In spite of the vigorous and almost unanimous protest of citizens of the district, outside of Portland, it seems quite certain that the Oregon City Land Office will be removed to Portland July 1. We fail to understand why Portland did not accomplish this act of more or less wisdom by simply giving notice that Oregon City had been duly annexed to the metrop. It would save moving expenses, at least, and not smack so much of porkishness.

Mayor Williams won out in the primaries held in Portland Saturday, being renominated by a plurality of about 1000. The victory of "the grand old man" is heralded as a victory for "red licker," but it is doubtful if any of his opponents have a decided leaning toward the cause of temperance. The very best men, from a standpoint of morals, are not seeking office in Portland: They are not wanted by the great ruling majority.

One of those sneaking scientists has discovered that laziness is a germ disease and he will soon be in the market with a specific for the ailment. We predict the remedy will not become popular. Next thing we know some meddlesome germ chaser will be trying to introduce a cure for the trout-fishing habit.

Champion Jeffries will retire from the prize ring without being licked, with a good reputation for sobriety and honesty, and with a large wad of good American money. Pugilists seem to be necessary evils, but Jeff is about the best all-around man who has followed the fighting game.

President Roosevelt has finished his bear hunt in Colorado and returned to his strenuous duties at the national capital. He has been in unusually good company and had the usual "bully time," all of which he merits.

Roosevelt's Principles.

President Roosevelt, in his speech in Denver Monday night, concluded with the following comment on the Panama project:

"It is perhaps unnecessary for me to say that I am perfectly aware that many most admirable gentlemen disagreed with me in my action toward the Panama canal, but I am in an unrepentant frame of mind. The ethical conception upon which I acted was that I did not intend that Uncle Sam should be held up. But without regard to that, when the canal comes into operation I think it will have a very important regulatory effect in connection with the transcontinental commerce of the railroads. I think when such is the case these great railroads will have to revise their way of looking at the interests of certain inland cities.

"As I say, gentlemen, don't misunderstand me. I understand thoroughly the argument from their standpoint, and see that they can in all sincerity hold the position, and while I do not think that anything I can say could have any effect in making them alter that position, I have considerable hopes for the effect of the Panama canal.

"Let me repeat, I have told you my views as to what I regard to be the most important matter of internal legislation that in the immediate future will be before this people. I wish to say again that important though that legislation is, it is nothing like as important as the spirit in which we approach it. If we approach it in the spirit of demagoguery, if we permit ourselves as a people to be deluded into the belief that permanent good will come to us as a mass if we attack unjustly the proper rights of others because they are wealthy, we shall do ourselves just as much damage as if we permitted an attack upon those who are poor just because they are poor.

"In time past, republic after republic has existed in this world, and has gone down to destruction. Sometimes because the republic was turned into a government of poor, who plundered the rich; sometimes because it was turned into a government of the rich, who exploited the poor. It made no difference whatever to the fate of the republic which form its fall took. That fall was just as certain in one case as in the other. It was just as certain to follow the election of a class which plundered another class, whether the class that given mastery was the class of the poor who plundered the rich, or the class of the rich who exploited the poor. The destruction was as inevitable in one instance as in the other.

"We have the right to look forward with confident hope to the future of this Republic, because it will not and shall not become the republic of any class, either poor or rich; because it will and shall remain as the founders intended it to be, and its rescuers, under Abraham Lincoln, intended it to be—a government where every man, rich or poor, so long as he did his duty to his neighbor, was given his full rights, was guaranteed justice and has had justice exacted from him in return."
