baker, of Sitkum, was appointed superintendent. This district comprises the old districts Nos. 11, 12, 17, 20 and 21. The following supervisors of these districts presented their resignations, which were accepted by the court: Wm. Betty, F. A. Baker, George Mauleh, Sam Stout and Claud Waters.

In new District No. 5, which includes the entire southeastern section of the county outside of Myrtle Point, R. A. Cribbins, of Bridgeton, was appointed superintendent. The former supervisors of old districts Nos. 13, 18, 22, 23, 25, 26, 28, also resigned, as follows: John Farby, R. A. Cribbins, M. T. Clinton, P. W. Laird, Isaac Barklow, W. F. Neal and George T. Hermann.

The new appointments in Districts 4 and 5 are temporary and to hold good only until January 1, when the appointments will be made for the entire fourteen districts of the county—six in the county and eight in the organized towns. It was necessary to organize the two districts mentioned first, as elections are to be held in them yet this year to vote on special road tax propositions.

CORN SHOW READY

OPENS THURSDAY MORNING IN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Every Farmer and Corn Enthusiast Asked to Come—Many Exhibits and Prizes to Be Awarded

Corn of all shapes, sizes and description now graces the building next door to the Chamber of Commerce on Second Street where on Thursday morning opens the first corn show held on Coos Bay. Prof. J. E. Larson, of O. A. C., is expected here this evening. He is on his way to Myrtle Point to attend the show there tomorrow and will return here for Thursday and on Friday and Saturday will lecture and act as judge at the two days show in Coquille.

To arouse the interest of the farmers in corn raising is the purpose of the three shows. In this connection County Agriculturist J. L. Smith has worked almost incessantly for weeks.

All Farmers Invited

Every farmer of the Coos Bay section is asked to be here on Thursday. He is asked to come down on the morning boat, arrive at the Chamber of Commerce about 10:15 and attend the short morning and afternoon sessions, leaving in time to catch the boat to his home afterward. That no time may be lost during the noon hour, Mr. Smith asks that the farmers bring their individual lunches to the Chamber of Commerce. The prizes will be awarded at that time.

Many Corn Exhibits

The corn exhibits have been coming in for days. Farmers are displaying a lively interest in the industry. There are displays for ensilage, for the best ten ears, the best ear, the best growth for an acre, and several other qualifications.

The fact then remains, that Coos County can raise good corn. The exhibits show it. The county can raise better corn than it does. Prof. Larson is expected to tell them a few pointers. He is an expert in the growing of corn, being the division agronomist of the O. A. C. extension department.

Need Early Maturing Variety

The displays that have been brought in show one thing clearly, says Mr. Smith, and that is the farmers here must cultivate an early maturing variety of corn. There are many such varieties and they grow well here and mature before the rainy season sets in.

He intends to make the corn shows of the county annual events. Myrtle Point will have her show tomorrow and send some of the best exhibits here for display on Thursday. So will Coquille.

Keen Interest at Show.

Keen interest has been evidenced in the show at the county seat. The merchants took a lively interest in the affair, donated so many prizes the committee had to rack their brains to know what to do with them. They have a long list of good sports. Farmers will be liberally rewarded in prizes. There will be the old-fashioned husking bees for men and women and some of the Kansas "professionals" are already in training.

So the date for the Coos Bay show is Thursday at 10:15 a. m., and the farmers are asked to bring their lunches, if possible.

TAKE ROSEBURG THEATER

Antlers Show House Is In New Hands Now

The Roseburg Review says: After looking over practically all the most important towns of the Northwest, George Werner and Rudolph Keller, veteran theater men, formerly of Prince Rupert, B. C., have decided to locate in Roseburg. They have investigated opportunities in Eastern Oregon, Coos County, Western and Southern Oregon and parts of Washington, but no place made the appeal as a location for their business as this city. Having carefully looked over the situation here and reached a conclusion that the Antlers theater, now managed by the trustees of the B. P. O. Elks, can be made one of the better playhouses in the state the men signed a lease agreeing to take over the local theater on December 1 for a period of five years.

