

PREPAREDNESS Many of the great "conditioners" include a daily cup of chocolate in the diet of the men who uphold their college or club colors on field, track or water. It prepares for the "big day" when brain and brawn are put to the final test.

As an honor winner Ghirardelli's Ground Chocolate stands in the front rank. In the recent world's food-product "championships" at the Panama-Pacific Exposition it was awarded the Grand Prize, the very highest honors.

Are You In Business For Yourself

A Painter, a Carpenter, a Baker, a Rug Weaver, a Paper Hanger, a Mason, a Cement Worker, a Builder of Concrete Blocks, an Excavator, a Chimney Sweep, a Milk Dealer, a Blacksmith, a Tinner, a Jack-of-all Trades, a Tinkerer, a Cabinet Maker, an Electrician, a Plumber, a Harness Maker, a Drayman, a Taxi Driver, a Horse Dealer, a Dressmaker, a Teacher or a Doctor.

It is to your advantage to keep your name before the public. It is the life of your trade for the public to know that you are "still in business at the same old stand."

Every man or woman with a small business, every man or woman who derives his livelihood from the patronage of the public, every man or woman who uses no other newspaper publicity in the promotion of his business, should have an advertisement in the City News column or in the "Business Directory" or in the widely read classified ad columns of the Coos Bay Times.

It will be wonderfully surprising to you to learn how inexpensive this class of advertising is, and what remarkable results you get for so small an expenditure.

The people of today do not ask the person and that person who does paper hanging or who cleans out chimneys. They search through the advertising columns of their daily newspaper, and if your ad is there you are the one who will profit. The daily paper is their guide, their directory, their book of reference.

Many will say, "I couldn't stand the expense of advertising," and let it go at that, not appreciating the fact that it would be an investment rather than an expense, as necessary to carry on business as tools, or stock or counters. And they will go on trying to be satisfied with what business they can derive from their circle of friends and acquaintances, while those who do "see the light" will prosper from the patronage of the whole community.

It is estimated that the classified column of The Times, with its City News and its "Business Directory" and other classifications, is read daily by more than 10,000 people—an army greater than twice the population of Marshfield—an army that will give you patronage sooner or later.

In justice to your business, in justice to the public, who seek you, and even in justice to those who are already your patrons, your ad should be there—a handy reference, a convenience, a guide for those who want you.

You cannot help but profit thereby. The value of the classified ad has been tried and found not lacking for the promotion of the small business, which will eventually join the ranks of the big business, if properly promoted.

We are banking our argument on the statements of those who have used and are using the classified ads, the City News columns and the "Business Directory," and have been so elated over the results that they have taken special pains to tell us about it time and again. We invite you to join the army of the successful, the army of classified ad users, at a cost so low that you will hardly believe it to be true.

In addition to the BECKER BROS. pianos, for which I have won a host of friends on Coos Bay, I have added to my line of pianos the WISSNER upright and grands. The Wissner is considered one of the finest pianos made, and some of the world-famous artists have won their fame with the Wissner as an accessory.
