BORN

COLE—Born to Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cole, of Bunker Hill, December 31, a son.

Aid to Meet.—The Ladies' Aid of the Baptist Church will hold their monthly business meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. E. Wheeler.

Funeral of D. W. Small.—The body of the late D. W. Small will arrive here tomorrow on the steamer F. A. Kilburn and the funeral will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow from the Masonic Temple.

Special Meeting.—A special meeting of the Christian Sisterhood will be held at the home of Mrs. S. J. Immel tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 for the election of officers and other matters of business.

Baseball at Powers.—Carl Larson is in from Powers for a short visit. He said that they had a very lively New Year's and the other night his Powers basketball team defeated the Myrtle Point team 44 to 32.

Moved Place.—Jay Doyle has moved Jay Doyle's Place from the old place on Central avenue to his new place on Commercial avenue, into the room formerly occupied by the Pugaley Candy factory.

Guild to Meet.—The Episcopal Church Guild will hold its opening meeting of the year tomorrow afternoon and a good attendance is desired. Mrs. J. H. Flanagan, Mrs. Emma Nasburg and Mrs. Guy Warner will be hostesses.

Cut Holes in Pavement.—In order to get a sewer connection on the main line, when a private sewer running down to the bay refused to work, workmen today cut several big holes in the Central avenue paving near Front street.

"Hangovers" Are Fatal.—There were three arrests yesterday for drunkenness. They were Alfred Brunell, Amil Matson and John Hongrall. They were given a night in the Hotel de Carter with which to console themselves and this morning given the high sign to "beat it."

Much Mail for Delivery.—When the mail failed to arrive early Saturday and came in that evening, again yesterday and also this morning, the post-office force found them selves crowded with work and the carriers walked many miles with heavy loads to relieve the congestion.

Sign Comes Down.—There was a small and silent crowd that gathered about the outside of the Pullman bar this morning to watch the disappearance of the big gilt letters "Pullman Bar." Off they came in a hurry and the crowd disappeared quietly as though adding to pay the parting rites to the old regime.

Inspects Lighthouses.—Lighthouse Inspector Warrack of the Northwest district, arrived here on the stage yesterday from Portland, and this morning he left on the early train for Bandon to inspect the lighthouse there. He has also taken in the lights along the coast on his way down. He expects to return within a few days.

Still Work on Line.—G. J. Bayless, of the Southern Pacific, went out again this morning to the Valley, where he is engaged in putting in telegraphic equipment for the line. The instruments at Coquille have been installed. Under the new system it will be possible to use the telephone line for telegraphing. Mr. Bayless has been here for several days.

Must Have Dry.—Evidently in search of "a whistle moistener" someone is said to have entered the cellar of the Frank Catterlin home on New Year's night and took some beer stored there. It is not known whether the act was a prank or was played in all seriousness, but Frank Catterlin said later he would give them the other barrel with a husky bear trap in it.

Clear Good Sum.—The Marshfield Fire Department cleared something like $100 from their dance of Saturday evening in Eagles Hall. There were close to 170 couples on the floor and a thorough good time was enjoyed by them all. There will be some more of these dances later in the year, the proceeds of them being turned into a fund for a fire alarm system for the city.

Leap Year Social.—Next Friday evening the Epworth League of the Methodist Church will give a Leap Year basket social in the League Hall, to which all the young people's societies are especially invited, and the young people in general. The boys will bring the baskets and also buy them, and the girls are not to bid over 27 cents for any basket. There will be a short program in connection with the social. A real good time is being looked forward to by a large number of the young people.

Are Agreeably Surprised.—Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ross had not seen their son Robert A. Ross for about two years. On Christmas Day they went over for dinner to the home of their son John Ross, head of the Scandinavian American bank. They were told to go into a certain room to find a present and there found their son Robert hiding behind the door. He had come in unexpectedly overland from San Francisco. He has been located at Mason City, Iowa. He is a musician, specializing on the clarinet and may remain on Coos Bay.

