Communicated.

Toledo, Oregon, Feb. 10, 1894.

MR. EDITOR:—I find in the last Newport News an article written by a person signing himself "American."

I think that I know the poor old deluded person who wrote that article, and I think that I will have to give a description of the man in short as seen by your humble servant. In the first place he is a rather portly man with a florid complexion, hair silvered with gray, that is what is left of it since the softening of the brain set in, or else his being a republican lobbyist so long it has driven the poor old soul near the verge of insanity and he has pulled it out in his ravings.

"Cheery Charley," so-called, never was a free-trader, and as to being seedy I am not like the turtle, carry all my wealth on my back.

Now if my memory is not gone astray I think we told the Siamese twins, that is the demo-republican party, that the financial question of more importance to the masses than the tariff, and we believe that when the people have to go down in their pockets for their taxes and pay on their mortgages they will see where the finance question comes in.

Now I see no way out of our present trouble than for the governors of every state to issue scrip enough to put every idle man to work, and work them on our roads, or any other works where the public would derive a benefit. If you have anything better to offer dig cheery charley.

Now Mr. Asparagus, or whoever you are, I will give you an illustration of the tariff as seen by my eyes today: My wife owns a sheep ranch, and I have a fine dog. I have to have meat for my dog and we will call that big bone of meat the tariff bone. My wife takes it into her head to raise a litter of cats. She says to me one morning, "Charley, my cats are young, they must be protected. We will give them a part of the dog's meat while they are young," and from that day to this that family has been gnawing at that poor old dog's bone until they have got it all consumed, and the consequence is that the poor old dog has got so thin and starved that he can hardly go after sheep. So one morning I told him there would be a change of cooks, and I thought that he would fare better at night. So when night came and he came home tired and worn out, he beheld a big bone in his dish. How he wagged his tail and smiled with the thought of a good supper. He went up to that bone and smelled of it. Nothing there, went back with tears in his eyes; so hungry; went up again and licked it, nothing there; set down in despair; went again, there must be some gristle there; nary a gristle, and the poor dog lay down to die. My wife came out and seeing the situation and says: "I have protected him nearly to death through feeding my cats, give him some thin soup which may help him. See?"

Cold weather and snow.

Mr. John Arnold and George Hodges are at work putting in a saw mill at Mr. Hodges' place, on Big Elk.

Miss Hattie Burns, of Toledo, is visiting with Mrs. Henshaw.

On the second of this month, as Albert Watkins was preparing supper, he heard a noise and looked out and there stood about thirty of the neighbors drawn up in line before his door. He no doubt would have run, but it was too late. They all came in and took possession of his house. Mr. Watkins, though completely surprised, soon recovered himself. The house was stripped of all unnecessary furniture and soon music and dancing was heard. At eleven o'clock a delicious feast was spread, which every one enjoyed very much. But the bachelors quite forgot themselves and did not bring any free wool gems. After all were refreshed the dancing was resumed and kept up until day light. All are willing to admit that this is the grandest affair that has ever taken place on Drift Creek.

We glory in the spunk of the editor of the LEADER, and think every citizen in Lincoln county should read his paper.

Chitwood Chips.

There is not much news at present.

Some are chewing tobacco and spitting politics.

The people's party all want office, and are sorry that there is not a place for all. I don't see why we can't have twenty-five sheriffs, clerks and county judges and fifty commissioners so we could all have a chance.

Well the weather has changed and, oh, what a change, snow last week three inches deep, but to-day it is going fast and will soon be gone, then we will look for the next change. If times get better so it could get the change we might have better weather.

John Cooley, of Siding One, paid our place a visit a short time ago, the guest of Uncle Jimmy Chitwood. Come again John.

A. L. McFadden was up last week, looking after his chances for the county judgeship. We hope he will have a fair trial and get justice, but he might not be satisfied at that. It don't look like the democrats and republicans are going to raise the color here for 1894.

Now Mr. editor can't you and the other editor stop quarling? If you don't believe what each other say how do you think the county folks can believe either of you.

