WILL GO TO ORIENT CASE HARD FOUGHT NOT MR ROSENBERG

CAPT. MAGEE BRINGS WORD NANN HAS BEEN CHARTERED

Will Leave in April—Charter Rate Better Than $800 a Day for 90 Day Trip Is Statement

SAY NANN SMITH CHARTER NOT CLOSED

Local officials of the C. A. Smith Company, say that the charter of the Nann Smith has not been definitely closed and owing to recent changes probably will not be. However, this will not be definitely known for a few days.

The steamship Nann Smith arrived in this morning from Oakland, bringing about 150 tons of freight. Captain W. A. Magee confirmed the report that the vessel has been chartered for a trip to the Orient. The trip will consume about ninety days, he said, and the rate is better than $800 a day or about $75,000 for the trip, an unusual charter rate.

It is expected the Nann will get away from San Francisco for the Orient between April 1 and 15. C. W. McNear and company are the charterers and the cargo sent out by them is to be a general one. The ship may be sent to Australia, China or Japan, Captain Magee saying this point has not yet been definitely decided.

Charter rates for ships on both the Pacific and the Atlantic are the highest at this time that they have ever been and shippers are having extreme difficulty in getting vessels of any kind.

USE SMALLER VESSELS

While the Nann Smith was away on her six months' charter to South American ports, smaller steam schooners were used by the C. A. Smith company for handling of the lumber cargoes from here in conjunction with the Adelina. The latter vessel, now that good weather is coming on, will be able to keep fairly close to her four days schedule for round trips between Coos Bay and Oakland.

The purchase price of the Nann Smith was about $250,000. At the present charter rate she would be able in less than a year to more than pay for her original cost.

Tomorrow the Nann sails from the Smith Terminal dock for Oakland at 1 p. m., carrying lumber and passengers.

OTTO EDLUND CHARGED WITH BOOTLEGGING

Late This Afternoon Case Still Continuing—Marked by Many Legal Tilts — Many Witnesses

All day long the case against Otto Edlund, former saloon proprietor, charged with bootlegging, has been in session before Judge Pennock in the justice court. It will probably be concluded this evening.

Incriminating evidence was brought forth by the admissions of E. Edson, brought back from Portland, after buying the liquor for Mote Burwell, who also told of the transaction.

A jury was called, consisting of J. W. Hildenbrand, Milo Sumner, Charles Raymond, Jake Hillstrom, W. S. Nicholson and John Merchant.

This afternoon considerable time was taken up by the defense calling to the stand many friends of Edlund to testify to his standing in the community. Invariably the District Attorney put this question to them: "Do you belong to the same lodge with Edlund?" Most of them answered "Yes."

Among the witnesses called through the day were Mote Burwell, E. Edson, C. C. Going, Fred Magnusson, Robert Westman and Elmer Groth.

Many Sharp Tilts

There developed a sharp legal tilt when Mote Burwell, who himself claims he bought liquor, was put on the stand. Questions of W. T. Stoll, attorney for Otto Edlund, the defendant, tried to bring out the fact that Burwell had bought bootlegging whiskey from other parties.

"The questions have no bearing on this case," hotly declared District Attorney Liljeqvist, addressing the court. "They are tending only to open up other cases that may be on hand and bring out the names of other witnesses that may be used later on."

Judge Pennock, after much discussion on the part of both attorneys, barred the questions though Mr. Stoll noted his exceptions.

More Cases Coming Up?

He had asked Burwell, "As a matter of fact, wasn't there a man named Shrock in North Bend that sold you some of this whiskey?" This was not answered for Mr. Liljeqvist's objections were sustained.

Burwell was asked what education he had ever had. "I graduated from high school in Chicago and took two years at the University of Illinois in 1892-3," he said. Later he admitted taking another year of study at some Kansas college.

Met Otto Edlund

He said he had been working at the mill and came over to town with E. Edson and asked him where he could get some whiskey. He told of being with Edson when the latter met Otto Edlund and that together they talked about buying the whiskey from the defendant. But he was hazy about the exact conversation.

Edson and Edlund then had gone away together, continued Burwell, and the former came back later with a beer bottle of whiskey.

"Sure it was whiskey?" queried the district attorney.

"Well—I guess it was," admitted Burwell. "Call it squirrel, rat or whatever you like. Edson and I drank it all on the dock." He admitted it tasted good.

"Felt Pretty Good"

The witness said that on that same night he had acquired another bottle from some one and that he "got to feeling pretty happy," denying though that he was drunk.

"Where did you get the other bottle?" put in W. T. Stoll, and the big crowd in the court room listened intently for the answer.

