QUEER BANKING.

Vague rumor has intimated to us that the strictures laid by this paper upon the method-of-doing business that was followed by the defunct banking firm of Hamilton, Job & Co., were not fully appreciated by the gentlemen and some of their closest friends, and that it would "be just as well," etc., not to reiterate them, as it would only embarrass and hinder the settling of the bank's business and thus delay the depositors from realizing on their almost worthless accounts. While we would be the last person in the world to knowingly hinder the defrauded depositors from securing the miserable per cent. of their deposits which will finally be doled out to them, still, for all that, the LEADER is strongly in favor of calling a spade a spade without fear or favor, and can see no reason why an action of a shady character should be condemned when committed by one person, and condoned when committed by another. The employe who takes his employer's money and speculates with it, loses it and is detected is sent to the penitentiary. The banker who takes the depositors' money and speculates with it outside of every legitimate bound of banking business and loses it all is pitied and condoned. It is wrong. The banker ought to go as promptly to prison as the other man who speculated with money not his own; and if there is no law on the statute book to reach the banker, one should be placed there as soon as possible. From the appearances made by the report of the assignee of the defunct Corvallis bank it would take a great stretch of imagination to call some of their transactions legitimate. What their capital stock was is unknown to the general public, but it is safe to assert that it does not equal by many dollars the amount of overdrafts honored by the bank. A goodly part of these overdrafts, the whole of which are $56,585.75, were made by the saw mill company of which Zephin Job was at the head. Out of a total of $94,608.83 in outstanding notes, there are about $38,000 of these considered as worthless. We venture to assert that this amount alone exceeds the capital stock the bank had when doing business. Without any personal feeling in the matter, we would like to see the next grand jury of Benton county sift the whole matter thoroughly, and if the failure has been legitimate then the members of the failing firm should receive the sympathy to which they are entitled; but should something worse than mismanagement appear they should be as promptly sent to the penitentiary.

Soldier's Home Enjoined.

In the circuit court of Linn county Saturday the case of the injunction suit of D. C. Sherman, of Salem, vs. A. J. Bellows and other trustees of the Soldiers' Home, restraining the state from locating the home at Roseburg, came up before Judge Burnett. The case was submitted without argument. A demurrer was overruled and a permanent injunction granted. The case will at once be taken to the supreme court. This decision, if sustained by the supreme court, will be sweeping in its character, as it would involve the legality of the location of any other state institution at any other place than the state capital. The wishes of the people, as shown heretofore in the location of various state institutions at several towns besides Salem, seems to be that all such state institutions should not be at the capital, and if this is to be the construction of the constitution upon this point a constitutional convention will doubtless be called soon to remedy it.

Hero Richardson, the man who "saved" the Southern Pacific train near Yoncalla last March, was convicted of an attempt to wreck the train and was sentenced to the penitentiary for eight years.

Congress has been called to convene August 7th in special session. The present financial situation demands the meeting of congress.

OPTIC.

A gentleman by the name of Ray, of Sauvie's Island, a short distance below Portland, makes overtures toward Toledo, looking toward the removal of his creamery and dairy plant to this place, together with about 100 head of milk cows. The gentleman wishes the people to subscribe enough stock to buy half interest or more in his property. In talking with some of our best men we do not find them very favorably impressed with the idea. Should we have to subscribe half of the stock it is thought that it would pay to subscribe the other half also and own the entire business, and get a new plant at the same time.

Col. R. A. Miller, of Jacksonville, has been appointed register of the Oregon City land office vice J. T. Apperson. This change will be an excellent one for the interests of settlers of the Oregon City land district. With all due respect to old age, we must say that it would be difficult to find another old barnacle like Col. Apperson in the state. He has done more to hinder and harass claimants in his district than all the other registers in the state put together, ten times over. He will be succeeded by a scholar and a man of understanding and ability.

Yaquina Harbor.

Capt. F. W. Symons, of the U. S. Engineering corps, has just returned from a trip to Yaquina Bay, says the Oregonian in a recent issue. He was considerably impressed with the showing made by the new men who are taking hold of the Oregon Pacific. Quite a good deal of repairing and other work is under way and progressing well, so that improvements of value are promised. The government's work on the jetty is going forward nicely and in course of completion. A depth of 14 feet at low water has been maintained on the bar for nearly a year now, showing the permanent character of the improvement, as well as the decided relief to the commerce of the port which formerly had to struggle along with some seven feet at low water. The principle of the work is the same as that of the Columbia river jetty, to restrict the channel and control the action of the currents out and in. Captain Symons says the great work at all bars, rivers included, is done by the tide. Its force at all times is equal to that of the river's volume. Both the jetties at Yaquina Bay are carried out to their full length, and the work now being done is to fill them up with the usual deposits.

The Oregon Pacific railroad company have arranged to run a wholesale merchants' excursion from San Francisco to Albany on July 27th. The Steamship Willamette Valley will leave with this party on the evening of that day, arriving at Yaquina on the 29th or 30th. The San Francisco Board of Trade will attend this excursion in a party. It is the intention to entertain the San Francisco people in the same way that they entertained the Oregon merchants on their recent trip. It is desirable that these merchants should visit as many points in the Willamette Valley as possible. They will be allowed five days to spend throughout the valley. It is expected to start another merchants' excursion for San Francisco on August 14th. All arrangements will be made to entertain them nicely upon their arrival in San Francisco.

There is a general idea that the president's salary of $50,000 a year is all that he receives. This is a mistake. In addition to his salary, the president receives $36,064 to pay the salaries of his clerks and subordinates. His private secretary has $3250, his assistant secretary $2250, the stenographer gets $1800, each of five messengers, $1200, the steward $1800, each of the two doorkeeper, $1200, while the other employes are paid in proportion, down to the man who takes care of the fires, who receives $864. In addition $8000 is allowed for incidentals, such as stationery and carpets, $12,500, for repairs and refurnishing, $2500, for fuel, $4000, for the green house and $75,000, for the stable, gas and other incidentals. In all, the president and his house costs the the country over $125,000.

Col. John Lane, the newly appointed Indian inspector has been inspecting the Siletz agency for several days past, leaving this morning. The Colonel is well pleased with the condition of the Agency and the Indians generally. He also recognizes the importance of having the allotment which was made last fall approved, and will urge upon the Secretary of the Interior the necessity of prompt action in the matter. He will also urge the early opening of the reservation for settlement.

Receiver Hadley and Supt. Mulchney passed over the road on a tour of inspection last week preparatory to making arrangements for handling this year's grain crop. Among the steps taken for this purpose was the location of warehouses at Maxwell, Munkers, Granger, Philomath, Wren and Blodgett.

The Alliance will debate the following question next Saturday night: Resolved, that the currency of the nation should be issued direct to the people without the intervention of bankers.
