BOYS STEAL BRASS

WARREN BONEBRAKE AND FOREST PERRY CONFESS

Broke Into Workshop of E. G. Perham—Boy Is Discovered Carrying Away Sack Last Evening

Orrin Bonebrake and Forest Perry, both about 16 years of age, were arrested this morning by Chief Carter and charged with stealing about 100 pounds of brass from the workshop of E. G. Perham, up near 10th street. Bonebrake was three weeks ago sentenced to the state training school at Salem for similar offenses, but could not be taken there because the school is already crowded. The cases have been turned over to Juvenile Judge Watson who is here today. Both of the boys confessed.

here today. Both of the boys confessed.

Plunder Is Hidden

About 9:30 last evening Mrs. D. A. Jones, who lives at the corner of Ninth and Fir, heard a noise and looking out saw a boy carrying something in a sack. It was too heavy for him and the sack was hidden under the bridge near the Jess Hansen home.

This morning Mr. Jones investigated and found the brass. He reported the matter to Chief Carter and the two boys were arrested. Both of them stubbornly denied the charge until later confessed.

According to young Bonebrake the boys had expected to sell the brass to some of the local junk dealers who buy brass.

You will be welcome at Sarter's new home next Saturday afternoon.

SNOW KILLS BIRDS

DOZENS FOUND DEAD, MOST OF THEM VARIED THRUSHES.

Unable to Withstand Wintry Blasts, To Make Dement Ranch Big Bird and Game Reserve.

Unable to withstand the cold and the famine time of the snows that two weeks ago covered the county, dozens of birds have frozen and starved to death. Deputy Game Warden James Thomas said today that in the vicinity of Haynes Inlet he found many birds dead, most of them being the Western Robin or the Varied Thrush. This type of bird seems to have proved the least hardy.

Reports from other sections of the county also show that many of these birds perished. Farmers and people in the towns set out lots of food, but not all of the birds came down from the woods.

Pheasants Have Died.

Near Fairview a farmer reported finding three China pheasants frozen to death. Mr. Thomas says that many of these birds perished. They seem not the type best adapted for this region, is his belief, and he is not going to recommend further shipments here.

On the other hand the Hungarian pheasants seem to live and thrive here and possibly more of these birds will be obtained. They are larger than the ordinary quail.

Go Into Reserve.

Both Russel and Taylor Dement, near Myrtle Point, have turned their big 7000 acre of range into bird and game reserves, where no hunting is allowed. Mr. Thomas said that both these men are willing to aid the government, in a financial way, in keeping an overseer there all the time to see that there is no hunting on this preserve.

In this section there are more deer, it is believed, than in any other like area of Coos and Curry counties.

The hunting laws have been fair-

BUILDING ERA IS ON

BRITISH COLUMBIA WRITES FOR SHIPCARPENTERS

Finds Demand for Men Here on Coos Bay—Krusse and Banks Now Employ 60 and Adding More

Shipcarpenters and shipbuilders of all shapes and sizes are in demand on the Pacific coast. J. W. Bennett has just received from The Timberman, a Portland publication, an urgent call for shipbuilders wanted by a British Columbia lumber company. But just at this time these men are in demand on Coos Bay in connection with the building of two steam schooners at the Krusse and Banks ship yards in North Bend.

Have Big Payroll

The work is progressing rapidly. Already there are about 60 men at work and five more were employed this morning. The ribs for the ships are being put in place and it is said that when a full force is employed on each ship there will be work for better than 200 men.

An effort is being made to turn the ships out by August, if it is possible. This necessitates hurried work.

There is nothing new nor definite in connection with the securing of contracts for two more steam schooners. Mr. Banks, of the shipbuilding firm, says there is nothing to give out.

Use Picked Timber

It is a difficult matter to secure the timbers needed in the ships because of the fact timber must be picked and also the lengths and sizes cut different from ordinary lumber of the mills and thus necessitates changes in order to cut it and proves more costly. Both the Simpson Mill and the North Bend mill are now turning out ship timbers for Krusse and Banks.

ly well observed all over the county of late, says Mr. Thomas.

SOUL IS BRANDED

RICH FOOL MISCALCULATED SAYS THE MINISTER

Union Gospel Meetings of the City Are Moving Along Nicely Each Night

"It seems strange that God would call a man a fool who had succeeded," said Rev. Mr. Stubbelfield last evening at the Methodist church as he was addressing the union Gospel meeting. The subject for the sermon was "The Rich Fool," and although many expected some other minister to be the speaker, as the evening before Mr. Stubbelfield had been the preacher, all were happily surprised, and the people now declare they have not yet caught onto the ministers' "baiting order."

"This man had not made a failure as far as standards of the present day are concerned," said the minister, "for I am sure that today from Michigan to Texas a man who has wealth and large property interests is looked upon as a man of power and he is looked up to."

