REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT—
William McKinley
FOR VICE PRESIDENT—
Theodore Roosevelt

While full particulars of the Republican national convention have not yet been received, it is known that Colonel "Teddy" Roosevelt, who needs no introduction, has been chosen as the running mate of William McKinley. This action was undoubtedly against the desire of Mr. Roosevelt, but the convention was practically unanimous for him and refused to take "No" for an answer. A stronger combination than McKinley and Roosevelt could not have been found. Oregon will give them a majority of about 20,000.

Exports from the United States to Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippine and Samoan Islands will reach $45,000,000 in the fiscal year ending with this month, being three times larger than in 1896. This is good expansion.

Butter was worth only 14 cents a pound in the New York market in 1896, and cheese, 7 cents. Last year, on the same date, July 1, butter was worth 17½ cents, and cheese, 8½ cents. Factories were busy, people had money to spend, and could afford to buy butter and cheese last year. In 1896 they couldn't.

There were 159 furnaces in blast in the United States in 1896 and 289 last year. The increase of nearly 100 per cent in the number in blast during the Republican Administration meant an increase of at least 100 per cent in the employment of labor. The furnaces were all running full time last year, and only part time in '96.

Prineville is going to celebrate. The Review says so—in big letters—which surround a handsome cut of the American eagle. But the proud bird of freedom is lying on his back, with his powerful talons raised as if he was pleading for mercy—beseeching some big brute of a man to refrain from swatting him with a club. Printers are excused for making such breaks for a few days after the Fourth, but not before.

McKinley was nominated and elected in 1896 on a platform which declared for a protective tariff and for a bimetallic circulation of money based upon the single gold standard for the redemption of all money, whether silver or paper, if the holder desired the gold. Bryan was nominated upon a platform declaring for the unlimited coinage of silver with gold, and for a tariff for revenue only. The people endorsed the republican platform by a decisive majority, but the same issues have been forced into the present campaign by Mr. Bryan. His pet declaration four years ago, was that the election of McKinley, or the adoption of the gold standard, would result in a serious crippling of all industries. The people have not forgotten this, and they are thoroughly awake to the fact that Mr. Bryan was mistaken. When Mr. Bryan persists in using that stale and rejected bait he does not smash any records for astuteness. The most charitable construction to place upon his attitude is that he was dazed by the blow which he received in November, 1896.

OREGON HAS SPOKEN.

(Henry County (Mo.) Republican.)
Have you heard from Oregon? Did you hear the first gun of the great campaign of 1900?

Away off in the grand northwest lies a state from whose shores have lately gone thousands of American soldiers far across the ocean to carry to distant lands the flag of Liberty. As these brave boys left her shores Oregon bade them God speed on their mission, and as long as they could see the mountains of their native land, on its highest cliffs they saw the sturdy sons of that western state waving the banner of Freedom to them the harbinger of victory.

The cause those American soldiers sailed away to defend was made an issue of the campaign in the state of Oregon, and every combination possible every aid that discontent, false isms and impracticable theories could assemble were called upon to help defeat the Republican party. The chief apostle of national dishonor and a discredited currency was called upon, and he visited Oregon to endeavor to teach the pioneers a new patriotism, which ignored the victories of American soldiers and advocated the hauling down of the starry emblem of liberty, enlightenment and civilization.

The men of Oregon listened, then turned to the great ocean, across whose bosom not long since they had sent their sons, and its waves sang them the song of a greater republic, a land of the brave and the free, whose flag is to float wherever American blood has been shed—the emblem of a free and happy people. Then they went to the ballot-box and answered the smooth-tongued prophet of calamity and repudiation.

Have you heard from Oregon? Its people have spoken, and in thunder tones their voices are reverberating from ocean to ocean, from the pine forests of Maine to the mountains and deserts of Arizona. Across the great Pacific the foot-sore volunteer hears the shout, and his eyes brighten as he listens.

Stop as you read, and amid the sound of marching phalanxes you can hear Oregon voices chanting the grand words of Joseph Rodman Blake, again the battle song of the grand old Republican party:

Flag of the free heart's hope and home,
By angel hands to valor given;
Thy stars have lit the welkin dome,
And all thy hues were born in Heaven
Forever float that standard sheet!
Where breathes the foe but falls before us?
With Freedom's soil beneath our feet,
And Freedom's banner streaming o'er us!
