Copious rains have broken the severe drouth in Ohio and Pennsylvania. Shake! Same out here.

If you didn't have time to see it at St. Louis, you can see nearly three-fourths of it at Portland next year.—Chicago Tribune.

The large assortment of puns and things seen in the Salem Statesman justifies the belief that the editor is slightly out of Geer.

A real live Italian count was in Portland the fore part of the week, but the sleepy heiresses of the metropolis permitted him to escape.

The Russian battleship Sevastopol is still a favorite target at Port Arthur. The big war vessel was successfully "hit" again a few days ago. The Japs' treatment of the Sevastopol is shameful.

Democratic Governor Chamberlain will have a Republican Legislature on his hands from January 9 until further notice. The session will probably go to the limit, with possibly real business enough for ten days.

A movement has been started in Portland to increase the salaries of teachers. Good teachers all over Oregon are worth more than they get, and Portland's example might well be followed by every county.

Salem and Dallas are quarreling over which is entitled to the honor of being recognized as the goat center of Oregon. The official count should not be made until the Legislature adjourns. Dallas is entitled to a square deal.

A medical journal estimates that there 1,000,000 opium smokers or "pipe hitters" in America not including Chinamen. The number of cigarette suckers cannot be learned, as millions of them are too small to be noticed.

Scientists are still engaged in the harmless pastime of theorizing about the moon from the standpoint of animal and plant life. The ignorant man has all the better of the scientist on this subject. He knows just as much about it, but doesn't worry.

A Kentucky ducky has brought suit for damages against another gentleman of color for pounding him so severely that he was unable to get to the polls and vote at the late Presidential election. In some of the southern states they keep the ducky from voting by a simple twist of the law—and no damage suits follow.

With the entire weight of Oregon upon his shoulders, Senator Fulton may become somewhat weary, but he is a willing and efficient representative and will bear the burden cheerfully until his colleagues are released from prospective durance vile—that is, if Czar Hitchcock permits him to remain at his post of duty.

Uncle Sam, by Attorney General Moody, has brought suit against another trust, known as the General Paper Company. Every newspaper publisher knows how the old thing works. You take what is shipped to you, regardless of quality, pay two prices for it, and get snubbed if you register a kick. Here's hoping Uncle Sam will bust the paper trust.

John R. McLean, editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer, who for several years was regarded as a possible Democratic candidate for President, announces that he is no longer a Democrat, being unable to hook up with either the Bryan or Parker wing. It is not yet known whether he will start a party of his own, go into partnership with Tom Watson or swallow Swallow.

Just about this time of year the newspapers of Oregon discover that bad roads are the cause of greater loss to every county than the cost of good ones. The citizens of many communities will continue to believe this until summer arrives and Nature puts the roads in good condition—temporarily. During the summer season a large per cent of taxpayers consider money wasted when used for constructing good permanent highways. A case of Arkansas traveler.

While Oregon has been getting an abnormal wetting, accompanied by an abnormal volume of wind, the blessed country east of the Rockies has been caressed by a full blown blizzard. Pay your money and take your choice. On this question THE LEADER votes "wet."

Two Chicago young men played "William Tell and son" a few days ago. The one who played "son" is dead. The bullet struck him squarely between the eyes.

The new building for the Lewis and Clark Centennial, made necessary by the demands for exhibit space, will contain 90,000 feet of floor space.

Essay on Hornets.

The following is a little boy's essay on Hornets: "A hornet is the smartest bug that flies anywhere. He comes when he pleases and goes when he gets ready. One way a hornet shows his smartness is by attending to his own business and making everything who interferes with him, wish that they had done the same thing.

When a hornet stings a fellow he knows it and never gets through talking about it as long as his friends will listen to him. One day a hornet stung my pa (my pa is a preacher) on the nose and he did not do any pastoral visiting for a month without talking about that hornet.

Another way a hornet shows his smartness is by not procrastinating. If he has any business with you he attends to it at once and then leaves you think it over to yourself. He don't do like the mosquito, who comes fooling around for half an hour singing "Cousin, cousin," and then, when he has bled you for all he can, dashes away yelling "no kin!" A hornet never bleeds you, but if he stings you, you will go off on a swell.

I don't know anything more about hornets, only that Josh Billings says: "A hornet is an inflammable thing (Josh was a poor speller) buzzer sudden in his impetuous and rather hasty in his conclusions or end."

An Emergency Medicine.

For sprains, bruises, scalds, and similar injuries, there is nothing so good as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It soothes the wound and not only gives instant relief from pain, but causes the parts to heal in about one third the time required by the usual treatment. Sold by O. O. Krogstad.

A negro preacher at the close of the sermon made an impressive pause and then proceeded as follows: "I hab found it necessary, on account ob de hard times and de general deficiency of de hard circulating mejum in connection with dis church t' interduce ma new otermatic cleckshun box. It is so arranged that a dollar or a half dollar or a quarter falls on a red plush cushion widout noise. A nickel will ring a small bell, distinctly herd by the congregation an' a suspensid button, ma fellow mortal, will flash off a pistol, so yo' will govern yo'selves accordingly. Let de cleckshun now proceed w'ile I takes off ma hat an' sings a hymn"

Coughing Spell Caused Death.

"Harry Duckwell, aged 25 years, choked to death early yesterday morning at his home, in the presence of his wife and child. He contracted a slight cold a few days ago and paid but little attention to it. Yesterday morning he was seized with a fit of coughing which continued for some time. His wife sent for a physician but before he could arrive, another coughing spell came on and Duckwell died from suffocation.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Dec. 1, 1901. Ballard's Horehound Syrup would have saved him. 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by O. O. Krogstad.
