LOCAL NOTES.

Last Saturday and Sunday were some what breezy.

A few land seekers have made their appearance in this county.

A. L. McFadden and W. R. Wakefield started to attend the populist state convention at Oregon City which convenes there today.

Rev. Wallace, who recently held revival services in this place, is now assisting in conducting revival services at Monroe. About seventy-five conversions have already been made.

Last Monday town 12, range 10, was thrown open for filing, and about half dozen new filings have been made this week. There will be some thirty to forty filings all told to be made at once.

Squire Luckey, of Eddyville, invaded our sanctuary a short time last Friday, after convention was over. Mr. Luckey was prominently mentioned for clerk and also commissioner.

The LEADER acknowledges a pleasant call from Messrs. Capt. Wakefield, J. H. Doty and A. H. Guynn, of Waldport, last Friday. The two former were delegates to the populist convention, and the latter was nominated for commissioner by the same people.

Conundrum—Why do the citizens of Newport resemble Grover Cleveland? Answer next week. Six.—Yaquina Post.

Answer—Because they are sensible, respectable, don't make fools of themselves trying to be smart, and tend to their own business. SEVEN.

By a published notice in another column it will be seen that town 13, range 10, will be open for filings on April 23, 1894. This township is the one in which the survey has been hanging fire for some time, for some reason. There are about forty settlers who will be now enabled to file on their lands.

A pugilistic encounter took place at Elk City last Friday between a couple of young men, in which knives and stave wood took a prominent part. At the end of the end of the third round the bystanders interfered and the battle was declared a draw. Don't fight boys, it's hard on the eyes.

A prominent republican wants to know why the LEADER did not publish the call for the republican county convention as well as the calls for the democrats and populists. It was just because the republican secretary was not courteous enough to furnish us with a copy.

We learn that the names of creditors of the O. P. company representing $23,000 were placed on the option papers at Albany yesterday and little or no opposition was met with. This is certainly a good showing for one day's work. We understand that they are also being generally signed in Corvallis.—Corvallis News.

Hello! What's the matter now? Get your partners while the dance is on, and get in. Never in the history of Opulistic Oregon was such prices seen before. Goods almost given away at Booth's Cash Store, at Yaquina. The Old Reliable Corvallis Mills flour at 75 cents per sack, or $2.90 per barrel. Shorts 95 cents per hundred. Middlings, good enough for bread, $1.17 lbs Granulated Sugar, $1.19 lbs golden C, $1.

Sheriff Landis requests us to inform the people that both the original and supplemental tax rolls are now in his office and he is prepared to collect taxes for 1893. The taxes are payable at the county seat, and will be delinquent on April 1st, should not the county court extend the time for collecting on the roll. Any questions relative to taxes will be cheerfully answered by the sheriff.

Jerry Banks, a successful young school teacher from Drift creek, was in town yesterday filing on his homestead.

A decision was rendered by the supreme court at Salem Tuesday in the case of Newton Williams vs. The Toledo Coal Company. This was a suit to foreclose a miner's lien upon the property of The Toledo Coal Company, for wages for work performed. The case was decided in the lower court adversely to Williams, who then appealed it to the supreme court. The latter court affirmed the opinion of the lower court and so Williams' lien stands for naught.

The Pioneer stone quarry is rapidly opening out into an important industry. They are at present putting in a steam derrick, and when this is in place they will be enabled to hoist the stone onto the cars in rapid manner. There is a force of fourteen men employed at the present time, and it is more than probable that this force will be kept up all season. The excellent quality of the stone commands a ready sale when it has been inspected.

BORN.
GRADY—To the family of D. Grady, near this city, on Saturday, March 10, 1894, a daughter.

DIED.
WHITNEY.—At his home in Newport, on Saturday, March 10, 1894, Dr. G. A. Whitney, aged 51 years.

Dr. Whitney was well known in this county, having for many years made it his home. He was a physician of good qualifications. He contracted a severe case of lagrippe last fall and never fully recovered from it. His death was due to the effects of this disease. He was buried at Newport by the G. A. R. post, of which he was a member.

Alsea Bay Notes.
Still more rain and early spring omen's about as scarce as at this time last year. From the old settler point of view, Oregon winter weather gets worse annually. Can't we load this moisture onto the back of some political party, but which? Its too heavy and frequent for the new party to pack.

Messrs. W. H. Harrison & Son are running the saw mill this week and watchful eyes are frequently scanning the ocean horizon for a first glimpse of the San Francisco steamer, due this week.

Messrs. Doty, Wakefield, Guynn and Axtell returned from the populist convention last Sunday. They speak very feelingly of their cordial reception and treatment by the people of Toledo.

Since our school closed and the outside scholars returned to their homes Waldport has assumed the aspect of Goldsmith's deserted village, only more so. To some eyes it looks as though with our elegant new school house and the outside support the district receives from scholars, as well as the presumed increase in state grant, that we might manage to afford more than a three months' school annually, more especially, when by the exertions of a few an entertainment realizing more than thirty dollars can so easily be gotten up. But expenses are heavy; wood and coal oil serious items.