Sues for Life Insurance.—Mrs. Amelia Volz, of North Bend, the widow of John Volz who died there March 19, 1915, today filed suit, through her attorney, C. I. Reigard, against the Pacific Mutual Insurance company, of Los Angeles, to secure a $1,000 policy held by Mr. Volz at the time of his death. This was an accident and health policy and the company claimed that Volz died a natural death. The plaintiff, however, is alleging that he fell and struck his head against a pile of lumber and died from the effects of the accident.

Was No Shooting Scrape.—There have been reports through the day of a shooting scrape in the city and several telephone calls were received at police headquarters regarding the matter. No trouble has been reported to the officers nor have any of the rumors proved tangible. It was also reported that there was a fight Saturday night which lasted half an hour and that one man got his cheeked off but the police said that no such occurrence had been reported to them and that no arrests for any such offense had been made.

HARD ON NEWS MEN

DEALERS CANNOT SELL PAPERS CONTAINING LIQUOR ADS

Law Affects Eastern Magazines And Also the San Francisco Daily Newspapers

Local news dealers today were puzzled as to what they should do about magazines and San Francisco newspapers containing liquor advertisements. There are on hand now the January numbers of most of the magazines which come before the law went into effect. One dealer, to avoid any trouble, was busy cutting the liquor ads out of the magazines so he could sell them for the reading matter and not get into any trouble.

Another suggestion that the news dealers get together and make an affidavit stating to the news company in Portland where they buy their magazines, that they would prosecute them if they sent them any magazines containing the objectionable ads. As the news house which furnishes most of the magazines in located in Portland it could not send such magazines as it would be mailing liquor ads.

What the local dealers will probably do will be to talk to District Attorney Liljeqvist and see what attitude he directs the news dealers shall take.

Bars California Papers
As the San Francisco papers contain liquor advertisements it will hardly pay a news dealer to spend his time cutting them out before selling the paper. Some dealers say they may not bother trying to handle the California papers.

An Opinion Given
On this subject the Portland Telegram says:

"The ticklish feature is that which pertains to the advertisements in magazines, periodicals and newspapers which are printed elsewhere and which are sold in Oregon. Such as are brought into the state to subscribers through the United States mail cannot be controlled by the state laws, but those offered for sale on the news stands must have all illegal matter removed. Prohibition advocates state that a strict enforcement of this section is necessary to prevent the liquor interests from printing and distributing their advertisements as newspapers or magazines. It will also prevent Eastern and California newspapers carrying liquor advertisements from being displayed on the news stands in Oregon. Apparently the task of deleting the liquor advertisements from the newspapers and magazines devolves upon the news dealers. So, if you buy a California newspaper with yawning holes in the pages, you can feel assured that the news dealer has been performing his duty as a censor."

GET PLENTY DUCKS

THREE HUNTERS BRING DOWN BAG OF 61 IN SHORT TIME

Say Rainy Weather Has Improved Local Shooting—But 11 More Days of Season Remaining

Perhaps the biggest bag of the duck season is the one reported today by Capt. Robert Monson, of the Messenger. On Saturday he went out on Ten Mile with two friends and within a few hours time the men shot 61 ducks.

They say that the recent stormy weather has brought many ducks not only into the lake districts north of here but onto Coos Bay as well, giving now perhaps the best hunting of the season.

There remain but eleven more days in this duck season and many persons are taking out their shot guns for a last try.

Capt. Monson says that on certain parts of Ten Mile the hunting has been pretty good since last October. William Sleep and William McCulloch were out with Capt. Monson.

The bags of early season were mighty light ones in most instances, the hunters have declared, because of the fact that in the Coos Bay country the hunting starts a month later than it does on the Columbia.

AMONG THE SICK

C. C. Going is confined to his home by a severe attack of la grippe. Chas. Watson is reported quite ill at his rooms today.

Robert Peters, one of the Western Union messenger boys, was taken sick this afternoon and had to go off duty.

Harry W. Painter, who returned Saturday evening from Portland, via Myrtle Point, is reported to be much better today. The hard trip from Roseburg almost exhausted his strength and he was quite ill on Saturday but a complete rest of a day leaves him in better shape.