Harlan Notes.

We are having some rainy weather now.

J. Harlan is talking about moving out of Big Elk in the Spring. Good luck for Jim.

Ben Young, son of Milton Young, met with a sad accident last Friday. He went to take the gun out of the wagon and it discharged and shot his right hand and took a piece of his ear.

A little snow here last Friday. Church at the Harlan school house a week from Sunday.

The minister and his family will move on Big Elk some time in March. Hurrah for Big Elk.

News scarce.

MISS FORTUNE.

Pool Slough Puffs.

The oyster trade is broken up, and the oyster company shut down. White and Roddy still hold the fresh oyster trade at this place.

Jack Vignus has been doing considerable improving on his ranch preparing for gardening. We will all have to do like him, and go to work and not depend on the Oregon Pacific railroad to help us. It can't foot its own bills.

There were about 35 men waiting for a job when the steamer got in, but when she came she only employed four men to unload and six to load, so there were 29 men who did not get work.

Cap Maloney still keeps salting his lead mine. He says ducks are poor but good all the same.

T. Huntsucker says the deer on the Alsea are wild for he has made several trips and has not none yet. He can see them but dare not shoot.

We had a nice little snow on the Slough the first of the week. The boys and girls exercised themselves throwing snowballs.

John Powers says that he is afraid that there wont be candidates to fill the offices of Lincoln county by the way they stacked up in last week's LEADER.

FISHERMAN.

A San Francisco dispatch of the 11th says: Sheriff McDade was served with notice yesterday by Page & Bells, representing the Oregon Pacific Railroad Company and the Willamette Valley Railroad Company, to the effect that the company would hold him responsible for the detention of the steamer Willamette Valley. The steamer was attached by the sheriff about a month ago for $14,000, on proceedings being instituted in the superior court by W. O. Swinnerton, who held a number of assigned claims. Keepers were placed in charge of the steamer and she has been detained in port ever since. Now comes the railroad company with notice to make the sheriff responsible for all resulting damages. The notices states that the railroad company, in consideration of the payment of the bonded indebtedness of the road, executed to the Farmers' Loan & Trust Company a mortgage for $15,000,000. The sheriff was served with a certified copy of this mortgage, together with a notification that a receiver named Charles Clark had been appointed. The receiver was appointed before the attachment proceedings were brought in this city. Sheriff McDade does not like his position very well, but under the law he had no other course to pursue, as if he had refused to have made the original attachment of Swinnerton, he would have been responsible for $14,000 by allowing the steamer to depart. There was nothing left for him to do but to detain the steamer. The question to be decided is whether the admiralty laws in the United States courts take precedence over state law, and the sheriff said yesterday he desired the courts to settle the question as quickly as possible.

The Silver Question.

An exchange aptly illustrates the silver question and confidence.

"See here, Dutchy, I think you have made a mistake. You didn't give me as much sugar for my dollar as you did that hay-seed."

"Vell, Mr. editor, I just told you how dot vas. Dot hay-seed say his dollar vas honest; you say silver is von dishonest dollar, and not vort more ash 57 cents, so I giv you yust as much sugar ash you dell me in your paper dot dollar vas vort. See?"

"Oh, come off. My silver dollar passes for 100 cente every-where. Here, give me the rest of my sugar."

"Vell, vot you tell people dot dollar only vort 57 cents?"

"Oh, that is politics, you know. The dollar is all right."

"You yust pick up dot sugar and giv! Ov you tolt me does lies to fool people, does boliticks vas all lies."

"See here, Dutchy, if you have confidence in the silver dollar, it will go all right."

"Vell, if you yust have confidence in dot sugar it go for von dollar's vort. You get ash o' hers or I vissel up my big dog, and he make you giv home quick like you say Shack Robinson."—Butler County Press.

A large ocean swell came in at the mouth of the river Monday that reached Florence, five miles inland, and although the tide was ebbing, the river raised over four feet and the rush of waters reminded one of a tidal wave.—Florence West.
