

What are Humors?

They are vitiated or morbid fluids coursing the veins and affecting the tissues. They are commonly due to defective digestion but are sometimes inherited.

How do they manifest themselves?
In many forms of cutaneous eruption, salt rheum or eczema, pimples and boils, and in weakness, languor, general debility. How are they expelled? By which also builds up the system that has suffered from them.

Love Idealizes.

All active love idealizes—that is, sees and loves the ideal of the loved one. Often, indeed, the absorption in the ideal is so complete that the outer life is mistakenly supposed to be identical with it, thus opening the way to shock and bitter disappointments.

A lawyer was passing along the street carrying under his arm a law book when he was accosted by a friend. "Hal! Mr. Blank, and where are you going to preach today?" "I don't preach, I practice," replied the lawyer.

Contagious Blood Poison

There is no poison so highly contagious, so deceptive and so destructive. Don't be too sure you are cured because all external signs of the disease have disappeared, and the doctor says you are well. Many persons have been dosed with Mercury and Potash for months or years, and pronounced cured—to realize when too late that the disease was only covered up—

Like Begots Like. driven from the surface to break out again, and to their sorrow and mortification find those nearest and dearest to them have been infected by this loathsome disease, for no other poison is so surely transmitted from parent to child as this. Often a bad case of Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula or severe skin disease, an old sore or ulcer developing in middle life, can be traced to blood poison contracted in early

The Sin of the Parent. life, for it remains smoldering in the system forever, unless properly treated and driven out in the beginning. S. S. S. is the only antidote for this peculiar virus, the only remedy known that can overcome it and drive it out of the blood, and it does this so thoroughly and effectually that there is never a return of the disease to embarrass or humiliate you afterwards.

SSS cures Contagious Blood Poison in any and all stages; contains no mineral to break down your constitution; it is purely vegetable and the only blood purifier known that cleanses the blood and at the same time builds up the general health.

Our little book on contagious blood poison is the most complete and instructive ever issued; it not only tells all about this disease, but also how to cure yourself at home. It is free and should be in the hands of everyone seeking a cure. Send for it.

GAMES WITH PAPER ROLLS AMUSE SOCIETY.

Here is a new game, which is causing a great deal of amusement at social gatherings in Europe.

Two boys or young men are blindfolded, and in the right hand of each is placed a stout roll of paper in the form of a club or cudgel. The players then have to lie down on the carpet and to grasp each other by the left hand. Thereupon the fun begins. One of the players asks the other:

"Are you there?"
When the answer "Yes" comes he raises his right hand and strives to hit with his cudgel the spot where, from the sound of the voice, he supposes the other player's head to be.

The other player, however, is at perfect liberty to move his head after he has answered "Yes," and the result is that in nine cases out of ten the blow misses his head and falls on his shoulders or some other part of his body.

In that case it is his turn to retaliate, and so the game goes on indefinitely, the sole object of the player who asks the question being to strike the other player's head and that of the player who answers to save his head from being struck.

CAPTIVE WOLF LEADS

OTHERS TO SLAUGHTER.

For several months Wendelin Kirsch, a trapper residing near Nestoria, Mich., has at frequent intervals appeared at the County Clerk's office with wolf pelts on which he has been paid the bounty of $17 apiece. In the aggregate he has drawn a large sum. The success of the trapper has caused considerable speculation as to the methods he followed, the wolves being very cunning, shunning poison and not often being trapped. Now Kirsch's secret has leaked out.

It develops that some months ago he managed to catch a female wolf in a trap. He built a large yard near his shanty and in it keeps the wolf, fastened to a long chain. Her howls bring wolves from miles around, and the trapper, sitting in his cabin, calmly shoots them at his leisure.

In every section of the peninsula the wolves are reported unusually numerous this year. The deer in consequence are suffering disastrously, as the many carcasses seen in the woods testify, and lately even men have been attacked. Only a day or two ago there was a case of the latter kind in Dickinson County. Claude Freckleton, employed as a cook at a logging camp six miles from Floodwood, started in the evening to walk to the village. When half the distance he heard something running toward him, and, turning, saw a wolf close by. The man, not being armed, was badly frightened.

The yelps of the wolf were answered by others, and soon four more of the animals had joined their companions. Freckleton luckily managed to find a club, and thus armed, began whacking away. The hungry animals would circle around him and snap at his legs, and whenever they came near enough he would strike at them. In this manner the three remaining miles were traveled.

Freckleton expected every minute would be his last, until finally when just at the outskirts of the town the wolves made a concerted rush. The leader was laid low with the club, and the man turned and ran to safety, the wolves, frightened at the proximity of the houses giving up the chase.