But there was no answer. The district attorney objected. Several times the question was asked; each time it was objected to and the objection sustained.

Were Promised Immunity

"Did Liljeqvist promise you and Edson immunity if you would tell?" asked W. T. Stoll.

This Burwell admitted. He also said that there was a written paper to this effect, his end of the matter having been taken care of by R. O. Graves. "I thought it about time I had a lawyer," he explained.

Mr. Liljeqvist declared that the entire story had been gotten from Burwell, under oath, at least two days before the immunity paper was signed. He further said that he had acted entirely within the law on the matter.

The complaint alleges that at one time the defendant flew into an ungovernable rage and tore the clothes from his back, and at still another time threatened to kill him and actually did try the feat with the aid of a knife.

Hanson is employed at the Chandler Hotel.

The couple was married at Jacksonville, Oregon, May 18, 1911, and there are no children. It is also alleged in the complaint drawn up by I. N. Miller that the wife is a gross and habitual drunkard.

FORMER COQUILLE TAILOR HAD NO CINCINNATI BANK ACCOUNT

Owner of Deposit Against Which He Drew Draft in Bandon Lives in Detroit Now

Now comes a new angle to the case of I. Rosenberg, charged with cashing a bogus draft for $475 on the Bank of Bandon. District Attorney Liljeqvist said this morning that the understanding is that the I. Rosenberg who had an account with the Bank of Cincinnati is from Detroit and not the Coquille tailor who is now being held at Crescent City. If this is the case, there is a mystery as to where Rosenberg secured his information that another man of the same name had a balance in the Cincinnati Bank.

Sheriff Johnson is investigating Rosenberg's past record and thinks there is a possibility that Rosenberg is not his real name and that the present offense is not the first one he has committed.

MAY TULLY'S FASHION SHOW SCORES BIG HIT

Relative of Marshfield People in Charge of Orpheum Circuit Attraction This Season

The following from the pen of John W. Kelly in the Portland Telegram will be of interest here as Miss Tully visited here a few years ago with Mrs. Eugene O'Connell, Frank Hague and other Marshfield relatives.

This is no man's job, reviewing the Orpheum show this week, because the main part of the bill—and the best—is the New York Fashion show, gotten up by Miss May Tully, and intended to forecast the 1916 fashions. All the leading style houses are represented except Potash & Perlmutter, and the name of each firm exhibited as its particular creation is displayed by a living mannikin.

Well, it sums up about like this: Canes will be worn and it is chic to have the walking stick enameled to match the color of the costume. Skirts will be anywhere from the shoetop to a few inches below the knee—they are now coming down. The skirt will be both tight and skimpy as well as full and pleated. Headgear is to be simple. Military toques and sailor-shapes will be as destitute of flowers and ribbons as a frog is of feathers. Short veils are correct.

As for color, anything goes. The really popular afternoon and evening costumes are the black and white effects. Some of the combinations of color fairly shout, they are so loud. Evening gowns, as a rule, will be upheld by hope and a single shoulder strap, but it is noticeable that the gowns which won the most applause last night were the more modest creations.

HARRY HANSON SUES FOR DIVORCE TODAY

Charges Lenora Hanson With Tearing His Clothes Off During Fit of Ungovernable Rage

Suit for divorce was filed today by Harry Hanson, who seeks separation from his wife, Lenora Hanson, on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment.

The complaint alleges that at one time the defendant flew into an ungovernable rage and tore the clothes from his back, and at still another time threatened to kill him and actually did try the feat with the aid of a knife.

COKE AT ROSEBURG

MARSHFIELD JUDGE URGES JURORS TO AID IN ECONOMY

Says That They Can Materially Assist in Reducing Court Costs—Praised by Attorneys There

The following appreciation of Judge Coke's work from the Roseburg Review will be of interest to the many friends of the Coos County jurist:

"Do your part in keeping down the expenses of the several actions that are to be tried during the present term of the Circuit Court," was the good advice directed at the jurors who assembled at the court house, by Judge John S. Coke, of Marshfield, who presided over today's sessions. "While I do not care to be severe with the jurors," said Judge Coke, "it will be my aim to safeguard the interests of the taxpayers who are compelled to pay the costs of the Circuit Court. You can aid materially to this end by remaining in calling distance of the court house unless otherwise instructed by the court."

Many Praise Coke.

"Judge Coke is one of the best known men in Southern Oregon, and has a host of friends in Roseburg and Douglas county. Judge Coke is a candidate for re-election at the primaries to be held in May, and from all reports he will receive a flattering vote in this county. He is one of the youngest judges in the state, and is popular among the members of his profession.

