Prof. E. A. Knapp of Iowa, who has been representing the National Department of Agriculture in the far east, states, among other things, that the yield of rice on irrigated lands in the Philippines is about six times that derived from the land dependent upon the natural rainfall. All of these lands have been cropped for hundreds of years and no attempts have ever been made at fertilization or manuring. This shows the constant regeneration of land habitually irrigated.

"I must call attention to the most important factor to be considered in regard to proper dress for summer—that is, the necessity for paying more attention to the color of the clothing than to its weight during the day, and vice versa in the evening. If in addition to his regular summer clothing, when exposed to the sun, a man should add thereto a winter overcoat (light in color), he could outwalk, outwork, outwheel, outdo a man of equal strength who, instead of the overcoat, wore a black, unlined, thin alpaca coat. This is not theory. I speak from experience. My conclusions concerning underwear are that the weight of authority, as well as experience and observation, all tend to the decision that a fair compromise between cotton and wool is the most rational settlement of the question. I believe that during the heated season the underwear for the upper part of the body should consist of the combination of these two agencies. For wear while taking vigorous exercise, causing profuse perspiration, I advise a light cotton under-garment and a heavy woolen over-garment. When one wears a white shirt I would advise a woolen under-wrap—very light; but when one wears a flannel negligee the cotton underwrap is more desirable."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Elihu Root, of New York, accepted the war portfolio in President McKinley's cabinet. The tender of this position was made to Mr. Root last Saturday night after a conference at the White House. Mr. Root was born at Clinton, N. Y., February 15, 1844, and graduated at Hamilton college and the New York university law school. He was admitted to the bar in 1867, since which time he has been in active practice in that city. He was one of the most prominent members of the New York state constitutional convention, where he served as chairman of the judiciary committee.

Many young Oregonians are achieving distinction abroad. Maud Hoffman, on the stage and Homer Davenport, as a cartoonist, are notable instances. Of scarcely less repute is Herbert Johnson, related to numerous Corvallis people and well known in this city, late of Eugene. Though still very young, he has become a pulpit orator of great repute. He has just accepted the pastorate of the Warren Avenue Baptist church of Boston, Mass. The Post, Record, Transcript, Herald and other important papers of that city spoke in the highest terms of Rev. Johnson's scholarly attainments, rhetorical and oratorical power, manly pulpit bearing and attributes as a citizen. Rev. Johnson succeeds the Rev. Joseph K. Dixon.—Corvallis Times.
