WHEN THE DREAMS COME TRUE AT LAST

1.
Just all the joy of the little earth you're livin' in can hold
When the summer total is ended and
the harvest shines its gold:
When the barns are heaped plenty—
the promise of the past,
And dreams that bless the dreamer
are coming true at last.

Then the toiler tells his troubles a long and last good night;
The brother of the morning—a citizen
of light;
And joy comes home, to dwell with him: No sky is overcast
With the shadow of a sorrow where the dreams come true at last.