Had Foresight

"He was ambitious. He had foresight which is considered today as a redeeming quality. He was planning how he might take care of his great harvests. He had prospered greatly. He was living and feasting his very soul on what things he possessed. But the end came suddenly and quite unexpectedly to him. This he had not counted upon.

A Branded Soul

"As he lived so he died. I do not know whether his family erected a monument over his grave and wrote his epitaph or not, but one thing I do know that his soul passed out into eternity branded 'fool.' It was counterfeit.

"Did you ever see a spurious bank note when it had been passed upon by the government? I had the misfortune to get one once and I sent it away, and when it came back it was branded right through it 'counterfeit' and nothing could ever then change that bill and make it a good one.

What Was the Matter?

"Why was he condemned? Because he was rich? I say no. For God did not so speak of other rich men of the Bible. Abraham was rich, yet he was counted as a 'friend of God.' David was rich, yet he was considered a man after God's own heart. Job was rich and God said of him 'Behold a perfect and upright man. Did he oppress his neighbors? Jesus did not so speak of him.

"His sin lay in the desire to possess things merely. God calls it covetousness. He says: 'Beware of covetousness' and 'A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things which he possesseth.'"

The sermon was forceful and full of appropriate illustrations. The attendance was large. The meetings are full of interest. A male quartet sang and special music by a large chorus was rendered. Colporter G. L. Hall sang at the close of the sermon an appropriate solo "Will I Empty Handed Go?"

Among those present were Rev. J. F. Vernon of Myrtle Point and Rev. Phillip Deschner of Portland.

WOULD JOIN NAVY

ROSEBURG, Ore., Feb. 18.—Dean Neas, of Oakland, who was arrested here a few weeks ago on a charge of gambling, has signified his desire to enlist in the United States navy for a period of three years, according to Sheriff George Quine. While the officers have made Neas no promises, they intimate that his desires may be satisfied. Neas is in jail in default of bail.

DEW DROP INN IS A FINE PLACE

ELEGANT NEW CONFECTIONERY, SODA FOUNTAIN PARLOR LUNCHEONETTE WILL FORMALLY OPEN TOMORROW NIGHT

The "Dew Drop Inn," Sarter's fine new confectionery in the Rogers block at the corner of Front and Central, will be formally opened to the public tomorrow night. The finishing touches on the installation of fixtures and equipment are being completed today.

The new place is one of the most attractive in the state. The interior has been artistically decorated, the large show windows and other windows add to the lighting effect by day and fine electric fixtures have been installed for lighting it at night. A ladies' rest room is another feature that has been introduced.

The room is large and finely arranged and will make the place one of the most attractive in the state outside of Portland.

Music and other attractions will be provided for the formal opening tomorrow night.

SAILOR MADE FORTUNE. LOFSTEDT EXAMINED.

Chinaman Accumulates Large Sum Skipper of Ill-Fated Santa Clara Before U. S. Inspectors.

In 1907 the American steamship Lyra came into Portland with an oriental crew aboard. The skipper believed some of the men ought to have a chance to stretch their legs on terra firma, posted a bond of $500 each at the custom house for the Chinamen of his crew, and the latter came ashore. At the time of sailing all of the men reported with the exception of one. His name was Fung Yin. He had deserted. For nine years he was missing and only a short time ago did the immigration officers find their man. On him they found a draft for $2000, seven checks for $70 each, and a huge purse bursting with gold and paper money, totaling in all, $3000. Now Fung Yin is to be deported and he will take his money with him. This sum in China will make him a moderately well to do Chinaman.

Capt. August Lofstedt, former skipper of the Santa Clara, that on November 2 went ashore outside of Coos Bay and who subsequently lost his license, is again applying for his papers. This time, however, he is first taking the examination for first officer on steamships.

The presumption is that, having passed this, he will then take the examination to receive his master's papers. During the time he was with the Elder and later with the Santa Clara, Captain Lofstedt made a host of warm friends on Coos Bay who have often inquired about him since he left here in November and who have wished him all success in his new ventures. The feeling throughout his trouble has been that the wreck of the Santa Clara was not primarily due to his negligence or carelessness.

IS QUITTING PORTLAND.

The American-Hawaiian Steamship company is finally quitting Portland, presumably for the reason that the concern is discontinuing its steamship service between Atlantic and north Pacific ports.

Four more ships of the company will visit the Columbia, however, before the service is halted. These ships will then load for Honolulu from whence they will carry cargo via the Panama canal to the Atlantic seaboard again.

Among these ships will be the big steamships Georgian, Kentuckian and Honolulu.

Takes Coquille Noth

The Handon Recorder says: Captain Robert Jones was one of the passengers on the Elizabeth, coming up to take the steamer Coquille to Portland. A recent feat of Captain Jones was to take the Golden Gate from Portland to San Francisco. Captain Jones is an old resident of this section and was brought up at Coquille and Myrtle Point. He acquired his first boating experience on the Coquille and
