Does This Apply to You?

There are many families in this section who do not take the LEADER, some of them do not read any paper, and some of them do not know where to get it. We desire to say that one of the first duties of a man is to his family is to provide them with instructive and entertaining reading matter. It is knowledge alone, intelligence gained by the exchange of ideas, the contact of mind with mind, which raises man above the grade of an animal. There is no better, no cheaper, no more interesting, no more modern newspaper, hence the newspaper should be a place at every bedside. It is one of the things which a man cannot do without. For the trifling sum of four cents a week we offer all an opportunity to procure two of the best papers in the world. The LEADER is a family newspaper which makes every effort to give all the general and local news. It will keep you informed of the world's doings, of the projects of government, of the trend of politics, and of what is going on in your neighborhood. You cannot keep posted on home affairs without the LEADER. It is a necessary to your well-being as food and drink.

The LEADER is a family journal overflowing with good things. There is fact and fiction, song and story, sketch and travel, wit and humor, without stint, fashion and household departments for the ladies. In short something to please every member of the family. It is famous for its funny sketches and literary merits. It publishes stories each week, written expressly by the best authors. It is a paper which your wife can read without a blush, and your children can read every line without injury to their minds. With its spectacles, where it has no superior in the world.

We offer to supply you with these two most excellent journals for the term of one year for the small sum of two dollars, a price easily within the reach of every one. We will free you will get a portfolio containing 20 photos of the strange people that were seen in Midway Plaisance.
Send in your order to-day.

Alsea Bay.

In the southwestern part of Lincoln county and about twelve miles south of Yaquina Bay, almost surrounded by delectable mountains of various heights, upon which are vast forests of fir, spruce and cedar timber, is the Alsea Bay. Many readers of the LEADER are doubtless acquainted with this pleasant district of our good country. To such we hope that nothing untrue or unpleasant will appear in this article. To those who are not already acquainted with this quiet sequestered spot, we hope to impart to you at least some information by way of an introduction.

The remains of an extensive forest, still to be seen everywhere throughout this locality, show that one day a larger forest than the one of today extended over hill and dale. But time and tides have come and gone, and that vast forest, the home and haunts of many wild animals, such as the panther, cougar, bear and deer, has given way to a younger, and we hope more beautiful and picturesque one.

Just what aboriginal race inhabited this locality in pre-historic times is difficult to say. But that it was inhabited by a race of people in times past is evident from the remains still to be seen at the noble seats of Waldport, Niceville and Stanford. The many dry bones of human beings strewn about the flats, especially near Waldport, suggests that here might have been fought many of the most desperate battles during some civil strife or convulsion; or here might have flourished, in ancient times, bands of gallant outlaws, whose deeds were afterwards rendered popular in song and story.

The name, Devil's Bend, which is the distinguishing title given to one portion of our locality, gives room and opportunity for strangers to imagine that here the people of yore were haunted by some fabulous Dragon. But howsoever these things may have been, the land and the water are still here as beautiful and plentiful as when fresh from the creator's hand.

Besides the pleasant hills there are lovely valleys with thick carpets of delicious greensward, not only along the main bay but scattered here and there among the hills and along the many tributaries of the Bay. These valleys, I am happy to say, have the richest and most productive soil. Five and six tons of hay to the acre can be raised, and three and four tons per acre is not uncommon crop. Eight months of the year this meadow may be pastured with profit, both to the hay and to the stock. I am also informed, by good authority, that with ordinary cultivation and attention, from four hundred to five hundred bushels of potatoes may be raised per acre. Carrots, beets, onions, rutabagas and in fact almost all kinds of garden stuff, with the exceptions of tomatoes, corn, watermelons and perhaps a few other things, grow luxuriantly.

Our valleys and hills afford abundant pasture for all the stock that are on them, and they are capable of keeping a great many more in good condition the year round. Many sheep and goats might be raised here with little trouble or expense, there being no wild animals, except a very few bear, that would prey upon them. As to how dogs would fare here, I can say little, my own Berkshires seem to have as good an appetite here as they had before they were brought here.

There is but one drawback to Alsea Bay, and that is the lack of a market. That may be many drawbacks in other localities far worse than this but we are pursued that this is one far worse than many others; for it seems to lock the wheels of so many enterprises. For example, what is the reason that there are not hundreds of tons of hay raised on the Alsea Bay annually? And thousands of tons of carrots, beets and other vegetables raised every year at this place? Simply the lack of a market. Why don't the farmers produce bacon and beef in abundance? Lack of a market.

