THREE DAYS LATE STREET FIGHT ON

C. MCGOVERN TELLS OF TROUBLES ON RAILROAD

Big Slide at Not Tunnel and River Gds Around Bridge Abutment

"The bell strikes one, we take no note of time. But from its loss: to give it then a tongue is wise in man."

—Young.

C. McGovern, the well known timberman, arrived home Saturday night after having been away from the city for a period of four or five months. During that time he was at Salt Lake City and also at points on the coast. Mr. McGovern came in over the new railroad, or rather attempted to do so, but was delayed on account of the damage caused by the storm.

Slide Had One

He says that the slide at the Not tunnel was a bad one. The rain caused an enormous volume of dirt to break off the embankment and fall over the track and he says that there is a quantity more which is sure to come down. The train started out from Eugene but when the big slide was discovered, the passengers were taken back and no one was allowed to leave Eugene until the track was cleared. Mr. McGovern was delayed three days at Eugene.

Goos Around Abutment

Mr. McGovern says the most dangerous looking place was at one of the bridges over the Siuslaw. A structure of several spans. Here the water has diverted so that hereafter it will run between the first span and the abutment, changing its course entirely. The water also went around the inside of the abutment and washed out the dirt so that it was necessary to extend timbers across from the abutment to the ground which had remained intact. This served as a temporary support for the rails and the train went over it but it did not look very solid. It will be quite a big job to fill in the ground again back of the abutment.

Escapes the Snow

Mr. McGovern had quite a time getting back here from Salt Lake City. In the Grande Ronde Valley he had to make a visit to a small town off the main railroad. On completing his business he did not want to remain longer in the small place and decided to walk out and reach La Grande. Just behind came the big snow storm and had he not started out to walk he would have been snowbound in the Grand Ronde Valley until a day or so ago.

Later Mr. McGovern was again fortunate as he got out of Pasco on the last train leaving there before the storm started otherwise he would have been snowbound at that place. After making these fortunate escapes he arrived at Eugene only to be detained there three days on account of the obstructions on the new railroad into Coos Bay.

Lumber Business Better

Mr. McGovern said that the improvement in the lumber business on the outside was marked and it seemed to be the opinion that the better prices and demand for lumber had come to stay for at least two years.

FOUR ANGLES TO LEGAL BATTLE WAGED AT COUNTY SEAT

Somewhat Similar to Local First Street Case—Property Owners Refuse Pay Street Assessments

"Have always been at daggers-drawing. And one another 'clapper clawing.'" —Butler.

(Special to the Times)

COQUILLE, Ore., Feb. 14.—Before Judge Coke in Coquille today came up the First street case of Coquille, a controversy and misunderstanding somewhat similar to the First street case in Marshfield and one in which a long and spirited legal battle is expected.

L. A. Liljeqvist, acting as city attorney of Coquille, introduced a motion before Judge Coke to have him construe a contract entered into by the city with Ellingsen and Bergen, contractors. At the same time, R. O. Graves acting for the plaintiffs, property owners protesting the street assessment, asked for a judgment on the pleadings, claiming there have been sufficient admissions by the city for the plaintiffs to take judgment without trial of the case.

Is Four Cornered Fight

The fight is a four cornered one and involves the payment of close to $13,000, claimed for street work. Property owners along First street say they are not liable for assessments because the city accepted a lump sum bid of the contractors for about $9,000 and then let the work by piece contract for considerable more than the above mentioned sum. Also the plaintiffs declare the macadam has not held up under traffic and that autos right now are getting mired on First street.

Warrant Purchasers Out

On the other hand the city is seeking to collect the money. The contractors are holding the city liable for the payments and the fourth parties are the warrant holders, men who purchased warrants relating to the street improvement. The street was completed in 1914. Part of the money for the improvement has been paid, the remainder of the property owners are fighting the assessments.

YOUNG PEOPLE MEET

Union Gathering Held at Baptist Church Sunday

"Who God doth late and early pray More of His grace than gift to lend And entertains the harmless day With a religious book or friend." —Sir Henry Wotton.

A Union young people's meeting was held at the Baptist church last evening, at 6:30 o'clock. It was in charge of W. C. Hinmann. Short addresses were made by representatives of several churches. J. T. Brand spoke for the Presbyterian church, Charles Raymond and Jerry Scott spoke for the Methodist church, S. J. Leland for the Baptist church and Miss Myrtle Tripp for the Christian church. All of the speakers dwelt particularly on the plan of a united endeavor being made in the work of the young people's societies of the city.

During the session Herbert Buserud sang a solo and was accompanied by Miss Mary Kruse. It was decided to hold another union meeting at the Methodist church next Sunday evening.

Is at Schenectady.—Hugh Smith, son of Senator I. S. Smith of this city, is now, and for some time past has been employed by the General Electric company at Schenectady, N. Y., where the munition plant of the company burned today.

ADVOCATE MILITIA LINCOLN HONORED

NAVAL BRANCH FOR COOS BAY IS NEW MOVEMENT.

Sons of Veterans Seek Expression of Opinions—Would Secure Company and Bring Ship Here.

"Britannia needs no bulwarks, No towers along the steep; Her march is o'er the mountain waves, Her home is on the deep." —Campbell.

The Sons of Veterans, in a spirit of preparedness, are launching a campaign to secure again a branch of the Oregon Naval militia for Coos Bay. Later a meeting is to be held of all young men interested in the movement, their co-operation will be solicited and an effort then made to secure for this port one of the idle smaller vessels of the navy.

J. C. Kendall and Frank Horton are instrumental in furthering the plan. They point to the fact that Portland has just secured the old cruiser Marblehead in place of the Boston.

Boston Here in 1912.