SEASON FOR DEHORNING.

Winter is the time of the year when experts upon the big cattle ranches of the West do wonders in dehorning. The long horn has been cast aside. The cattle fare better with short horns, do not injure each other, and may be herded, corralled and shipped closer together than they could be did they wear the great spreading horns with which the popular mind associates the Texas steer.

Out on the big ranches they round the cattle in for dehorning. The dehorner is as much an expert in his line as the rope thrower is in his. The cattle are corralled and at the exit, where but one steer may pass at a time, is a small pen, called the stock. At the closed end is an opening between bars sufficiently large to lead the steer to thrust his head through. Three men stand waiting for him. One of them throws down a wooden bar which clamps the animal in a vise-like grip and holds his head where he has thrust it. The dehorners stand upon the right and left. They carry long-handled steel clippers, and when the steer is caught in the stock they throw these over the horns and snip them off in a jiffy. The bar is raised and the steer is released to make room for another. In a day a skilled dehorner can clip a thousand horns.

At the more northern ranches the de-horner takes precautions against the dehorned cattle taking cold. When the horn is clipped a gouge is used to hollow out the stub of the horn. Tar is thrust into this, sealing it and protecting the animal against cold. The dehorner ordinarily goes around with his outfit like a thrasher goes from farm to farm thrashing wheat. A dehorning outfit consists of the stock, which is not too large to be carried in a wagon, a clipper or saw, a gouge and a quantity of tar.

Satisfied with Themselves.

The Haitian loves to play at being a soldier. He delights in uniforms and gold lace, military titles and display, yet he allows his neighbor, San Domingo, to push the frontier between the states farther and farther to the westward without offering the slightest objection. Here is a conversation reported by Hesketh Prichard between three consequential Haitians, clad respectively in blue, green and pink uniforms thickly netted over with gold lace:

"General," remarks the blue one.

"What, my general?" respond the others.

"I am tired. But the review of today! What a spectacle!"

"O-ho!" cries the pink general. "Assuredly a great spectacle!"

"Without question," says the green general, "the most magnificent spectacle that one could imagine."

"I was much interested," remarks the Englishman.

"Our army is composed of brave men," says the blue.

"Our troops are the finest in the world. Do you not think so, monsieur?"

"I have seen none like them," agrees the Englishman, with caution.

"The army of Haiti has never been conquered. The French were here; we drove them out. The English fought with us; where are they? But we—we are here always. We have never been conquered."

This was the paeon of the pink general, and the others agreed.

Suicide in French Army.

According to a French army paper, suicide is more common in the French army than in any other in Europe. Of the annual death rate in all branches of the service suicide accounts for 5 per cent.

Women Doctors in Turkey.

Among the peasants of Turkey almost all the doctoring is still done by women. In Constantinople there are laws against these healers, but they flourish nevertheless.

A man may not thoroughly realize what a small figure he cuts in the world, but when he is fifty or sixty years old he begins to have suspicions that are very near the truth.

Sick Women

Mrs. Valentine Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Happiness will go out of your life forever, my sister, if you have any of the symptoms mentioned in Mrs. Valentine's letter, unless you act promptly. Proclaim to all that you are cured. It is absolutely so. You. Then write for advice. There is anything about your case. Do not understand.

You need not be afraid to tell the things you could explain to the doctor—your letter will be seen only by women. All the persons who see private letters at Mrs. Pinkham's Laboratory, at Lynn, Mass., are women. All letters are confidential and advice absolutely free.

Here is the letter:—"It is with pleasure that I add my testimony to your list, hoping it may induce others to avail themselves of the benefit of your valuable remedy. Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt very badly, wasterribly nervous, and tired, had sick headaches, no appetite, gnawing pain in stomach, pain in my back and right side, and so weak I could scarcely stand. I was not able to do anything. Had sharp pains all through my body. Before I had taken half a bottle of your medicine, I found myself improving. I continued its use until I had taken four bottles, and felt so well that I did not need to take any more. I am like a new person, and your medicine shall always have my praise."—MRS. W. P. VALENTINE, 566 Ferry Avenue, Camden, N.J.

$5000 will be paid if this testimonial is not genuine.

Use Knives in Quarrels.

In Burmah in Ceylon, and, though fortunately in a lesser degree, in Madras, quarrels are constantly occurring in which knives are brought into play and serious wounds inflicted, resulting more than often not in death. The knives used in Ceylon are sheath knives, and for long the law abiding community has been trying to get the authorities insist on these knives being made with a button on the tip. They would thus be rendered harmless for stabbing, while still available for legitimate use.