Now some say the solution of our market problem here is, to open the wagon road between this place and the Alsea Valley, and then we can sell our farm products to the pleasure-seekers, who will come every year to the Bay. That is good so far as it goes, I like that, I am a friend to improvement. And the opening of this road will be to the people of Alsea Bay, the opening of a new era in many respects, and will also be a great improvement to Lincoln county. But to think for a moment of disposing in this way of all the products which the resources of this Bay country are capable of producing, is at once preposterous. Not a bit the idle and stupid would generate such an idea.

Our one thing needful is it have our harbor improved so that larger vessels can pass safely in and out at all times. Just what appropriation it would take to do this I am unable to say but am persuaded that it would not be unreasonably great. If this were done instead of one little schooner coming in here every three or four months, we can have lumber, vegetable produce, bacon, beef and butter enough together with the grain from the Alsea Valley, which under these circumstances we would be sure to have, to load one or two schooners every week.

We also have quarries of nice rock jutting out into the bay which are just waiting development. One schooner might be employed continually carrying away rock, and thus we could keep pavi passu with the Pioneer and other quarries of our sister bay.

True and good wide awake people is what is required to bring this about. 'Yes ever-laboring time,' as Calhoun says, will bring these very things to pass. May the day be not far distant.

W. D. RISLEY.

The Sights at Otter Rock.

The writer, in company with several Toledo people, has been enjoying a week's camping at the picturesque locality known as Otter Rock. This is one of the most delightful places in the whole country to spend an outing in. As it is not generally known to the readers of the LEADER I will try and give a short description of it.

Otter Rock is on the Siletz reservation, about six miles from the government lighthouse at Cape Foulweather. It is reached by a wagon road along the beach which runs from Newport to Foulweather, and from the latter place the beach is the only road. It is a good beach at low water however, and there is but one point jutting out which has to be watched for on account of this tide. The drive along the coast is a very pleasant one and the scenery enroute well repays the sightseeker for the time spent in the trip. There are two creeks which empty out into the ocean. Both of these have beautiful valleys which are covered with timber, brush and many fine open meadow lands. The coast, except where the creeks break in, are rough and abrupt, being in many places a steep rock bluff from fifty to a hundred feet high. The beach from Foulweather to Otter Rock is the ordinary sand beach, and devoid of especial interest.

At Otter Rock a steep hill is climbed, up which there is a fair wagon way, and the visitor is on a high bench, or plateau, that is practically level, and is covered with just enough timber to make an ideal camping place. Here the tourist can find plenty of wood and water, and excellent pasture for his horses, if he has any, at the very low price of twenty-five cents per head a week.

The rocks are located at the end of a peninsula which runs about a half mile into the ocean in an almost due westerly direction. They are easily accessible from the table land at all times.

The first object of interest which attracts the attention of the sight-seeker, is the Devil's cauldron. This is truly a wonderful sight. It is an immense round opening in the rocks, and is about 200 feet across and about 40 or 50 feet deep. It has two underground openings, one at the north side and the other on the south. These openings form a suction, which, in stormy or windy weather, is hard to withstand. At low tide a person can walk into the cauldron from the north beach, and when in there he realizes something of its immensity of the affair. When the tide is coming in it is a wonderful sight to see the waves beat and dash through the openings into this huge bowl. On the south side of the peninsula, near the opening to the cauldron there is a huge cave or cavern. This can be reached only at low water and has never been fully explored. That there is an underground opening is true because there is one part in it where the water rises and falls with the tide.

There are many rocks which set out into the ocean at the extremity of the peninsula and it is a most grand and gigantic spectacle to see the waves beat and dash on these rocks on an incoming tide.

Otter rock, proper, is a huge rock which sets out in the ocean about a half mile from the main land. It is reached only by the Indians in canoes when the water is quiet. On the north beach there are numerous rocks setting out in the water which furnish excellent fishing places. From off these rocks are caught rock cod, kelp, sea bass, perch, and other fish. It is certainly the ideal fishing grounds after one has learned the deep holes and good fishing places. The rocks are covered with fine mussels which furnish you good bait right at hand. The north beach is mostly covered with gravels and small stone. Here is the home of the water agate, the party with which I was with having found several fine ones.

On the south beach there is an ideal bathing place. The beach slopes gradually out and the bather can get any depth of water he desires. There is no undertow and the surf is the most delightful the writer was ever in.

