THE RESULT OF THE INVESTIGATION BY THE GOVERNMENT INSPECTORS OF THE RECENT COLLISION BETWEEN THE STEAMERS STATE OF CALIFORNIA AND WHITTIER IS MADE PUBLIC.

The inspection report that Captain Liebig of the Whittier was below on the night of the accident, leaving the second mate, an unlicensed officer, in charge, and it was due to his want of knowledge that the collision took place. Captain Liebig is found culpable for having placed such an officer in charge, and his license as a master and pilot is suspended for thirty days. Captain Ackley of the State of California is exonerated from all blame.

DAVID STARR JORDAN HAS RESIGNED THE PRESIDENCY OF THE LELAND STANFORD UNIVERSITY.

The resignation is said to have been made to Senator Stanford personally and supplemented by a written communication, which the founder of the institution has accepted. It is understood that at the end of the scholastic year President Jordan's connection with the college will cease. The reason given for the resignation is that Senator Stanford has for some time been rather dissatisfied with the manner in which Jordan has managed the university affairs. When he returned in about six weeks ago he summoned the President to a conference at his Palo Alto residence. He indicated the changes he desired, but Jordan resented the Senatorial interference with the ultimate result as stated.

CHICAGO EXPOSITION.

At the entrance of the Colorado building at the World's Fair is a flagstone of red sandstone 25x35 feet and ten inches thick.

It is reported that Count Tolstol intends to visit the World's Fair and bring over with him a party of young Russian nobles, who are to investigate American agricultural methods and the systems of irrigation in use in the West.

A number of foreign commissioners who, when dissatisfied with the awards plan, withdrew their exhibits from competition have announced they have returned them as the result of the settlement of the much-dissolved question.

Henry C. Iron, head of the art department of the World's Fair, has had a cloth placed over Andersson's picture of "Woman Taken in Adultery," which the committee had refused permission to exhibit, but which the French exhibitors gave representation to in their collection of pictures.

Here Wernholt, the Imperial German Commissioner, said the other day, referring to the report in late dispatches that Emperor William had finally decided to come to the fair, that he had no official advice to that effect, but would not be surprised if it came to pass, as the Emperor is a great traveler and had taken a deep interest in the fair.

Director Charles H. Schwab of the World's Fair says that the exposition has cleared $250,000 on May, and as a result of a general reduction of forces to begin soon, a better result is confidently anticipated for the month of June. Mr. Schwab took a review of the financial situation of the World's Fair is already assured. He says the running expenses of the fair will be but $100,000 a week for the present, and this will be cut down when the forces are reduced, as cannot now be afforded by the officials. Mr. Schwab says the receipts of the month of May averaged $24,000 daily.

It is now positively known that the far-famed Oriental mammoth, the Sultan of Johore, is coming to the World's Fair. His Majesty called the fact of his intended visit to Deputy Commissioner William W. Walker and directed Mr. Lake to meet him in Carlsbad, Germany, to accompany him to Chicago. Mr. Lake at once left for New York, whence he will sail for Europe on the Campania. He expects to return to Chicago in a few days, and the Sultan is famous for his great wealth, and is said to possess the finest collection of diamonds and rubies and pearls in the world. He will bring a retinue of ten servants and two English physicians, whom he carries with him to look after his health.

The formal opening of the electricity building has been a long and tedious affair, but one night last week the feature of the display was the unveiling and lighting of the big Edison tower erected by the General Electric Company. This shaft is situated in the exact center of the building, and represents the original invention of the incandescent lamp. It extends into the grand arch formed by the intersection of the nave and transept, reaching a height of about 100 feet. The methods used in construction have resulted in showing a perfect column as though the entire shaft were hollow. From one massive block of steel, 300 cords of wood a year, and the entire interior is strewn with thousands of incandescent lamps as many as 100,000.

The colors are arranged by mechanical methods, capable of being flashed in harmony with the music. The colors are arranged in a well-proportioned replica of an Edison incandescent lamp, formed from a multitude of pieces of pyramic crystals. Upward of 30,000 of these beautiful jewels are strung on a frame, and are all lighted from the interior by a large number of incandescent lamps. The effect produced is marvellous, and can only be appreciated when seen.