"En route to Roseburg, Judge Coke stopped in Salem, where he called on Attorney General George Brown, the members of the Supreme Court, and other state officials. It is said that Judge Coke will be the guest of honor at a number of social gatherings to be given by local lawyers during his stay in Roseburg."

FOR SUMNER ROAD

EASTSIDE WOULD BUILD HIGHWAY AT WATER LEVEL

Want to Use 70 Per Cent of Road Tax Raised in That District—Offer Site for Cemetery

Eastside wants a water level road from Sumner to the Eastside ferry. The city fathers of Eastside have taken up the matter and intend to seek of the county court, 70 per cent of the road money raised in their district that it may be applied to this purpose.

The matter was discussed at a meeting of the Council last evening. It is contended that the present road to Catching Inlet is too steep and hard to travel over. The plan is to run the road out along the northern boundary of Eastside and to follow up Catching Inlet at water level to Sumner. The matter is being investigated by City Attorney George Watkins.

A site that is practically free has been offered by the Council for the placing of a cannery. The city owns property on Isthmus Inlet and this will be allowed for the putting up of a building if it is wanted. S. B. Cathcart has been appointed a committee of one to look after this matter.

The old drafting house near Isthmus Inlet in Eastside has been repaired by the Council at a cost of $50 and this is to be turned over for the purpose of a public market, a plan suggested several weeks ago and which is now being worked out.

BANNER AT STAKE

MARSHFIELD TO FIGHT HARD FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Bandon to be Opponents on Local Floor—Home Quintette Has Not Lost a Game

On the result of tomorrow night's basketball game with the Bandon quintette depends the claim of the Marshfield five to the championship of Coos County. The game is to be played in the high school gymnasium.

Through six battles this season Coach Niles basket shooting five have emerged with six scalps and their 1000 percent still unmarred.

But their last two games were won by hair's breadth margins. At Myrtle Point last Friday evening the boys were only one basket in the lead when the final whistle blew. At Bandon on the following night one lonely foul gave the "bacon" to the locals.

Word from Bandon is to the effect that they are primed for the hardest game they ever fought when they come here tomorrow. To defeat Marshfield will mean for them that they have tied the leader of the league and will share the honors of a county championship.

The lineups of the teams follow: For Marshfield, Burrows and Watters, forwards; Seaman, center; McDonald and Dresser, guards. And for Bandon, L. Pullen and Armstrong, forwards; Gallier, center; Webb and Johnson, guards.

TOM JAMES LOSES $2 ON HIS WEATHER GUESS

"Dad" Welch of Chandler Hotel, Wins as Result of Thermometer Dropping to 35 Above Zero

Tom James on a bright sunny morning two weeks ago on his way to the Swayne and Hoyt dock, stopped his car at the Chandler to "get a light."

"Wonderful weather, ain't it?" he queried of "Dad" Welch behind the counter. "Going to have a long spell of it, too," he continued.

But "Dad" is a conservative man. "Wait till the 24th and 25th, Old Man, and see it storm," he retorted, meaning to speak a word of warning to one suffering from the first touch of "spring fever."

This was a direct challenge. Tom James halted him right there, and slapped his fist on the counter to emphasize his remarks. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself, talking this way about Coos Bay weather." At this juncture he waxed even more wrath.

"Bet you two iron men the thermometer doesn't go below 42 either one of those mornings."

"Take you," and the deal was closed. Shortly after daylight this morning "Dad" Welch was grinning and jingling two round silver dollars in his jeans and saying "I told you so." The glass had gone down to 35 degrees.

HAD A CLOSE CALL

MOTOR CAR STRIKES GEORGE GOODRUM'S MACHINE

Temporary Battery Burns Off, Stranding Car Dangerously Near Tracks—Driver Jumps in Time

George Goodrum miraculously escaped being run down by the motor car shortly before noon today when his car became stranded too close to the track, near the Kruse & Banks shipyards, and both fenders of his Buick were torn from the machine. No other damage was done to the car.

The Buick that was taken from the wrecked Santa Clara had been fully repaired, the body had been put back onto the frame, and Mr. Goodrum was taking it to North Bend to have it painted.

For the short run he had hooked up a temporary battery, placing this on the running board of the auto. The wires were too small and burned off, bringing the machine to a dead stop, close to the railroad track.

It was while Mr. Goodrum was making the repairs that the motor car came down the track, coming from Marshfield. He looked up from his work in time to jump to the other side when the motor struck his machine.

He said afterwards that Motor-man Bunnell had evidently thought he had room enough to get by without striking the Buick. Fortunately the damage was slight and it was possible to run the machine back to the garage under its own power.
