

IS GIVEN DIVORCE

MRS. D. MACKINTOSH, FORMERLY OF BANDON, GETS DECREE

Charge's Her Husband Was Habitual Drunkard and Brutal—Now Lives Near Roseburg

ROSEBURG, Ore., March 8.—Claiming that her husband was an habitual drunkard, and that he failed to provide for her support, Mrs. Clara Mackintosh, of Canyonville in the circuit court was granted a decree of divorce from Donald Mackintosh. The divorce was granted by Judge Hamilton, and Mrs. Mackintosh was awarded the custody of her minor son.

Upon taking the witness stand Mrs. Mackintosh said she and her husband were married in Manitoba, Canada, in the year 1902, and later came to Oregon to reside. While living in Bandon, she said, her husband drank to excess, and that he frequently became involved in financial difficulties. On several occasions he was arrested and locked in jail, according to the witness. Mrs. Mackintosh also testified that while residing in Coos county her husband returned home drunk on one occasion and gave her a severe beating. In addition to sustaining several bruises, the witness said her nervous system was wrecked and she was compelled to pass several days in a hospital. Mrs. Mackintosh said her husband frequently attempted to provide her with a home, but that he was unable to do so on account of his fondness for drink. On the night following their marriage it is alleged that he was so drunk that the officers were compelled to place him in jail.

Mrs. Carter, of Canyonville, who is the mother of Mrs. Mackintosh, corroborated her daughter's statements, and added that she had always conducted herself in a manner above reproach.

District Attorney George Neuner introduced a couple of letters in evidence in order to aid the court in determining whether the plaintiff had been a resident of Oregon for the length of time required by law.

PORT ORFORD STATION OPPOSED BY BERTHOFF

Head of Coast Guard Service Says It Will Cost Too Much and Is Poorly Sheltered

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 8.—Captain E. P. Berthoff, commandant of the coast guard, in a long letter to Senator Chamberlain, replies to a recent letter from the Port Orford Commercial Club setting forth why he considers it "utterly impossible" to construct a life saving station at that point on the Oregon coast at the suggested expenditure of $12,000.

The idea of the Port Orford people was that a station in this amount might be authorized, whereas the chances are less favorable for securing it at the previously estimated cost of $30,000. Captain Berthoff says local features require expensive engineering work, and he holds that any less expensive station would likely be swept away by winter storms.

A self righting and self balling power boat would be the main reliance, he says, and indispensable for rescue work at Blanco reef, six miles north, of Rogue River reef, 20 miles south, where most disasters in that region occur. The proposed location is too exposed and dangerous to warrant the construction of a station for less than the full amount estimated, he says.

O. B. HINSDALE TO BUY GARDINER MILL

Manager of Jewett Property, Well Known on Coos Bay, May Take Over Big Lumber Industry

The following from the Gardiner Courier will be of interest here as Mr. Hinsdale is well known in Marshfield, having been at one time president of the old First National Bank here and had other extensive interests on the Bay:

It is reported that O. B. Hinsdale has an option on the Gardiner Mill holdings in the Umpqua country. The price is said to be $1,000,000. The Gardiner Mill Company is one of the largest companies on the Oregon coast. It has large tracts of timber on the Umpqua, Smith River, Seaside, and around the lakes north of here. It has been surmised for some time that the company desired to sell. During the past two years they have had cruisers cruising their timber and mapping out their holdings. While the company has been operating for a good number of years, it is said that their timber has been growing faster than it has been logged. The company's offices are in San Francisco, and their principal market for lumber has been at San Pedro, California.

GARDINER LONGSHOREMEN GET HIGHER WAGES

Strike While Handling San Gabriel Cargo and Are Finally Granted Increase

The Gardiner Courier says: The longshoremen quit work Monday at noon and refused to go back to loading the San Gabriel until their wages were raised from 35 cents per hour to 45 and 50 cents per hour. They asked 45 cents an hour to work on the outside and 50 cents inside the vessel.

After talking the matter over with Captain Westerdale, the matter was amicably settled by the men returning to work for the increase as demanded.

GARDINER WOMAN HAS CLOSE CALL IN FIRE

Mrs. A. L. Perkins' Dress Catches From Blaze in Rubbish Heap—Husband Burned

The Gardiner Courier says: "While burning some rubbish in the yard of the Perkins' residence, Mrs. A. L. Perkins' dress caught fire, and before she realized it, it had burst into flames. She called to Mr. Perkins, who happened to be nearby, who realizing the danger in which Mrs. Perkins was, rushed to her assistance and began to tear the burning garments from her body, but not before the fire had burned through her clothing. He succeeded in quenching the flames before any injury was done the lady, but in doing this, Mr. Perkins burned his hands badly. It was a very narrow escape, and if Mr. Perkins had not been nearby, Mrs. Perkins would have been severely, if not fatally burned.

BOYS GET WANDERLUST.