The latter vessel has been on Coos Bay, once in 1912 at the time when there existed here a branch of the naval militia that was discontinued in that same year.

To secure the Boston or some ship of about this size will be the endeavor, providing enough volunteers can be secured to permit of such an undertaking.

Plan Is One of Preparedness.

This year is one of general preparedness, claim the Sons of Veterans. It is only in keeping with this spirit then, they say, that a branch of the naval militia should be secured here.

In 1911 the first organization was formed on Coos Bay. The company membership ranged from 40 to 70 active members. A cruise was made by them from Portland to Coos Bay aboard the Boston. It was a short time after this that the company went to pieces.

Secure an Old Vessel.

Now the belief is expressed that there are enough young men on the bay willing to join in such a move and, further, that a ship can be obtained. There are in the navy on this coast several old time war vessels about to be or already mustered out of commission that would very well serve the purpose of practice ships.

Will Learn Feeling.

John Kendall said today that the Sons of Veterans are anxious for an expression of opinion on the matter before they go ahead much further with the movement.

With such a craft stationed in the harbor, drills would be held on board, there would be commissioned men of the navy here in charge to look after the training of the men, and oftentimes cruises could be indulged in up and down the coast for the purpose of teaching the amateur "Jackies" how to stand on a rolling deck, how to make a long splice and to determine between starboard and starboard.

CURRY COUNTY RIVERS REACH A HIGH MARK

Slides in Roads and Barns Flooded But No Very Great Damage Is Done.

"The stream, aspiring, pants its source to mount, As streams meander level with their fount." —Robert Montgomery.

The melting of the snow in the mountains of Curry county caused all the rivers to be high. The Port Orford Tribune tells the following about the flood conditions:

"While Sixes river was higher than it has been for a number of years, yet it was not as high in proportion as Elk river. The latter stream was higher at A. J. Marsh's place than it has been since 1890, while at the McKenzie place at the mouth of the stream it was higher than it has been since they located there in early days. Sunday night the farmers all along the river were up all night looking out for their stock and property, but aside from washing away a lot of fencing and injuring the bridge, did but little damage.

"Several slides are reported in the road near the Arizona Inn, and one of the bridges near the Sydnham place, at Denmark has gone down, so that it will probably be several days before the roads are opened again to team travel.

"Many of the barns on the lowlands along Elk river were flooded and the water lacked but two inches of coming in T. C. Clark's house on the old Joe Nay place."

SONS OF VETERANS HOSTS TO OLD TIME WARRIORS

"Our children shall behold his fame, The kindly-earnest brave, forseeing man, Sagacious, patient, dreading praise, not blame, New birth of our new soil, the first American."

The Sons of Veterans Saturday evening in the Moose Hall were hosts to the G. A. R. veterans and the Spanish-American War veterans in attendance practically every Civil War veteran on Coos Bay 4 more than the entire membership of the Baker Post. The Sons of Veterans furnished machines to take the old warriors to their homes afterwards.

The refreshments were regulation army rations. D. A. Jones was appointed commissary sergeant and with his squad foraged on the kitchen, bringing forth the beans, the program:

Where Did You Get That Pretty Dress?

"Where did you get that pretty dress, Mrs. White? Did you make it?"
"Of course not! I'm not dressmaker enough to do that. I bought it right here in town, and I only paid $1.50 for it. This is one of those

"that you see advertised so much. I formerly made my own dresses—but never again!"

"Look at the style of this dress. So how perfectly it fits. Notice how roomy it is through the hips. Examine those buttonholes—perfect, corded and non-ripping."

"When I want to do the house work, I put on a cheaper MINA TAYLOR Dress. When I want to lounge around the house, or make a neighborhood call, I put on one of these better ones. I wouldn't be without several for twice the price they cost me."

J. O. HOLT COMING TO HAVE HEARING

SUCCESSFUL MANAGER EUGENE CANNERY TO SPEAK HERE

Will Tell Farmers and Business Men How Establishment Can Be Made To Pay on Coos Bay

"No wild enthusiast ever yet could rest, Till half mankind were like himself possessed." —Cowper.

J. O. Holt, successful manager of the Eugene cannery, will be here next week to hold a meeting with the farmers and business men of Coos Bay. This was the announcement this morning of the Horticulture committee of the Chamber of Commerce, composed of Claude C. Thompson and R. Bugge.

This is the second step in the campaign being actively waged in the interests of establishing a cannery here that will not only take care of the fruit and vegetables raised here at present, but afford such a market that farmers will see fit to plant more of their land to such products.

Made Phenomenal Success
Since the launching of the movement there has been much favorable comment. Mr. Holt has made a phenomenal success of the co-operative plant in Eugene and is coming here to tell the people how he did it and how it can be done on Coos Bay.

One of the things that will probably be advocated by Mr. Holt will be the growing of loganberries in this section. Last year he came to the Umpqua Valley and declared the land there especially adaptable to the berry. In the past year the loganberry market has been increasing through the far east and the middle west.

He Removed the Danger Signal

"I suffered a long time with a very weak back," writes Fred Smith, 325 Main St., Green Bay, Wis. "A few boxes of Foley Kidney Pills completely relieved me of all aches and pains in the back, and now I am as strong and well as ever."
"One cannot help becoming nervous and feeling tired and worn out while the kidneys fail to filter and throw out of the system the poisonous waste matter that causes kidney troubles and bladder ailments."
"Backache is one of Nature's danger signals that the kidneys are clogged and inactive. It is often followed by rheumatism, annoying bladder or urinary disorders, puffing swellings under the eyes, swollen ankles and painful joints."
"Foley Kidney Pills get right at the source of trouble. They invigorate the kidneys to healthy action and their functions properly perform when the kidneys properly perform their functions the poisonous waste matter is eliminated from the system."
