To Paint the Laughing Soil.
And not even Nature would allow the flowers to grow and blossom to perfection without good soil. Now Nature and people are much alike; the former must have sunshine, latter must have pure blood in order to have perfect health.

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures blood troubles of all sorts. It is to the human system what sunshine is to nature—the destroyer of disease germs. It never disappoints.

Poor Blood.—The doctor said there were not seven drops of good blood in my body. Hood's Sarsaparilla built me up and made me strong and well. —SUSIE E.
BROWN, 16 Astor Hill, Lynn, Mass.

Dyspepsia, etc.—A complication of troubles, dyspepsia, chronic catarrh and inflammation of the stomach, rheumatism, etc., made me miserable. Had no appetite until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acted like magic. I am thoroughly cured. — N. B. SKELEY, 1874 W. 14th Ave., Denver, Colo.

Phumtism.—My husband was obliged to give up work on account of rheumatism. No remedy helped until he used Hood's Sarsaparilla, which permanently cured him. It cured my daughter of catarrh. I give it to the children with good results. —Mrs. J. S. McMATH, Stamford, Ct.

A Good Calculator.

When Sir Thomas Moore was imprisoned in the Tower of London for refusing to sully his conscience, his wife railed at him for his folly in remaining in a filthy prison when he might be merry at home with his family and in favor also with the king and council.

He replied: "Why, good Alice, is not this prison as near heaven as my own home?"

In answer to her sneer of contempt he asked: "How long, think you, might one live to enjoy this house of ours?"

"Perhaps some 20 years," was her answer.

"Were not he a bad calculator, then, who even for a hundred or a thousand years would risk the loss of an eternity?"

Thought He Deserved a Rest.

A tramp with his arm in a sling, called on Gilhooly for a copper, alleging that his arm had been injured in a recent railway accident.

"But yesterday you had the other arm in a sling," replied Gilhooly.

"Well, supposin' I had. Don't you suppose a feller's arm gets tired of being tied up all day? Besides, I've got conclusion of the brain, and can't remember half the time which arm was broken." —Stray Stories.

To Make Tracing Paper.

Over a gentle heat warm together an ounce of Canada balsam and a quarter of a pint of spirits of turpentine. When cold, brush the preparation smoothly over one side of a sheet of fine tissue paper. When dried in, this preparation leaves the paper very transparent, and, as it is not greasy, the tracing paper may be used without fear even on delicate fabrics. —Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

She Knew She Was Fat.

An elderly man rose to give his seat to a plump-looking girl on a South side car.

"Oh, no; thank you," she returned, as she caught onto a strap. "I would not think of taking a seat from an older—er—I mean, I'd just as lief stand up," she finished, lamely.

"Now that's all right," the old gentleman retorted, in a very loud and hearty tone of voice. "But you'd better sit down. I know you fat girls usually have tender feet!" —Chicago Journal.

Absent-Minded.

Once upon a time a very lovely lady, who lives in 1 street—or at least I think it's 1 street—advertised for a butler. Divers and sundry persons applied for the place, and among them one man pleased her very much indeed.
He had been butler, he said, for Gen.
Such-a-One, and Mrs. Gen. Such-a-One, he was quite sure, would recommend him. Accordingly, madam sat down to write a note to Mrs. Gen.
Such-a-One, asking about him. Now, madam, as all her acquaintances know, is the most absent-minded woman the shadow of the monument ever fell on.
She wrote the note, but in it there was no mention of Higgins, the butler. Instead the note read:

"Dear Madam: Will you kindly tell me what the habits and characteristics of Gen. Such-a-One are, and how long he has lived with you?"

Mrs. General's reply drove all the cobwebs from the absent-minded woman's brain.

"Madam," it ran, "as to Gen. Such-a-One's habits and characteristics, they are matters of which public record will inform you. As to how long he has lived with me, it is none of your business."

And the last four words were emphatically underlined. —Washington

Flour Adulteration in Italy.

