Royal Never Fails.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER is always perfect; no experimenting is necessary with it; the housekeeper never has cause to return it to the grocer and beg for the return of her money. For a third of a century its invaluable qualities have been familiar to American housewives, who have found its use always a guarantee of light, sweet, pure and wholesome food

Some baking powders are so imperfectly made from cheap and inferior materials that their manufacturers are compelled to take them back in large quantities. During the last year thousands of cases of one brand sold or commissioned upon a "guarantee" have been returned caked, spoiled and useless.

Do not take chances with a baking powder with which there is a possibility of failure.

during the civil war that a man ever got out of alive," said E. N. Harper, the Mulhatton of Michigan, now stopping at the Laclede. "I had been detailed to obtain information regarding the strength of a detachment of Confederate troops stationed on the Tennessee river, near Decatur, Ala. I got the information, and was working my way back to camp when I was discovered and pursued by a scouting party. I had con-cealed a skiff in the brush on the banks of the river, but a sudden rise had swept it away, and there was nothing to do but surrender or swim the swollen stream. I plunged in, but the current was stronger than I had anticipated, and by the time I reached midstream my strength was about exhausted. I managed to get hold of the end of a floating log and drifted down stream, while the in another column by the Sherwood Hall Johnnies made the water around me boil with their bullets.

A Very Close Shave.

"I believe I got into the closest place soon drifted out of range and crawled up on the log, only to discover that it was already occupied by a big water moccasin, who was inclined to dispute possession. I had no weapon but a water soaked pistol. If I staid on the log I would get bit; if I got off I would-be drowned. While debating what I should do the log drifted within range of the Union pickets, and they appeared to think I had been raised up by a special providence as a practice target. The first volley killed the moccasin, and before they could reload I made them understand that I was not trying to pull any feathers out of the tail of the American eagle. Since my escape from that position of fourfold peril I have been something of a fatalist." -St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The police regulations in England are very different from those common in this country. The policeman there is not nearly so autocratic as he is here and would never think of using a club or striking a man, except in self defense. J. Gilmer Speed gives this story of their mild sway:

Upon one occasion a man came into my office and created a disturbance. ordered him out. He declined to go, so I sent for a policeman. A sergeant came I said to him:

fully between an outer post and the I expected the sergeant to tell the man end of the fence. This superstition is he must go, and then if he did not move handed from class to class and bids on I expected to see the officer remove him by force. Not at all. The sergeant said, "You had better leave here, sir," fair to flourish for many years as part of the information acquired at and his tone was as respectful and civil as though he was asking a favor.

The man manifested no intention of it holds true; but what has either of leaving, and the police officer began an these matters to do with believing in inquiry as to his reasons for wanting to stay. This so exasperated me that I put the man out myself, greatly to the astonishment and apprehension of the

A Scheme That Works.

When you go into the Marble Collegi-ate church, at Fifth avenue and Twentyninth street, you will find in the book rack of each pew a card of the size of a fashionable envelope. It is an "ac-quaintance card," bearing the pastor's name and church address on one side, with a nice little square in the upper right hand corner in which is printed, "If mailed, two cent stamp here." On the other side is printed: "In order that the pastors may have the opportunity of seeking personal acquaintance and ex-tending to you the courtesies of the church, please write your name and ad-dress below, drop the card in the pas-tor's mail box, hand to an usher or return by mail. Signed, David James Burrell, D. D., pastor; Rev. Palmer S. Hulbert, Rev. Alfred E. Myers, assistant pastors." It is a sort of a drop-a-card-in-a-slot-andreceive-a-pastoral-call scheme, and they say it works well.—New York Times.

Reminding Him of a Fact. A few days ago an elderly gentleman and his wife came down Broadway to-gether. A lady crossing the street fell down. The old gentleman rushed to her assistance and helped her in every possi-ble way. When he returned to his wife she shook her fist at him. "It's all right; it's all right," he whispered. "Yes, I know it's all right," she replied hotly. Here's an unknown weman falls down and you plow across the street to help her, and the other day I fell down stairs and you wanted to know if I was practicing for a circus."—New York World.

A Useful Article.

"Why, how odd this had never been thought of before!" said a visitor at a woman's exchange of the city. She had in her hand a pretty kuitted article, which was a baby's bottle cozy. For railway travel or to go out with Miss Baby in her own little carriage they are of great service in keeping the milk warm, and also, as they are knitted double, to offer protection against break age. Some padded ones were also seen but are not so serviceable as the knit ted ones, as they do not fit so closely to the bottle. - New York Times

Superstition About Spiders

Even school boys are led to forego their usual destructiveness when spiders are in question. I remember that when I was a lad at Winchester it was considered a most unlucky thing to do any injury to a particularly large kind of spider which is sometimes found in the college buildings, and which went among us boys (or men, as we called ourselves) by be name of a Wykehamist.-Cornhill and sell them direct to the people, thus realizing $5,000,000, and using the additional money for the further development of the Fair.

Considering the fact that there were but 5,000,000 of these coins to be distributed among 65,000,000 people, in this country alone (to say nothing of the foreign demand,) and that many have already been taken, those wishing to purchase these mementoes of our Country's Discovery and of the grandest Exposition ever held, should secure as many as they desire at once.