They intend to continue the vaudeville attractions now showing here, handle a number of the leading road shows, and conduct a regular motion picture house.

RAISE FINE CROPS

Rogue River Country Makes a Fine Showing

Suggesting that Curry County hold a county fair to show what can be done in the way of raising crops, the Gold Beach Globe says.

"The farmers in this locality have nearly finished gathering their crops and to say they are pleased is putting it mildly. Many people came to this locality with the idea that they could grow only a limited variety of produce, but the first crop has proven a surprise, both in the way of yield and the variety of vegetables, fruit, and grain that will ripen here. Andrew Decker has produced some very fine specimens of beets and other vegetables. J. B. Saubert raised some potatoes that were over 12 inches long, while a number of farmers have had ripe watermelons, cantaloupes and peanuts and W. F. Smith has succeeded in raising some fine sweet potatoes.

GAME BIG THING

INTEREST CENTERS ON TURKEY DAY BATTLE WITH U. FRESHIES

High Students to Sell 400 Tickets—Rally Held This Morning—Three Coos Boys on Team

Intense interest centers on the Thanksgiving football game when the pigskin warriors of the Marshfield high, having won the championship of Coos will match their strength and wits with the freshman team of the state University. Grounds at the corner of Fourth and Elrod have been secured for the game and today plans were set on foot for the selling of 400 or more tickets that absolutely must be guaranteed before the final arrangements can be made for the biggest football game ever played in the county.

Officially Announced News of the Turkey Day battle was officially announced to the high school students at a meeting held this morning. Prof. F. A. Tiedgen discussed briefly the benefits that will be derived, Coach Niles told them that they must, every one of them, "get busy" and Ben S. Fisher further enlightened the students on the necessity of cooperation to finance the project. The team members were told they must be out every night for practice, no matter what the weather might be.

In the lineup of the U. of O. freshman team, as it played Corvallis freshmen on Saturday at Eugene, includes the names of three Coos county boys. Walter Jensen, better known as "Da-Da," of Marshfield, is playing half back and as his running partner is Reuben Mast, of Coquille. Big Harry Miller, of Myrtle Point, is a tackle.

Because of the sidewalks that surround the vacant field on three sides at the juncture of Third and Fourth, streets with Elrod Avenue the committee in charge this evening will ask permission of the council to rope off these streets during the game. This would allow spectators to stand high and dry on the sidewalk, and would also keep the field clear for the players.

Committee is Mighty Busy

The committee consists of Prof. F. A. Tiedgen, Royal F. Niles, Frank D. Colan and Ben S. Fisher. They received a wire this morning from Astoria high school asking for the date. The manager further said, "as we rely on the Thanksgiving game to make up the deficit of early in the season, we will have to ask for a little more than expenses." They will be told that their offer is too late.

A wire has been sent Manager Leo Malarkey, at Eugene, asking the names of the team members and their weights. The best means of getting the team in here is now being figured on.

ALLEGED CATTLE THEFT

One Man Pleads Guilty and Another Stands Trial

The Roseburg Review says: Joe West, who was recently indicted by the grand jury here on a charge of stealing and selling three head of cattle belonging to W. R. Vinson, a Coles Valley rancher, was arraigned before Judge Hamilton in the Circuit Court.

When asked if he wanted an attorney, or had means of employing counsel, the defendant replied to the effect that he did not care for a lawyer for the reason that he intended to plead guilty to the charge preferred against him.

Judge Hamilton sentenced the prisoner to an indeterminate sentence of from one to ten years in the state penitentiary. West appeared unmoved as a result of the sentence. Charles Briggs, indicted jointly with West, was also arraigned and entered a plea of not guilty. He will be defended by Attorney Elbert Hermann.

SEA ROUGH TODAY

THAT IS THE REPORT SATURDAY GENERALLY ALONG COAST

Yesterday Afternoon There Was a Heavy Wind But It Had Died Down This Morning

There was a heavy wind storm yesterday afternoon along the Oregon coast. It extended from North Head south to Cape Blanco but not as far south as Eureka. The wind was 46 miles an hour velocity at North Head and 42 miles at Cape Blanco but this morning the wind had died down.