Montana's famous silver statue of "Justice" was unveiled in the mines and mining building the other day. It is the statue for which the actress, Ada Rehan, stood as a model, and by so doing created much contention among her admirers. The unveiling of the statue was the event of the day at the White City, and the great building in which the statue stands was thronged with people eager to see the magnificent work of art. While the crowd was assembling, the Cincinnati band played a grand march. The opening address was by Major Martin McGrinnis of Montana, who spoke in glowing terms of the brilliant future before that State, of her untold wealth, of the enterprise of her citizens and her wonderful natural resources. When he finished, the speaker of Montana stepped forward, and, taking up a small silver coil, gave it a gentle pull, and the Stars and Stripes which enveloped the silver image of "Justice" fell away and exposed the statue for the first time to public gaze. The crowd gave vent to wild cheers, while the band played "The Star Spangled Banner." The speaker, Hon. L. M. Quinn, editor of the Butte Miner, made the closing address. He spoke of the statue as a work of art, of how it came to be made, and how it represented the wealth, enterprise and artistic taste of the citizens of that State. The address was well received, and the Montana Commissioners entertained their friends and a large number of exposition officials and the representatives of foreign nations at luncheon.

June 1 closed the first month of the exposition. Although the weather and the general impression that the fair is not dissatisfied have affected the attendance, the average has not been as high as the governing officers of the fair expect. The attendance for the month of May, however, pressed the button May 1. There is no denying that the treasury department of the fair is pressed for money, although the banks, which are represented in the local corporation, stand ready to advance money at any time to tide the exposition over; but money is owing to the contractors, and any application for a loan would find much difficulty in getting quick and full payment of their claims. Treasurer Zeibinger is compelled to resort to all kinds of expedients for putting the contractors off, but some have been waiting two months after the contracts were signed, and their money has not been paid. There will be a severe policy of retrenchment in all departments of the fair beginning next month. The discharge of 2,000 employees is contemplated, and even Major Handy, who deals with the press representatives of the world, is now preparing a detailed statement of expenses given with a view to a heavy reduction in the list. Ex-President Baker of the exposition, who is of the special committee investigating the press matter, thinks that the press of the country has done more harm than good to the fair, and should not be given a hearing. Baker is one of the enthusiasts connected with the fair, and talked about an average daily attendance of 100,000, but that number has only been reached twice—the opening day and Memorial day. Special fetes and single-lane excursions from the United States, has been secured in the next few months, but the European patronage is not being relied on to any great extent in figuring up prospective receipts. For the month of May it can only be said that the fair has not made more than paid the opening expenses.

The circulation per capita is $23.88.

Secretary Gresham authorizes an emphatic denial of the statement that the Chinese Minister has notified the Department that the Chinese government would retaliate if the treaty act is enforced. Gresham declared that the recent interview between himself and the Chinese Minister on the decision of the Supreme Court on the Gray law was pleasant and friendly. Not a word was said during the interview as to a threat being made by the Chinese government to retaliate if the treaty act is enforced. Gresham proposed retaliation. When asked if any steps had been taken towards the enforcement of the law, Gresham replied that the matter was in the hands of the Secretary of the Treasury, so far as he knew nothing had been done.

Although there has been some talk since the new administration came in of reviewing the military divisions, it will probably be allowed to rest until after the next session of Congress. There is considerable talk now of reviving the rank of Lieutenant-General, and promoting General Schofield. This would have three Major-Generals to be left in command of the three large divisions. At present army men think it would be inadvisable to re-establish the divisions. There would necessarily be three, and some Brigadier would be assigned to the command of one of them. Two Major-Generals would each have one, and the third Major-General is in command of the army. If the rank of Lieutenant-General should be revived, it would of course mean a promotion of one of the present Brigadiers to Major-General, and as General Schofield would retire within two years, there would be one of the present Brigadiers-General selected to succeed him, thus creating another vacancy among the Brigadiers. These changes are being pressed with all the influence the Colonels can bring to bear, as well as the high officers, because it will mean promotion for a number of men who have been in the army for a long time. They are to wear a star. There will be another Brigadier-General the last of the year anyway, to succeed General Carr, and probably the same fight that was made for the last vacancy will occur.
