CLEAN UP!

Mayor's Proclamation.

To the People of Marshfield—

Inasmuch as Wednesday, April Fifth, has been selected as "Clean-up Day" in Marshfield and further, since this is a matter of first importance, therefore I most earnestly request that on this day all places of business be closed, the schools suspend their regular course of work and that just so far as possible, everyone devote this day to improving the appearance and sanitary condition of our city.

At eight o'clock Wednesday morning let all workers report to the committeeman in charge of their respective district, that the work may be properly assigned and that by co-operation the very best results may be obtained.

R. A. COPPLE,
Mayor.

WHAT PAINT WILL DO.

Adds to the Appearance and Value of Houses.

Ask any real estate man what percentage of value is added to a house by a fresh coat of paint and you will be surprised at the size of the figure he will give you. Too many householders have the habit of putting off painting until a house fairly screams for it, and they perhaps figure that they are economizing. Not so.

Good paint applied at regular intervals, not too far apart, is the true economy in that it not only actually raises the value of the house by improved appearance, but through preservative ingredients prevents and arrests decay.

The man who lets his house become an eyesore in an otherwise well kept locality should be taxed for the heavy damage he is doing to that community, says the Real Estate Journal.

CLEAN COMMUNITIES HEALTHY

How Death Rates and Long Life Come From Such Towns.

Filth in itself cannot generate disease, but in the long run, barring unusual exceptions, low death rates and long life always come with records of clean communities.

The "Clean Up and Paint Up" campaign is, after all, a housekeeping job, and for that reason every housekeeper should co-operate with the town officials in making the town spotless. Nothing pleases one more than to have a visitor say what a beautiful town you live in. Why not make your town the cleanest in America? It's easily done. Have harmony reign and all work together and you will be surprised at the result. Now, let us all pull together for a spotless town!
