The Oregon Pacific.

The San Francisco Call of the 2nd inst. contains the following news concerning the movement of Cal. T. E. Hogg, who is now in this city:

"Down at section 4 of the seawall is a steamer that is guarded by a deputy sheriff, who keeps lonely watch over her day and night. It is the Willamette Valley, at one time the property of the Oregon Pacific company, but at present no individual person or corporation holds title to her.

"The vessel is plastered with nearly $125,000 in attachments, which is more than her intrinsic value.

"At a local hotel, there has for some weeks past resided one T. Egenton Hogg, ex-receiver of the Oregon Pacific company, but now best known as a citizen of wealth and affluence of Philadelphia.

"The creditors of the Oregon Pacific are eagerly watching the steamer Willamette Valley, Sheriff McDade is marking the movements of the creditors, T. Egenton Hogg is taking notes on the actions of both sheriff and creditors, and the United States marshal is more or less interested in all.

"A new and complicated knot has been tied in the tangle of affairs of the Oregon Pacific company.

"It was expected that Sheriff McDade at a very near date would offer at public auction the attachment-plastered steamer to the highest bidder. Now it comes to light that owing to marine claims and mortgages filed on the vessel in Oregon, the sheriff would find himself in serious difficulty if he followed out the demands of the Oregon Pacific company's creditors.

"The attached property will probably have to be turned over to the United States marshal to avoid further litigation.

"But the figure that T. Egenton Hogg puts in the case is by far the most important of any. Mr. Hogg has been in San Francisco for no other reason than to see what chances himself and a number of other Eastern capitalists have to buy in the Oregon Pacific when it is offered for sale, as it will be on the 1st of June. Not only this, but Hogg claims that he has receivers' certificates against the Oregon Pacific company which entitle him to the first claim against the Willamette Valley.

"While acting as receiver for the Oregon Pacific company, Hogg, together with a trio of speculators, purchased the steamer in the East, brought her around the Horn and sold her to the Oregon corporation, receiving part payment in cash and part in certificates, which have never as yet been liquidated.

"It must be admitted that Oregon people are of the opinion that if the Hogg crowd should again get control of the road it will be much better for the people of that section of the Northwest and also of San Francisco, for in that case the Yaquina route will again blossom forth as an active rival of the Southern Pacific company.

"Just how Hogg expects to make his claim to virtual ownership of the Willamette Valley stick has not been made public consequently a number of our local merchants are not feeling at their best, over the gloomy prospects of realizing anything on their claims against the steamer.

"It is asserted on good authority that the Hoggas would, if they again gained possession of the Oregon Pacific system, operate it immediately on a much improved plan."

The Oregon Pacific.

My opinion of the matter is, that it is simply a case of conglomerated inconsistencies from beginning to end.

If the state and school tax be collected on the supplementary roll it certainly will be demoralized by the state and schools, and if nothing but the county tax be collected (the 10 mills,) where is the sheriff's fees, stamps in answering inquiries, and last of all, but not the least, the 11 mills in the present owner book contract, to come from? My understanding is that county contracts are paid in warrants. If so, the "sinking fund" will require quite a box to contain the depreciated county warrants it will be stuffed with.

In a spirited argument not long since, with a leading man, of this county, over the demoralized condition of the county's finances, he explained what had caused our county paper to be offered at less than 5 per cent. discount, and stated that it was through the misrepresentations of that insignificant paper, the LEADER, because, said he, arrangements were made by which every dollar could be sold at 5 per cent. discount, but as outside parties take the LEADER, they got afraid and said "No" we will buy as cheap as we can, etc. Now if exposing fraud before the public depreciates our county scrip, let it go down to an equal footing with silver, (57 cents.) Dig it out and send it to the sunny clime to dry.

Although I cannot tolerate all the LEADER's actions in its raid on our assessor, but I think its aim was all right. I for one do not blame Mr. Parker for making all he can out of a business contract. For you, Mr. Editor, would do the same if the the county court would tolerate it, I am sorry I am not numbered with the lucky.