Rough sea all along the coast however was reported this morning. The weather conditions at the different points which indicate the general roughness of the sea were as follows: Cape Flattery—Wind south 20 miles; temperature, 45 degrees; barometer, 29.99, sea rough.

North Head—Cloudy, wind west 8 miles; temperature, 48 degrees; barometer, 29.76; sea rough.

Cape Blanco—Misty, wind south 8 miles; temperature, 48; barometer, 29.94, sea rough.

Eureka—Cloudy, wind calm; temperature, 47 degrees; barometer, 30.06; sea rough.

Bar Is Rough

The Coos Bay bar is very rough today. The steamers Yellowstone and Hardy both failed to get out last evening. The Hardy made an attempt but turned back.

TELLS OF HARBOR

GARDINER PAPER MAKES CLAIMS FOR THE UMPQUA

SAYS Some Coos Bay People are Fighting Against Improvements Being Made

Setting forth the claim that the mouth of the Umpqua river should be improved the Courier of Gardiner prints the following:

If an object lesson must be had to prove that the Umpqua bar should be improved before the lower Umpqua Valley will reap any great benefits from outside markets, just notice the three boats which are bar bound. The San Gabriel has been held up on account of the bar since October 15, which has been one of the causes of the mill being shut down part of the time since then. The Tillamook and Patsy, which came in last week, are anchored in the stream unable to get out for the same reason. If the people of this section expect mills and factories to be built here, this bar and harbor must be improved so that any vessel can come in and go out at will.

There are billions of feet of timber that can be manufactured into lumber and pulp right here, all of which is tributary to this harbor, which is the natural outlet for the same.

If this harbor and bar is not improved all of this timber will be taken to some other port for manufacture, which will build up that port to the detriment of this. This is the reason that certain parties interested in Coos Bay section are devoutly praying and pulling every string to avoid improvements on the Umpqua bar and harbor, for it is well known to these people that with the improvements which can be made at a nominal cost, as compared with other ports, this port will be the best and safest south of the Columbia. They also know that the Port of Umpqua has resources back of it and tributary to it which justifies the improvement, and when the people of this section of the state awake to these facts and make these needed improvements, this will be one of the greatest industrial centers in the state.

BIRDS GREET SHIPS

They Come Aboard Often Apparently to Rest

Skipper of coasting ships say that often land birds, flying in flocks, get blown off shore and stop aboard their ships to rest. Sometimes they stay in the rigging, coming into port with the boats and at other times they rest for a few hours and then fly on again.

On one of the recent trips of the Big Three line Rose City north to Portland, out of San Francisco, off the Oregon coast Captain Rankin reports a flock of wild camaries came flying out and perched in the rigging. They had evidently been lost in a heavy fog. Passengers provided crumbs and the birds warbled several good concerts and as soon as the fog lifted and land was sighted, flew landward again.

Sailing ships two days travel from the English Channel have reported English sparrows coming aboard, apparently utterly exhausted.

BOAT PRICES SOAR UPWARD

Prices of ships in the past 15 months have in many instances more than doubled. This is caused by the blockade of the great German merchant marine fleet and the extra demand for bottoms.

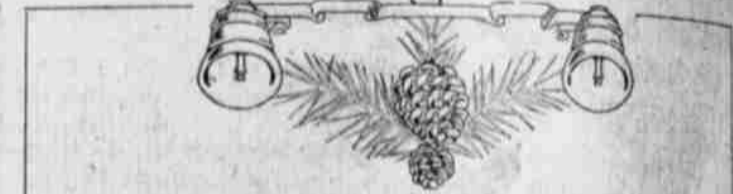

An instance of this doubling and then some, is shown by the fact that the Japanese steamer Asama Maru, which used to sail into Portland, was sold in 1913 for $100,000 and very recently has again changed hands and this time for about $215,000.
