Watch Lincoln County.

Under the above caption the Corvallis Gazette says:

"The men of Lincolon county do not sit dow and suck their thumbs: they jump to their feet and meet new conditions with courage. For several years her principal idustry has been that of the manufacture and sale of town lots. Stoppage of work on the eastern extention of the Oregon Pacific has practically killed the business. Lack of capital, attendant upon the hard times, has caused work on their rich coal mines to be abandoned, temporarily at least. These were hard blows, but the men of Lincoln have found their county posses other resources of wealth, and already announce that good times are coming.

We prophesy a boom for Lincoln county. She is going into the dairy business, and a crramery is to be located at Toledo. We will see her numerous quarrries pouring their output into cities, to be used in the construction of massive stone buildings, her farms supplying the markets with numerous commodities, and the wheels of many industries merrily singing the song of prosperity. She is to make a creditable display of her resources at the coming holiday exposition which will bring her to the favorable notice of those residing in the Northwest.

We say watch Lincoln county grow."

A Liberal Offer.

The enterprise of the publishers of The Youth's Companion, Boston, Mass., has steadily advanced the paper year by year, keeping it always in the front rank of the best periodicals. It fills today as no other publication the popular demand for a practical family paper, one that is equally valued and enjoyed by old and young, and free from all objectionable features.

The best writers of all lands are engaged to write for its colums. Among the famous contributors for the volume for 1895 are two daughters of Queen Victoria; Mr. Gladstone, the most eminent living statesman, who has for the third time written an article expressly for The Companion; Sir Edwin Arnold, Clark Russell, Charles Dickens, Frank R. Stockton, J. T. Trowbridge, Mark Twain, Cy Warman, the famous locomotive engineer, and more than a hundred other writers who are known the world over.

The Companion appeals to all, whether in the home, in professional or bussiness life, to the educator and laborer in every department of work. Its sound practical editorials deal frankly, fairly and concisely with the questions of the day.

Every utterance may be accepted without reserve. Full Prospectus and specimen copies sent free on application.

New suscribers will recieve The Companion free to 1895 if they subscribe at once, sending $1.75, the year's subscription price. It comes every week, finely illustrated.

The Oregonian of the 26, says: "Mr. A. B. Hammond, of Missoula, Montana, a member of the contracting firm of Bonner, Hammond & Co., leaves Portland this morning for Yaquina. The gentleman is prominently identified with the building of a railroad between this city and Astoria, and may yet become a prominent factor in Oregon industrial affairs. His visit to Yaquina is supposed to be for the purpose of looking over the Oregon Pacific line of railroad, and prepare himself with such information as he may need when that road is offered for sale next month.

Judge Fullerton did a very graceful act at this place yesterday. Our folks had their exhibit all ready to ship and found the only rate they could get on the O. P. was a full rate down and a free rate back. On an agricultural exhibit, such as ours, it was practically no reduction at all. Judge Fullerton happened to be present when the matter was being discussed, and he sent a telegram asking Mr. Clark to give the exibit a free transportation. Mr. Clark immediately answered that it would be done. Inasmuch as all expenses of the exhibit are voluntarily borne by our people, this courtesy of Judge Fullerton will be most duly appreciated.

Lincoln County's Exhibit.

The freight to-day will gather up Lincoln County's exhibit for the Portland Exposition and it will be duly forwarded to that city. The people of the county have responded nobly to the call for exhibits, and the display made by our young county will be first-class in every respect, and far exceeding in quantity and high character the hopes of the originators of the matter. The display will be varied, and while the lateness of the season prevented the obtaining of any small or early fruits, grain or vegetables, yet there will be sificient to attract universal attention. We venture to predict that no county can show samples of so many different resources. In the exhibit will be sandstone from four different quarries, a specimen of the only valuable granite ledge on the coast, coal from two coal mines that will equal in quality the famous Pennsylvania product, several varieties of apples and other fruit that are absolutely free from all diseases and pest, hops that equal the valley product, grain specimens that any county can be proud of, onions that fourteen of them make a half bushel, potatoes that can not be equalled by Old Ireland herself, several varietiesof carrots beets and rutabagas that would astonish anybody but a resident of a clam county, pumpkins, [illegible] gardens, having the largest turnip in the state of Oregon, honey that would make the mouth of an epicure water, a chunk of rock with the famous rock oysters imbeded therein, fresh clams from time to time, samples of mohair that are simply magnificent, and many other articles to numerous to mention.

This exhibit will be viewed by thousands of people, and will be of untold benefit to the county.