It is said that the mail route between Newport and Tidewater, so long satisfactorily carried by Mr. Holgate, is to pass from his hands on the 1st of next July, and Mr. Howell, of the Waldport house, is to make his debut to the public in the capacity of route contractor between the above points.

News is hard to dig up this week and I fear "Rex" will secure the crown his name demands; if not here, perhaps hereafter.

Dyking Tide Lands.

The negotiations for a steam dredger by Robert Campbell, are progressing favorably, and it is to be sincerely hoped that they will be successful. The plan upon which Mr. Campbell proposes to work is dyke lands on the shares, the size of the shares depending upon the location of the land and the amount of dyke required. This plan ought to enable anyone who has a piece of tide land to get it dyked. The profits and benefits to be derived by dyking these lands are too many and various to be enumerated here, and too well known to need recounting. Lands that are overflowed by every high tide, while being the richest and most most valuable in soils of any lands, are practically worthless for any purpose. A few tons of tide hay is the entire product. With the land properly dyked the same land will produce from two to four tons of good hay to the acre, or produce an abundant yield of any other crop to which the climate is adapted. The land then becomes productive, valuable and saleable, so that the owner will receive an income from it or dispose of it if he wishes, at a greatly enhanced value. Dykes made by a dredge are much better and have numerous advantages over hand-made dykes. In the first place no land is lost by deep ditches on each side of the dyke. The dyke is placed closer to the bank and the dirt for the dyke is taken from the bottom of the slough or river, thus not only making a dyke but also makes a good clear boat channel. The dyke is nicely rounded, and can be sown to grass, and thus none of the land will be wasted. The work is more rapidly done and the owner can get the use of his land that much sooner. Land that is properly dyked will clear from $20 to $40 per acre annually in a hay crop alone, and do fully as well when well cultivated with other crops.

It is proposed to take contracts on land for dyking, the tenor of which are such that if Mr. Campbell, or his assigns, erect a good dyke of the proper dimensions, etc., that upon completion thereof they are to receive a deed to a portion of the land. Several parties have already signed these contracts and if enough of them are signed to justify the outlay the machine will be purchased. In case the dyking is not completed according to the contract the contract then becomes void. It is hoped that all parties who own tide lands on the Bay will investigate the plan, by calling on addressing Mr. Campbell, at this place, and sign contracts if they see fit. We believe that if the proper interest is displayed by land owners, who now are absolutely reaping no benefits from their lands, the dredger will be here and in operation before the season is over. Talk it up and help the enterprise along. It will make a garden spot of our country.

Hon. Binger Hermann is doing some good, hard work in congress for this part of his district. He is fighting manfully for Yaquina harbor, and the results of his former efforts fully justifies his stand. He is also making strong efforts in the Siletz reservation matter. His efforts in both matters are fully appreciated by the people of this section.

Elk City Items.

All quiet on the Potomac. Barney Morrison was in town last evening.

Andy Porter made us a call the last of the week.

Piling for the bridge is all in the water ready for use, and men are at work today hewing timber for the cords.

F. C. Hoffman, of the Ramsdell quarry, left for Albany the last of the week to make arrangements to commence work on the quarry next month. They will put in a tramway to the tide water and from there will handle the rock on scows something after the style of the Rebecca.

Pioneer Quarry is working ten men and will soon put on twelve or fifteen more. The two quarries will scatter several dollars in this part this season.

We see by the last week's LEADER and by the Salem Journal, the name of M. W. Simpson for county judge. It meets with approval by all in this part, regardless of party. We know of no better man for the position. Marsh is one of the pioneers of this bay; well known by all to be a man of good judgment, one that will work for the best interests of Lincoln county. He has never been an office seeker and would not be managed by any ring rule or allow anything but justice to all. He is well posted and well acquainted with all parts of the new county and the people. We have never found the man to say one word against him in any manner, and believe as the Journal says, "He will catch votes as fast as he can fish." We do not believe in any party running the affairs of the county. We propose to vote for the man not the party. We want the man who will best serve the interests of the people, and believe M. W. Simpson to be the man for the county judge. Divide the offices up with the best men.

EDITOR LEADER:
In order to correct an impression conveyed in Imprimatur's last week's Alsea Bay Notes, I crave a little of your space. Imprimatur says "After the comments on the Omaha platform and the discussion thereon had terminated etc." I desire to say there was no discussion, although offered. The horses of the old parties present refused to join issues and opened not their mouths except to ask if the populists had any objection to their presence. It having been rumored that an able exponent of the republicans had vanquished every thesis of the populists. I take this opportunity of enlightening the public as to actual facts at the populists primary of March 3rd, at Waldport school house, and am

Pool Slough Puffs.

A very enjoyable party was had at Mr. and Mrs. T. Ferr's last week. The young folks gathered in and passed a very pleasant evening with singing, music, games, etc. Mr. and Mrs. Ferr took part with the young folks, and the small hours of the night had come before they thought of going home.

Mr. George Morgan will move over from Beaver Creek into district No. 47, to remain for the summer and take advantage of the school for his children.

Mrs. Fred Bailey moved to Corvallis last week, where she will join her husband. They will remain all summer.