In the Alta Italia a well-known Bretscian firm received a visit the other day from the sanitary officer of Milan and was found to have on the premises, for supply to the baking fraternity large quantities of flour adulterated with "coalina"—that is, the double silicate of alum and potash, a substance employed in porcelain manufactories and very pernicious to health.
Following up his search the officer discovered in several baking-houses of Brescia another quantity of "flour" furnished by the same firm and containing from 0.85 to 4.0 per cent of sulphate of barium, a powder not actually poisonous like the "coalina," but very heavy and hurtful to the consumer's stomach. Convicted of this serious contravention of the sanitary law, the head of the firm in question was put under arrest.

into the room for the lozenges. The box had vanished. At last he found it, empty, pushed beneath the fender. The dog did not recover its appetite for about a week. Its intelligence was displayed, not in eating the equivalent of an ox, but in hiding the empty box, and hiding it cleverly, too. Animals are always most intelligent, one fears, when most depraved."

HAVANA'S FOURTH OF JULY.

How a Photographer Gained a Snap Shot of a Mob.

On the morning of the Fourth of July the populace of Havana hurried down to the shore at the sea end of the city.
From the fortress of La Punta to the suburb of Vedado the beach was black with a shouting, singing, laughing, Diopraising people. It was the most exciting morning the Cuban capital had known since the beginning of the blockade. The vast multitude was expectant, eager, as impatient and as francantly excited as a mob of Latins is bound to be. What was the cause of all this excitement? Why was this throng, three miles long, gathered at the sea edge with gaze bent upon the horizon? Now you will chuckle—the Havana newspapers had that morning published full-page accounts of how the Spanish fleet, on the morning of the day previous, July 3, had come out of Santiago harbor, how Cervera had attacked the American fleet, and how he had sunk or destroyed every one of Samp-son's and Schley's ships. The report added that the Spanish fleet was on the way to Havana, and now, this morning, the people of the capital were momentarily expecting to see Cervera's ships appear on the horizon. Down upon this expectant throng came Gomez Carrera.
If you have been in Havana in recent months I need not add that Gomez is a photographer. Fully 50 per cent of the photographs of scenes in Havana, printed in so many American periodicals during last year, were made by this same Gomez Carrera—who made a small fortune selling his pictures at purse-breaking prices to Yankee newspaper correspondents.

Gomez set up his camera near the Punta, where the throng was thickest.
His lens pointed directly at the throng's back. He made ready, was about to photograph the throng's back, when suddenly a series of piercing cries rent the air, cries from the rear. The throng turned—and at that moment Gomez Carrera uncapped his lens and made a photograph of the throng's face. The photographer is very proud of that particular picture, for it shows a throng of people all startled and bewildered, faces full of a hang-dog expression, jaws dropping, scowls. For the piercing cries were: "Extra! La Lucha!" This extra issued by the leading newspaper of Havana, was no larger than a handbill, but it told the populace that Cervera's fleet could not arrive off Havana that morning, as all the Spanish ships were at the bottom of the sea.
Gomez himself told me this story, and added that when the populace realized the real import of La Lucha's extra the mightiest curse ever heard in Havana went up to the skies; and the throng loafed homeward, thoroughly angry and disgusted with the Spanish administration, Cervera, et al.—Leslie's Weekly.

CAT LOST FAITH.

Tabby Was a Pious Christian Until a Hard Fate Robbed Her of a Kitten.

A Pennsylvania family is made up of an old man, his housekeeper and a cat.
Family prayers are always said each evening, and until a falling out which tabby had with her master last month she was a pious attendant. Now, however, she turns up her nose and refuses to pray at all. She had been so regular that none of the cares of catlife had been allowed to interfere with her devotion. She would leave a half-chewed mouse or a half-charmed bird to hurry to family prayers.

It all came about over the acquisition of one too many kittens. Tabby had three about her, and the master decided that two were all he could afford to feed. So one morning, when the cat was asleep before the fire, he took up one of the pussies and started for the woods, where the creek ran. But tabby followed him, where he could not see, and saw him tie a string to the kitten and a rock to the string and throw them all into water. Then he came home looking as innocent as if he had not murdered a helpless pussy and sat down by the fire. Tabby said nothing, for she knew it would be of no use, but from that hour she never attended prayers. She had lost her faith in religion.

Here is an instance, quoted by An-

"A friend of mine has a Scotch terrier,