A TAXPAYER.

The Oregon Pacific.

Mr. Taxpayer is mistaken when he calls our articles an "attack upon our assessor." It is not an attack, it is a defense. There was no part of parcel of that ownership map or supplementary roll business that was investigated or upheld by the LEADER. We believed that it was an useless expenditure of county money, was unlawful in certain respects and was against the best interests of the county. As far as Mr. Parker personally was concerned, we have nothing to say, for or against him.—EDITOR.]

The Oregon Pacific.

A writer in the Newport News of last week, booms Captain J. J. Winant for joint senator in a very nice letter. That is all right but if you want a sure enough sea Captain not one of these coasters that never gets out of sight of land but a regular deep sea man one who has been to every port in the world worth mentioning, just come up the bay a few miles and take that genial old sea dog, Captain Nate Stevens. If a seafaring man is wanted he fills the bill, and crowds the edges all around. Capt. Winant is a rattling good fellow, but then he is only a coaster, and hardly ever gets out of sight of land. Capt. Stevens has been to Europe, Airopo, Trope, Oropo, Stirrup and many other foreign countries to say nothing of Ireland, Stevens for the senate! Whoop 'em up boys!

The Oregon Pacific.

Along in December Granny Matthews got angry at the county court and started in like he was going to say something. A member of the court had a personal conversation with him and gave him

The Oregon Pacific.

We have a good illustration of the working of our assessment law under the new rule here at home. A citizen of Eugene borrowed $350 on some property he has in his name. The man from whom he borrowed it made him contract to pay the taxes as well as the interest. He now has to pay $8.05 on his property and $8.05 on his borrowed money, or double taxation, while the money lender is relieved. It is relieving the money lenders of taxation and doubling the taxation of the poor man who is compelled to borrow money. There will be a general demand for the repeal of the laws passed by the last legislature in this respect when the new legislature convenes, and the man who is opposed to this repeal will stand no show at the polls next June.—Eugene Register.

The Oregon Pacific.

President Jordan, of Stanford University, says of the cigarette habit: "As a college teacher my experience with boys who have formed the cigarette habit, is somewhat limited. It, however, confirms me in the opinion that such boys are like wormy apples; they drop long before harvest time. Very few of them ever advance far enough to enter college. Very few of those who enter last beyond the first year, they rarely make four years in after life, because they don't have any after life. The boy who begins cigarette smoking before he is fifteen never enters the life of the world. When the other boys are taking hold of the world's work he is connected with the sexton and the undertaker. There is one grim argument to be made for the use of cigarettes by boys; it helps on the survival of the fittest. The sturdy boy does not take to such things. He has life in him."

The Oregon Pacific.

In the United States circuit court in Portland in the case of the Oregon Pacific railroad, E. W. Hadley, receiver, against the steamer Alice Blanchard, to recover salvage, Judge Bellinger made an order substituting C. C. Clark in the place of Hadley as receiver, and the case was tried upon the testimony and the report of the referee. The steamer Alice Blanchard became disabled off Yaquina Bay about a year ago, and drifted ashore inside the mouth of the bay. A tug owned by the Oregon Pacific assisted in getting her off, and a dispute arising in regard to the amount of salvage to be paid, suit was brought to settle the matter. The court found that the steamer was of the value of $15,000, and that the Oregon Pacific Railroad Company and Andrew Carlson and Francis Andrea are entitled to the sum of $5,735 compensation for services rendered by them. Of this, $2,375 goes to the Oregon Pacific, as owner of the tug Resolute and $680 each to Carlson and Andrea. A number of other intervenors are allowed from $75.00 to $175 each. It is decreed that the claimant shall, within ten days, pay into the registry of the court the amount above mentioned, or that the execution issue against E. B. McFarland and D. F. Sherman, stipulators on 1893, be dissolved, and the release of said steamer.