These are some of wonders and amusements of the sea; but if you are more inclined to the land there are many things to attract you. There is good hunting in the woods. Bear, deer, pigeons, etc., are the principal kinds of game with which the woods abound. The writer never tried either of these sports except pigeon shooting on a small scale, but I am assured by those who have indulged in them that they are first-class in every respect.

To conclude, Otter rocks furnish an ideal place for the person who is seeking the pleasures of nature without the refined touch of civilization, and as the years go by more and more people will go to this place to see the wonderful sights.

The grounds mostly are on the allotments of Duke Spencer and his family. Spencer is a very accommodating Indian, and if treated decently, will do everything in his power to make it comfortable for the pleasure seekers.

It is conceded by all, especially old-time patrons of Yaquina, that the luster of the season of 1894 so outshines its predecessors that it will ever serve as an epoch or sign post in the history of this beach, and will be the year from which will be reckoned the leap into public favor and rapid progress as a summer outing place by the sea, that is sure to make Yaquina famous in future years. Rumors of great and much-needed changes in the accommodations for visitors to this resort for the ensuing year are heard in various quarters. If these contemplated improvements materialize, it will place Newport well in the front rank of famous Pacific coast seaside resorts. These changes include the perfection of arrangements whereby sleeping cars will be run from Portland, leaving the metropolis at night and landing passengers in Newport the following morning in time for breakfast.—Sunday's Oregonian.

Miss Florence Pullman is to marry an Austrian prince, and the money Pullman has made by charging exorbitant hotel rates on his cars will go to a titled duke across the Atlantic.—Ex.

Last Wednesday Governor Penoyer turned three more convicts loose on the community. The pardons are thus described by the Salem Statesman: "R. J. Harris who was convicted in Union county July 2, 1892, of the crime of assault and robbery and sentenced to the penitentiary for five years. The governor gives as a reason for his pardon that 'his family is in need of his service and he has been sufficiently punished.'" Frank O'Neil, who was convicted in Lake county June 10, 1894, of the crime of assault with a dangerous weapon and sentenced to the penitentiary for six months. The governor granted the pardon in this case because the sentencing judge recommended it. Zeno Denny, who was sentenced in Union county March 10, 1894, of the crime of larceny and sentenced to the penitentiary for two years. In this case the power which brought the pardon was the recommendation of the district attorney."

The steamer Willamette Valley has parted company, perhaps forever, with the Oregon Pacific railroad. She was sold by a deputy marshal at San Francisco Thursday for $43,225. John L. Howard, a San Francisco coal dealer was the purchaser, and the dispatches relate that she is to be thoroughly overhauled and put in the coal trade. The claims in the United States court, on which she was sold, only aggregated about $13,000 and it is supposed they have been joined with claims in the state courts aggregating about the amount at which she was bid in, with the Searle and Dean claim of something like $13,000 among them. It is understood that D. R. Vaughn's claim of $8,000 failed to stick. The Willamette Valley first entered the Yaquina bay about 1885, following the ill-fated Yaquina City and preceding the Eastern Oregon by about one year each, and was one of the best adapted vessels for that trade that ever entered the harbor. She has gone into hands where she will probably never more be called upon to buffet the storms of adversity and debt.

The Sunset Stone Quarry company is the name of a syndicate recently formed in Lincoln county. The quarry is located three miles southwest of Elk City up the Big Elk and on the ranch of Col. F. J. Parker, of Walla Walla, who has extensive interests in the vicinity of Elk City, and who is connected with the new enterprise. F. C. Hoffman is the firm's manager and has written the Oregon Pacific for car-load rates to San Francisco where they expect to ship several tons of the new quarry's product by the next steamer.—Corvallis Gazette.

Our Great Offer.
In another column we announce the particulars of our special club arrangement with The Weekly Detroit Free Press, a paper so well known, by reputation at least, that no special mention of its great merit seems scarcely necessary. While one of the finest of papers, it does not depend alone on its humorous features for its popularity; it is equally noted for its literary excellence. The best writers of America and Europe contribute to its columns. Indeed, our readers will find The Free Press a perfect encyclopedia of the best current literature. When the great cost of production is considered, it is a matter of wonder how so interesting and instructive a journal can be furnished for so low a price as one dollar a year—a handsome premium included.

We know that every one of our friends will be benefited by reading The Free Press and we congratulate ourselves and thank you for your willingness to furnish it with the LEADER for so low a price as $2. It is certainly an opportunity of which all should take immediate advantage.
