The governor of Oregon was billed to meet the governor of Washington at Astoria Wednesday to have a confab over a disputed boundary line at the mouth of the Columbia. The result has not yet been made public, but probably not more than average time elapsed between drinks.

Mexico has adopted the gold standard and the government still lives. All the great powers except William Jennings Bryan are now on a gold basis, and seem to be prospering. However, had it not been for the crime of '73, we might all be plutocrats.

Indian Athletics.

An opportunity will be afforded visitors to the Lewis and Clark Exposition, opening in Portland, June 1, to see the odd athletic sports of various American Indian tribes. These should prove of unusual interest to those who have had little or no acquaintance with these native Americans, in the true sense of the term. H. W. Kerrigan, manager of the Exposition athletic events, after considerable correspondence with Indian tribes and with the officials of the Government Indian schools, has set aside August 21 as Indian Day.

One of the most interesting and bewildering sports to be seen will be a game similar to the pole and ring contests of white men. A long pole, with leather thongs wrapped around its middle and a ring, are utilized for the game. With a quick movement the Indian throws the pole so that it travels through space about a foot above ground, and almost simultaneously he throws the ring. If the ring falls on the pole or any of the thongs, points are made. The dexterity required to play this game successfully is astonishing.

There are none who are not familiar with the good old game of "leap frog," in which was found such keen delight in school days. The Indians have a game which might be termed "leap frog," but it is exceedingly more difficult than the game played by the young Americans. In the Indian's game, the contestants jump over erect figures instead of stooped ones. A shrug of the shoulder will throw the jumper off his balance. He must needs be dextrous to avoid being bested by the man over whom he is jumping.

There is probably no race so exciting as an Indian pony race. These races will feature the Indian Day events at the Exposition. The ponies are all sturdily built little equines and fleet of foot. No colors are used to distinguish the riders. They appear nude, except for loin bands. An awful whoop and the race is on—revolvers are not used for the start. The ponies fly across country, their riders yelling like madmen. Neck and neck they run, now this one forging ahead and then another. The motley crowd of braves lining the sides of the course whoop to encourage their favorites. Bets are made, not monetary, but for the possible exchange of horses, skins or of beads. The finish is the occasion for horrifying and ear-splitting whoops. The victor is carried upon the shoulders of his enthusiastic admirers and a general good time ends the sport. To the person who never has seen Indian sports of any kind, this will prove exceptionally interesting.

Besides the pony races, there are races afoot and endurance races between man and horse. In the latter, a man races afoot against horse and rider and in many instances he has been known to beat his opponents. In addition to the athletics on Indian Day, the war dances of the tribes will be given. Among the tribes participating will be the Siletz, Klamath, Yakima, Umatilla, Payallap and Chinook and student athletes from the Chemawa, Paris, Haskell and Carlisle Indian schools.

Growing Aches and Pains.

Mrs. Josie Sumner, Bremont, Texas, writes, April 15, 1902: "I have used Ballard's Snow Liniment in my family for three years. I would not be without it in the house. I have used it on my little girl for growing pains and aches in her knees. It cured her right away. I have also used it for frost bitten feet, with good success. It is the best liniment I ever used. 25c, 50c, $1. Sold by O. O. Krogstad.