Melvin Baker and Paul Fisher, two local school boys about 13 years of age, left home several days ago bound for California, Mexico or some other southern land of promise. It is said they took provisions with them and started out on foot along the coast to the south. After getting as far as the New Lake country, they became pretty hungry for some of mother's cooking and homelick besides, and decided to return home.—Bandon World.

DIVER INSPECTS SPEEDWELL.

The Bandon World says: "Frank Holman made a hurry-up trip to Marshfield, Friday, having been summoned by the skipper of the Speedwell to make an examination of the propeller on that ship. She was loading lumber at the railroad docks, shipped there by the Johnson mill at Coquille, and something had gone wrong with her wheel. Holman, who has a diving suit, went down and made the necessary repairs. She took on more lumber and ties at the North Bend Dock."

WAS COOS PIONEER FINDS HOG CHOLERA

S. R. LANE, SON OF OREGON'S FIRST GOVERNOR, IS 84.

Uncle of Senator Lane, Who Mined Near Bandon, Celebrates Birthday at Roseburg

ROSEBURG, Mar. 8.—S. R. Lane, pioneer of Douglas county and son of the late General Joseph Lane, first Governor of Oregon, celebrated quietly his 84th birthday anniversary.

Mr. Lane came to Oregon in the year 1853 with his father on his second trip. He came by way of the Isthmus of Panama, and for a time lived on General Lane's donation land claim, which is now one of the best-known fruit tracts in this section of Oregon. Soon afterward he engaged in the mercantile business at Winchester, in company with J. C. Flood, at the present time a resident of Portland. Several years later Mr. Lane moved to Roseburg and became a member of the firm of J. C. Flood & Co.

Had Bandon Mines. Leaving Roseburg in the year 1861, Mr. Lane went to Eastern Oregon, where he conducted a general store at a station then known as Umattilla Landing. Three years later he returned to Roseburg and for some time afterwards was engaged in handling cattle. In the year 1885, Mr. Lane was married to Miss Katherine Drain, who lived in the town bearing the family name. Mr. Lane then went to Bandon where he engaged in developing the Black Sand mine.

More than 28 years of Mr. Lane's life were passed in this work. In the year 1896 he sold the mine to an eastern syndicate. The mine was worked for a few years and only recently was found to be rich in platinum.

After retiring from the mining business Mr. Lane returned to Roseburg and located on Deer Creek, not far from Lane Mountain. A few years ago he retired from active life and has since made his home in this city. Mrs. Lane is still living.

JOLT TO DELEGATES

County Court Tells Marshfield Committee a Few Things.

The Coquille Sentinel in telling of the conference of the Marshfield delegation with the Coos county court at Coquille last week regarding the disposition of the Marshfield district road fund, says:

"The court gave the crowd from the Bay to understand that while they would be glad to consult with them as to the best way in which to spend the city's portion of the road fund, they held the purse strings and must be the final arbiters. And when invited to come over to the Bay to consult with the people there as to this matter, the court also quietly suggested that it invited consultation at the court room in Coquille by those who had business with it."

COW TESTERS QUIT

Howard B. Warner and Geo. Johnson Leave Valley Association.

Howard B. Warner who has for the past two years been the tester in charge of the Coquille Valley Association here, has resigned in order to accept the position of herdsman on the big Holstein ranch of W. K. Newell, near Portland.

George Johnson, the tester of the Lower River association, has also resigned to engage in the dairy business with his father on a ranch near Cooson.—Coquille Sentinel.

HERD OF G. W. SMITH, OF EASTPORT, AFFECTED.

Dr. L. J. Masson, of Myrtle Point, Calls Ranchers' Attention to Plague Among Livestock.

Dr. L. J. Masson, of Myrtle Point, who was here yesterday to investigate the cause of the death of a number of hogs in the herd of G. W. Smith, at Eastport, today announced that hog cholera was the cause.

Mr. Smith has lost about fifteen head and nine others are now sick. These are separated from the balance of the hogs on the place.

Dr. Masson, who is representative of the Oregon Livestock board in this section, immediately inoculated the herd with a serum which is considered a cure in at least twenty per cent of the cases, and also gives the hog immunity from the disease. It costs between twenty and thirty cents per head for the serum.

Hog cholera is one of the worst plagues that the swine grower has to contend with, and annually causes millions of dollars losses in the middle west. It becomes a regular epidemic and is hard to combat.

This is the first time in many years that the plague has been found in this section and Dr. Masson urges swine growers to notify him promptly of trouble from it, in order that the disease may be stamped out.

CLEAN-UP DAY GIVES TOWN LIVELY TIMES

Globe Says Gold Beach Assumes Metropolitan Airs During Exciting Times.

Last week was cleaning up week in Gold Beach and vicinity. Every available team, man, woman and child was busy gathering up old tin cans, and rubbish of every description scattered around the streets and back yards and the smoke of purification was ascending from many corners, giving the town the appearance of a modern Pittsburg. The hum of industry and activity upon the streets were really quite metropolitan.
