AN INEVITABLE CONFLICT.
The gold democrats who talk about free coinage of silver being a new democratic doctrine have not kept track of the party record. Ever since 1877, when the agitation in favor of the "dollar of our daddies" began, a large majority of the democratic members of the house and senate have voted for free coinage at every opportunity.
The Bland-Allison law was passed over the veto of President Hayes mainly by democratic votes. In 1890 every democratic vote in congress was against the Sherman law, but it was because a majority of the democrats favored free coinage, and were opposed to another compromise.
The slavery issue was kept in abeyance for many years by the Missouri compromise of 1820, the Omnibus bill of 1850, and the Kansas-Nebraska bill 1854, but the time came when compromise no longer availed.
So it has been, with the silver question. It has been twice compromised, first by the Bland-Allison act and secondly by the Sherman law, but the repeal of the latter has left the question to be fought out squarely just as the Dred Scott decision left the slavery question.
It is fortunate for the country that we are this year to have a square stand-up and knock-down fight between the advocates and opponents of free coinage. The business interests of the country require a settled financial policy, and that is what this campaign will give us. Stability on either the gold or silver basis is to be preferred to uncertainty to what basis we are on. The present situation is not to be deplored. It presages the early settlement of the financial question that has so long been a menace to the prosperity of the nation. The political sky is overhung with dark clouds, but we suspect that they have a silver lining.—Walla Walla Statesman.

State Teachers Association.
The following circular has just been issued by Hon. G. M. Irwin, superintendent of the department of public instruction, to the teachers and educators of the state:
"It is my purpose to hold a teachers association at Newport, commencing August 18th, and continuing four days.
"This institute, while especially designed for the teachers of the Willamette valley, yet all the teachers of the state are invited. While not to be considered the annual meeting of the state teachers' association, yet it is greatly desired to engage the attention of all teachers in the western part of the state especially.
"It is at a time and place where and when many people will be gathered for their summer outing, and the occasion will be one of profit as well as pleasure. It is hoped that much attention on the part of the teachers will be given to this association. All earnest teachers will no doubt, strive to avail themselves of this opportunity.
"No better seaside resort can be found on the coast, and the economical arrangements, in regard to transportation and entertainment while at Newport, will be made. You can enjoy the recuperative opportunities of the sea beach and at the same time make a matter of profit in your profession.
"All college professors and teachers are invited to be present. It is desired that all the county superintendents, who can possibly arrange to do so, will be present. I am desirous of meeting all county superintendents that I may confer them in regard to the work of the coming year.
"A number of new county superintendents have been recently elected and no doubt it will be an advantage to them if we can hold a conference and discuss the plans of work.
"A suitable programme will be prepared and sent out to all in due time. Arrangements are being made for first class workers in the association.
"Teachers, do not lightly pass this by. If you want to be a teacher, show yourself interested in all measures that we add to the efficiency and aid you in your work."

Married—At the residence of A. Hathaway July 12, at 11 o'clock, Miss Beatrice Hathaway and Martin Rexford, Rev. A. C. Tunison officiating. The young couple have the best wishes from their many friends. May their journey through life be long and prosperous. The hog trough was in demand for several members in both families but as it was Sunday they thought a ducking in Big Elk would do.
Ferna Mulkey died at her home July 6, after a short illness. She was 20 years old and had been married only 11 months to W. B. Mulkey. Her mother arrived from Monmouth too late to see her buried. Rev Tunison preached her funeral at the house July 7.

The real facts about that old construction locomotive on the O. C. & E. railroad, the repairing of which at the shops has occasioned so much talk, are that the locomotive has been sold to parties at Astoria to be used in logging, and it is being repaired before being taken to that place. It is an antiquated engine and is not fit for railroad work any longer.—Albany Herald.
Company C, O. N. G., of Eugene, will go into a voluntary camp at Newport August 15.
