Altree brothers' shingle mill on Drift creek was destroyed by fire between the hours of 4 and 5 o'clock Tuesday morning. Oliver had been in town until a late hour Monday night and reached his home near the mill about 3 o'clock Tuesday morning. At that hour everything about the mill was apparently all right. About an hour later the boys were awakened by Daniel Grady, who first discovered the fire. The structure burned rapidly and soon collapsed. There are very strong reasons for believing that the fire was the work of an incendiary. It could be seen that it did not start near the engine, as it was in the upper part when first discovered, but in several places. Moreover, the fire occurred about ten hours after the mill shut down Monday evening. The engine and boiler and one saw are probably not damaged beyond repair, but everything else was destroyed including several thousand shingles, and the boys will not be able to rebuild. It is a hard blow, a large order from the valley having just been placed with the mill, and the outlook for the future being very bright. Oliver has worked hard to get started in the business, and much sympathy is expressed for him by all who are familiar with the situation. There is little hope that the perpetrator of the cowardly deed will be brought to justice, but every effort should be made to discover the wretch. He deserves more than the limit.
