W. F. ("Jack") Matthews has been removed by President Roosevelt from the office of United States Marshal of Oregon, at the request of Francis J. Heney, the reason given being "lack of harmony with the land fraud prosecutions." In other words, Mr. Matthews has lost his official head because he is and has for years been a friend of Senator Mitchell. It does not appear that he is charged with any crime or misdemeanor or with violating his oath of office. He probably just refuses to feel good because a friend is being prosecuted. The only line from Oregon to the ear of the Chief Executive seems to run through Heney. It's a discouraging situation. Apparently the President's idea of "a square deal" has its limitations.

United States District Judge Charles B. Bellinger died at his home in Portland on the 12th inst. While he was one of the prominent men of Oregon, he has recently attracted more than passing notice because of the land-fraud cases in his court. These trials, it is announced, will not be delayed on account of the death of Judge Bellinger, who before passing away recommended for this duty Judge John J. DeHaven of the northern California district. His wishes will probably be respected, and the trial of Senator Mitchell, at least, be called for the June term.

President Roosevelt will press the button and throw the Lewis and Clark Fair wide open and Vice President Fairbanks will be right on the ground to see how the thing works. Should Mr. Fairbanks happen to be sick on that day, we shall expect Heney to be present. You all know Heney—representative extraordinary of Uncle Sam and the only honest man on the Pacific coast.

Willamette valley and western Oregon wool is going at 27 cents—and a little better for the best. Both sheep and owner have a perfect right to elevate their chins and look pleasant.

Excessive use of tobacco is reported to have landed a Corvallis man in the insane asylum. After the town went dry he probably used it as a beverage.

Davenport Coming Back.

After demonstrating to the satisfaction of all concerned that an Oregon man raised on an Oregon farm can succeed in almost anything he tackles out in the big world, Homer Davenport is coming home to Portland again. Everybody who reads newspapers knows Homer Davenport. His cartoons have amused and interested and possibly influenced us all. His cartoons of men have made them famous, or infamous in some cases, and some of his drawings on questions of national import have had a direct influence upon their settlement on adjustment. But while he is the world's greatest cartoonist today, only a trifle more than eighteen years ago he was a farmer boy at Silverton, Or., where he secured his first art education by drawing pictures on the old stable door.

Strange as it may seem, Mr. Davenport has had time during these eighteen eventful years since he has been struggling for fame to make the greatest collection of birds and domesticated animals in America. It was the early influences of the farm, no doubt, that gave him his passion for birds and animals. He has searched the four quarters of the globe for his collection, and now that he is coming back he is bringing the birds and animals with him.

Mr. Davenport and his pets are to be at the Lewis and Clark Exposition. When he learned that Oregon was giving a great world's fair he at once volunteered his services, and the result is that he has several acres at the Exposition grounds where a reproduction of a typical Oregon ranch is being made. Here he will show to all who come his truly remarkable collection, which has cost him his spare time during ten years and his spare change to the extent of $82,000. Included in his fine collection are thirty-six varieties of pheasants, every country of the world being fittingly represented. Then there are water-fowl, storks, crane, jungle-fowl, wild turkeys, pigeons, fancy poultry, quails, tragopans, Angora goats, Arabian horses and soon through a long list.

Mr. Davenport will win unending gratitude by affording an opportunity of seeing genuine Arabian horses, which are a rarity in America. The Sultan of Turkey, be it known, refuses to allow any of the precious steeds to leave their native country, but at the time of the World's Fair at Chicago he permitted a band of his best steeds to be sent as an exhibit in charge of Imperial Turkish representatives. These same representatives got embroiled in heavy debts at Chicago and the horses were auctioned off to pay the debts. Mr. Davenport bid high and managed to get five of the best animals which he is now bringing to Portland with him, for the delectation of his old friends and neighbors in Oregon and all Exposition visitors.

Further interest in the bringing of the famous collection to the Lewis and Clark Exposition is added by the fact that a number of important tests and a series of investigations into the habits and peculiarities of the birds and animals are to be made by Portland scientists and ornithologists. These investigations will begin shortly after the opening of the Exposition on June 1 and will continue until it closes on October 15. Work on the Davenport farm is now nearly completed, having been planned and pushed ahead by Mr. Davenport's boyhood friend, George L. Baker.

While a bilious attack is decidedly unpleasant it is quickly over when Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are used. For sale by O. O. Krogstad, druggist.

Herbine

Will overcome indigestion and dyspepsia; regulate the bowels and cure liver and kidney complaints. It is the best blood enricher and invigorator in the world. It is purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, and should you be a sufferer from disease, you will use it if you are wise.

R. N. Andrews, Editor and Manager Cocoa and Rockledge News, Cocoa, Fla., writes: "I have used your Herbine in my family, and find it a most excellent medicine. Its effects upon myself have been a marked benefit. I recommend it unhesitatingly." 50c. Sold by O. O. Krogstad.

For Plain Sewing—Call on Mrs. L. L. Comer, at M. E. Parsonage, Toledo.

How to Ward Off Old Age.

The most successful way of warding off the approach of old age is to maintain a vigorous digestion. This can be done by eating only food suited to your age and occupation, and when any disorder of the stomach appears take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets to correct it. If you have a weak stomach or are troubled with indigestion, you will find these Tablets to be just what you need. For sale by O. O. Krogstad.
