

Make New Resolves.

A happy New Year to all our readers, members and friends.

It is a very useful custom at the end of an old year and the beginning of a new one to reflect upon the events and experiences of the past and make good resolutions for the coming year. We trust that our readers will also take counsel, each with him or herself, and consider if all in all the past twelve months have been as profitable and pleasant as they might have been. Have your efforts been as successful as you expected and intended them to be?

We all want to be successful, not temporarily only, but permanently if possible. In order, then, to secure the successive aim to achieve it is necessary that we adopt measures that will prove equal to the task we have set ourselves to accomplish. There is no accident in this world of ours. Events, experiences, phenomena, etc., do not just happen regardless of relations, conditions, conduct, contact, precedence or consecutiveness but in due order. Cause and effect rule everywhere. Form and function of a given quality will always give birth to certain results. The most common error of humanity is to mistake effect for cause, we therefore wish to impress the importance of a recognition of the fact that effect must follow cause.

The Labor Exchange has a great mission to perform and in order to carry it and we must know how. This does not only mean that we must know the principles we wish to teach, but we must also understand the people we wish to teach them to. The mission of the Labor Exchange is a charitable one, and the charitable character of the work is not limited only to the employment of idle labor, but charity is also to be observed in the manner in which we present our aims, objects and theories in order that the co-operation of others may be enlisted.

The existing environments, institutions and methods are a growth and development of centuries. No class, nor members of any class, can properly be held accountable for the existence of them. If they are faulty and imperfect it is because they originated in immature minds. If we have discovered a better system, free from the faults we object to in methods now operating, then let us prove our faith in our convictions by practicing them. The claim of superiority can best be substantiated by demonstrating it. The Labor Exchange provides the remedy. Its principles in operation, and we do not have to wait on the will of money mongering Shylocks to employ the idle. The basic principle of the Labor Exchange is to secure to every man and woman their natural right to employment. Second, to secure to them the full product of their labor. Third, to provide a means to exchange what they produce for what other laborers produce that they need. That is all there is to the industrial problem, muddled up and mysterious looking as it has been made to appear by those who live off the laborer. Every Labor Exchange organized and put into operation is a company detached from the army of revolution and attached to the army of peace and progress.

Give a man steady employment, enable him to eat three square meals a day, wear decent clothes and have decent shelter, and you'll not find him responsive to revolutionary sentiments. So every reform writer and speaker, every man and woman that loves their fellow creatures and are opposed to revolution and bloodshed, should throw themselves into the work of organizing the Labor Exchange. Shylock cannot stand up against the Labor Exchange. While mankind are theorizing over economic ideas, Shylock keeps them divided and continues his design. You can unite mankind a thousand fold quicker on a bread and butter proposition, the value of which can be demonstrated at once, than you can on some economic theory of doubtful application. Twice two makes four, and eloquence can not disprove it. Men have a right to work, to enjoy the full product of their labor, and the right to exchange their products. These three propositions are as simple as twice two make four. To be sure the simplicity of it deprives the demagogue of his job and takes from the sponge its absorbing power, but it brings comfort and prosperity to the masses which they will never have while they follow the theories of those who "toil not, neither do they spin," yet "dress in purple and fine linen and fare sumptuously every day." The Labor Exchange has existed little over two years. Its headquarters is at Olathe, Kansas. It has now over 175 branches distributed over nearly every state in the Union besides some in Canada, and Europe. Salem, Detroit, McMinnville and Forest Grove, this state, have branches in successful operation. In the state of California are more than a dozen branches in operation. Why not start one in Toledo?

That Tired Feeling

Makes you seem "all broken up," without life, ambition, energy or appetite. It is often the forerunner of serious illness, or the accompaniment of nervous troubles. It is a positive proof of thin, weak, impure blood; for, if the blood is rich, red, vitalized and vigorous, it imparts life and energy to every nerve, organ and tissue of the body. The necessity of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for that tired feeling is therefore apparent to every one, and the good it will do you is equally beyond question. Remember
