

OUR DEAD.

The angel of Death has visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Mulvany of Harlan, claiming this time for his own Ora, a sweet girl, aged 16 years 11 months and 18 days. She was taken violently ill May 5, and lay for twelve days battling between life and death. Her sufferings were as great as we ever witnessed, yet she was patient through it all, and after human skill and love and care of physician, mother, father, sisters, neighbors and friends had been lavished upon her, she gently passed out under the blood of Jesus Christ, we have a right to believe, although she was not a professed Christian before her sickness. And the bereaved parents, brother and sisters should not mourn her as lost, but let her sweet spirit be a tie in heaven for them. She went in the morning of life, while the rainbow of Hope was arched across her future. While you have lingered on and felt the heat and burden of life's day, she has missed so many battles against sin and so many wounds from compunction for sins committed.

She was mild and lovely,

Gentle as the summer breeze,

Pleasant as the air of evening,

When it floats among the trees.

While her body peacefully slumbers

In the grave so low,

No more to join our numbers

And no more our songs to know—

her voice will be heard in heaven with the angels—

But we can only hope to meet her

When the day of life is fled,

Then in heaven with joy to greet her,

Where no farewell tear is shed.

God has promised to save those who trust in His word, and He saw fit to gather his lamb to His fold. Then, bereaved ones, weep not; do not think of your beloved Ora in the cold grave, but think of her as a bright angel, freed from the cares of this life, and try to live prepared to meet her around the great white throne, where she is now, happily waiting and watching for you. She was not yours, but Christ's. He loved her best and took her home to rest.

A. FRIEND.

OBITUARY.

Zachariah S. Derrick of Eddyville, Oregon, an old pioneer, died at his home, May 18, 1900, of cancer of the stomach.

Deceased was born in Union Town, Penn., July, 1830. His parents died while he was yet a child. When old enough he was bound out to learn the harness and saddle trade. In 1850 he came to California, coming by water from New York to the Isthmus, crossing the Isthmus on muleback and coming by water from there to San Francisco. He mined and worked at his trade for some time in California, and in 1853 he came to Oregon. In 1853 he was married to Mary J. Oglesby. There were 15 children born to them, 12 of whom are living. Mr. and Mrs. Derrick have, at different times, lived at the following places: Salem, Eugene, Cottage Grove and Eddyville, working at his trade in all but the last named place living at the latter place, 29 years continuously. Mr. Derrick has been troubled for years with dyspepsia, but had been growing worse during last fall and winter. He was confined to his bed for about six weeks before his death. His business affairs were satisfactorily arranged before his last severe illness.

Following are the names of the sons and daughters, now living, born to Mr. and Mrs. Derrick: Sons—I. W. Derrick, Eddyville, Or.; E. C. Derrick, Nortons, Or.; G. L. Derrick, —, Or.; Z. M. Derrick, Nortons, Or.; H. E. Derrick, Eddyville, Or.; R. S. Derrick, Albany, Or.; C. J. Derrick, Eddyville, Or.; Earnest Derrick, Eddyville, Or. Daughters—Mrs. Anna Blodget, Blodget, Or.; Mrs. M. J. Ogle, Monument, Or.; Mrs. M. B. Gannon, Toledo, Or.; Miss Lenora Derrick, Albany, Or.

Card of Thanks.

The family of Z. S. Derrick hereby extend their sincere thanks to the friends and neighbors who lent their kindly services during the illness and at the death of the husband and father. They also desire to thank the I. O. O. F., of Elk City, for their kindness in taking charge and conducting the funeral exercises.

A Vice Presidential Possibility.

(San Francisco Wave.)

There are many indications that the vice-presidential nomination on the republican ticket may come west. Men wise in such matters say the vice-president will be selected from the "far west." News from Washington indicates that the western man whose name meets with the most favor among party managers in the east is Irving M. Scott, builder of the "peerless Oregon" and Dewey's flagship the Olympia. The strong points in favor of Mr. Scott are an intimate acquaintance with President McKinley and most of the great party leaders, who not only know him but respect him for his ability and worth. He is known the length and breadth of the land as the man upon the integrity of whose work this nation looked with anxious eye when the Oregon was steaming from San Francisco to Santiago. He is the man who, by the marvelous performance of that vessel, proved to the American people that every bolt, and plate, every piece of mechanism in her noble hull was put there in honor, and who, if elevated to a high place, will carry with him the same honorable purpose that has guided the huge undertakings of his private life. Mr. Scott holds intelligent and decided views on the question of expansion, and, what is more, he has the ability to give public expression to them. He is essentially a man of the people. He rose from the ranks. Was a poor boy, born in Maryland. Served his time in the machine shops of Baltimore and rose inch by inch, step by step, until he has become one of the largest employers of men in America. He will represent all that is good on the Pacific coast, all that makes for progress, all that makes for broadening and enlarging the commerce of the Pacific. He holds to no narrow and restricted views, the entire coast is his field, and the handiwork of his shopmen sail in every sea and every clime. With Mr. Scott in the vice-presidential chair, the Pacific coast would have in high place an honorable, representative man, willing and anxious to serve its every interest. If the Pacific coast will show some unity of purpose in this matter, it may secure the prize, or it may fritter away the opportunity at cross purposes, and as usual, secure nothing. An admirer of Eli Perkins recently urged that gentleman to allow his name to be used for this nomination. Senator Perkins, after looking over the field of possibilities, answered as follows: "I beg to say that under no circumstances am I candidate for the position of vice-president, nor would I accept it if tendered to me, which, of course, there is not the least probability of. I should, however, like very much to see some Pacific coast man upon the ticket, and among the many names that have been mentioned I know of none that would bring more strength to the ticket than Irving M. Scott. He has a national reputation as the builder of the battleships Oregon and Olympia. He is a mechanic, identified with the interests of the Pacific coast states, is a gentleman of education, character, wealth and influence."

Announcement.

At the request of numerous voters of this county who believe that school affairs should not be connected with politics. I have accepted the nomination, by petition, for the office of superintendent of schools. It is not my wish to disturb party affiliations or clash with honest convictions; but it is my wish, as well as the wish of those who ask me to be a candidate, that the office of school superintendent be placed out of the reach of politics; and on this ground I respectfully solicit the consideration of the voters.

JOSIAH GIDEON.

BEWARE OF A COUGH.

A cough is not a disease but a symptom. Consumption and bronchitis, which are the most dangerous and fatal diseases, have for their first indication a persistent cough, and if properly treated as soon as this cough appears are easily cured. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has proven wonderfully successful, and gained its wide reputation and extensive sale by its success in curing the diseases which cause coughing. If it is not beneficial it will not cost you a cent. For sale by O. O. Krogstad, druggist.