Judge Fullerton now has the case of the county and the college versus J. R. Bryson, assignee, under advisement, on plaintiffs' demurrer to defendant's answer. It is believed that his decision will be announced at the adjourned term to meet in Corvallis, January 3rd, and that the case will reach the supreme court for the final argument at the spring term next March. The attorneys on both sides are anxious to see the end of the litigation, and in so much are in the same boat with the creditors and the public.—Times.

The case of the state vs. Job, Job and Davis went over for another term. The court overruled the demurrer filed in the behalf of the defendant Davis. The attorneys of Davis asked for a separate trial and urged for an immediate trial. The prosecuting attorney objected to trying Davis, however, before the Jobs were tried. One year has now elapsed since the indictment was returned against these indictments and the case seems to be no nearer a trial than they were at first. Verily the mills of justice grind exceedingly slow in this case.

Judge McFadden, on behalf of Job and Job in the case of the State of Oregon vs. Job, Job and Davis, last Tuesday morning, stated that the Job defendants would never be tried in Lincoln county as long as the waters of the great Pacific lappes the sand on the beach, or words to that effect. That they would pile up affidavits as high as Mt. Hood, but what they would get a change of venue. From just what source our learned friend drew his absolute knowledge that the defendants would not be tried in the county where the crime was committed. We always thought that the court was the one that ruled on motions for a change of place of trial, and not the attorney for the defense. We don't know how soon the distinguished attorney for the defense expects the waters of the Pacific to continue to lap the sandy shores of our young county, but we suspect that he expects the heat and fire of his fervid eloquence to dry up the waters of this mighty ocean as far as Honolulu, anyway. The Judge is a wise and clever lawyer, but he surely made a serious lapse when he presumed absolutely what the rulings of a court would be on a motion yet to be made.

A Wrong Done.

We would most respectfully point out to Judge Fullerton once more the financial injury done Lincoln county in the manner in which court is convened here. Our terms of court open on Monday of each term week and the jurors and witnesses are cited to appear on that day. The Judge does not arrive until Monday evening, too late to do anything in the way of jury service. The result is that thirty-one jurymen are held one whole day at the expense of the county, and nothing is done. This costs the county just exactly $62 in good hardearned taxpayers' money. To this must be added state witnesses per deim, if there be any state cases.

It seems to us that this might be remedied. If the Judge finds it impossible for him to be here on Monday morning, why not adjourn court in advance for one day and have the jurors summonsed to appear on Tuesday instead of Monday. If this could not be done, some way ought to be devised to save this money to the county. It costs about $75 per day, counting bailiff's fees, etc., to run our court, and the county has suffered this expense for four separate times. It is true, no doubt, that it serves the Judge and the outside lawyers' convenience better to make this delay, yet $75 per day for convenience seems pretty high these hard times.

Hotch Potch.

Mr. J. R. Puckering informs me that he is not another of the discriminating freight tariff here, and has nothing whatever to do with the setting of rates anywhere on the route.

Miss. Rains says it is a mistake about her being dissuaded from attending school here, and suggests that she be set straight in the matter in justice to her friends.

Steamer Homer arrived in from S. F. Monday morning with a fair cargo of assorted freights for Valley points and sailed for S. F. Tuesday with a full cargo of wheat and produce.

Steamer South Coast arrived from S. F. Tuesday to load with Pioneer Stone for San Francisco.

Our town is deserted this week, everybody gone a courting.

This is examination week for the second month of the school term here. Judging by some of the examination papers which I have seen, the pupils in general seem to be making good progress in their various studies.

OZNOLA.

Harlan Items.

There was preaching on Big Elk at 11 o'clock p. m. last Sunday. There will be singing Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock.

Mr. Wesley January has moved, and Mr. Mulvaney has decided to stay on Big Elk this winter.

Messrs. John and Martin Rexford and Mr. Mason, of Corvallis, are in the valley.

Harry Simons is making his home with Rev. Tunison's at present.

School closes next Friday the 30th.

The 14th inst. John Henderson told his wife he was going to one of his neighbors and took his coat off, and told her if he was not back that night she need not worry. He took his gun and two dogs and has not been heard from since. He never went to the neighbor's so the supposition is that he is dead in the woods. Searching parties were out all last week. To-day, the 26, there are about 40 men searching. They came from Blodgett, Wren and Summit and will try and make a thorough search. There is a story of some one coming over the Alsea trail and meeting a man answering his description, but very few credit it. His dogs came home, one the next day, and the other about four days after he left, so most of the people think he met with an accident.
