THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS

AN INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE

Monthly Illustrated

Edited by ALBERT SHAW

"If only one magazine can be taken, we would suggest the REVIEW OF REVIEWS, as covering more ground than any other magazine."—Board of Library Commissioners of New Hampshire, 1896.

THIS magazine is, in its contributed and departmental features, what its readers, who include the most noted names of the English-speaking world, are pleased to call "absolutely up to date," "thoroughly abreast of the times," "invaluable," and "indispensable." It is profusely illustrated with timely portraits, views, and cartoons. Its original articles are of immediate interest, by the best authorities on their respective subjects. The Editor's "Progress of the World" gives a clear, rightly proportioned view of the history of the human race during the current month. The "Leading Articles of the Month" present the important parts of the best magazine articles that have been written in every part of the world. The newest and most important books are carefully reviewed. Indexes, chronological records, and other departments complete the certainty that the reader of the REVIEW OF REVIEWS will miss nothing of great significance that is said or written or done throughout the world.

THE CANDIDATE FOR JOINT SENATOR.

In a recent interview in the Corvallis Times, Hon. D. P. Blue, the Union candidate for joint senator, outlined his policy, should he be elected, a contingency of which there seems to be no doubt at the present time. We take the interview from the Times for the benefit of the voters of the county. It reads as follows:

Judge D. P. Biue, the nominee for joint senator for Benton and Lincoln, has been in town for several days. His home is at Yaquina City, where he is extensively engaged in the mercantile business. He has been for nearly twenty years a bona fide citizen of Benton, having resided in the county for a long time before Lincoln county was created. He has always been an active, pushing business man, and out of his accumulations he has managed to save enough to make him one of the solid, substantial taxpayers of this county, and one deeply interested in an administration of state affairs in keeping with the desires of those who have bills to pay. He is a shrewd and careful man, with ability far beyond that usually found under the hat of the Oregon legislator.

Judge Blue served a term as county judge of Lincoln, and his administration was so conservative and excellent that he was offered a re-nomination, but declined it. He also endeavored to escape the nomination for the place for which he is at present a candidate, but his friends urged him for it, and he is now in the fight to win. He is a man concerning whose past no apology is necessary.

Judge Blue's candidacy will be aggressive. He is an aggressive man. His idea is that the time has come for ending the extravagance in state affairs. "I think that local interests are of prime importance in this campaign," he said: "I look with dismay upon the reckless appropriations to which we, who pay the taxes, are annually called upon to pay. Dollars wasted here and dollars wasted there, year after year, make up a startling total that distract taxpayers at home and deter taxpayers abroad from seeking homes with us. The material intererts of Benton and Lincoln counties, from every standpoint, demand that the pruning knife be applied to the present public expenditures and that the spirit of economy and retrenchment prevail. If elected no vote of mine will ever be given in the perpetuation of the recklessness and extravagance that is both our shame and our regret. A further consideration that I might also suggest in this line is, that I own myself. Should I be choson to the Oregon senate I shall be there to serve all the people of the two counties interested, and I shall be free to do so. The collar of no man or conspiracy of men is around my neck, no man's foot is upon my throat."

"I am opposed to this present system of taxation which forces one to pay taxes on what he owes and what he owns. In justice, indebtedness should be deducted from the assessment when the corresponding credit is taxed. Under present conditions over $35,000 of foreign mortgages are eating out the substance of our people of this valley without contributing one cent to the public. Exorbitant taxes are exacted for lubricating all the machinery of the county and state from the local taxpayer whereby these foreign capitalists rake in their semi-annual interest under the immunity ol absolute exemption from taxation. I'm a believer in capital, but not at the expense of of our local taxpayers. I will therefore work for a law taxing all foreign mortgages and thus foster local interests by compelling such mortgages to bear their just portion of the public burden.

"State and local matters and a due regard for the substantial interests of the people will absorb all the abitity I may hope to possess. A general lopping off of excresences and useless commissions is the imperative duty of a member of the legislature, and if elected I shall devote my best energies to that end."

The Reason Why.

It will be remembered that when Mr. Geer spoke at this place he alluded to Mr. King, and said that he had expected to divide his time with him at this place. The following from a letter from Mr. King explains why he failed to meet Mr. Geer: "Now the truth of the matter is I was never invited to attend such meeting either directly or indirectly. I had challenged Mr. Geer for joint discussion, which Mr. Geer refused. Mr. Geer in a private letter to one of his republican friends stated that he would not object to dividing time with me at any of his appointed places for speaking, but no notice was ever extended to either the Union Campaign Committee or me to this effect either by letter, or otherwise. These are the tactics adopted by the republican party for the purpose of drawing a crowd and misleading the people as to the true situation of the facts.

There can be no doubt but that John Daly would like to be joint senator. He promises, if elected, to visit the precincts in his district and ascertain their needs in legislation. It is not forgotten that on a former time when Mr. Daly was elected to the legislature, that he made frequent journeys, not to the precincts of his district to ascertain their needs, but to Portland to find out what that very needy burg most desired. The people of this district would have a faint suspicion that Mr. Daly's main object in possessing himself of the particular needs of this district, at this paritcular time, would be to trade to Portland politicians.

At the Union county convention, held in Corvallis, Harry Denlinger was called for. The Times says he responded in a brief but interesting speech, and remarks: "Mr. Denlinger is a very forcible speaker, who has something to say when he attempts to speak. He captured the delegates by storm, and Mr. Denlinger will have in every one who heard him an earnest and zealous supporter next June. His pleasing and manly address shows him to be a man of affairs, and in every way well equipped for the position of district attorney. There is no earthly reason why every democrat, every populist and every silver republican should not stand firmly and earnestly for Harry Denlinger, and there is much reason why many a gold-standard republican should vote for him."

Many old soldiers now feel the effects af the hard service they endured during the war. Mr. Geo. S. Anderson, of Rossville, York county, Penn. who saw the hardest kind of service at the front, is now frequently troubled with rheumatism. "I had a severe attack lately," he says, "and procured a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It did me so much good that I would like to know what you would charge me for one dozen bottles." Mr. Anderson wanted it both for his own use and to supply it to his friends and neighbors, as every family should have a bottle of it in their home, not only for rheumatism, but for lame back, sprains, swellings, cuts, bruises and burns' for whice it is unequaled.
