Unless all signs are deceptive, the state fair will this year approach nearer the accomplishment of a comprehensive exhibit of all the industries of Oregon than has been attained in any previous year, and consequently will be more value both to the visitors and to the exhibitors. The directors are making earnest efforts to bring about such a result, and the prospects are their work will be crowned with success. It is desirable that every county in the state should have a good exhibit. The people of all the counties are taxed to provide the appropriation for the fair, and therefore all of them should take advantage of it to make their resources and their industries known throughout the commonwealth. Certainly they will have only themselves to blame if they do not, for a special appeal has been made to them to profit by the exceptional advantages provided for such exhibits this year.
