REMARKABLE CURE OF RHEUMATISM.

Kenna, Jackson Co., W. Va.
About three years ago my wife had an attack of rheumatism which confined her to her bed for over a month and rendered her unable to walk a step without assistance, her limbs being swollen to double their normal size. Mr. S. Maddox insisted on my using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I purchased a fifty-cent bottle and used it according to the directions and the next morning she walked to breakfast without assistance in any manner, and she has not had a similar attack since.—A. Messrs. Ira Whitney and Leo Kurtichanov have returned to the Oregon Agricultural college at Corvallis, having spent a vacation of about two weeks at their homes in Chitwood.

Uncle Jimmie Chitwood says he thinks we are going to have some more weather right away. He says he never knew it to rain that it didn't stop but once in his life. That is right now, I suppose.

The political pot still simmers and boils a little occasionally, and we occasionally see a candidate dodging around and watching the straws to see which way the wind blows. They pass on the train now and then, and it is something marvelous to see how friendly they can be.

James McDonald was a guest at Uncle Jimmie Chitwood's Tuesday night and went to Eddyville on the

Mrs. J. E. Wilson, who is visiting her old home in Illinois, writes back that she is getting very homesick and intends returning soon; that when she gets back to Oregon she "will be satisfied to stay; that 'it isn't like it used to be in Illinois.'" Mr. and Mrs. Will Cook, who went east at the same time, tell the same story. TILICUM.
